FOR BUC EDITOR

Bishop Has Been Active On DTH For Three Years

By LOUIS HARRIS

Taking its first action on editorships of campus publications, the University Party yesterday nominated Don Bishop of New Bern, for editor of the Daily Tar HEEL, and endorsed the staff nomination of Mack Hobson for Buccaneer editor.

Yesterday's action drew the campus' oldest political party's complete slate nearer completion, with only the student legislature posts forthcoming. Bob Summer, chairman of the party, said last night that the entire slate will be released before the end of the Bishop, running for editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL, has been active in student publications during his three years at the University, holding down a post on the editorial staff of the campus daily for the past year. A self-help student and dormitory resident for three years, he has written 89 editorials and 62 signed columns, as well as many feature stories during his experience as reporter, feature writer, rewrite man, columnist, and editorial writer on the paper. He was editor of this year's Freshman Handbook, having worked on the previous year's orientation phamphlet in the capacity of student government section editor. Among his other journalistic experiences at the University,
