

MOTION TO CHANGE STUDENT-FACULTY DAY IS DEFEATED

Professors Approve Stanback Position For 1941 Holiday

A petition requesting the observance of 1941 Student-Faculty day on February 5, presented yesterday to the faculty by Student-Faculty day co-chairman Tom Stanback, was heartily approved as Dr. J. F. Dashiell's motion to change the date of the holiday to a Saturday in the fall quarter was defeated.

The discussion ensuing from both motions disclosed some differences of opinion as to whether or not Student-Faculty day should be held, but no action was taken or proposed toward its discontinuance.

According to Administrative Dean R. B. House, "The faculty was clearly of the opinion that, if we are going to have Student-Faculty day at all, we ought to have it when the students most desire it."

At the beginning of the meeting Stanback presented with a short statement the petition drawn up on behalf of the student body by him and Barbara Liscomb, other co-chairman of the 1940 committee.

Dr. Dashiell's motion, first in the order of business, was then discussed and defeated. The discussion and passage of the petition followed.

If Dashiell's proposal had been approved it would have been submitted only as a recommendation to the Student-Faculty day committee. Failure by the faculty to grant the student request would not necessarily have banned Student-Faculty day, Dean House emphasized. A similar or modified request might have been submitted at any subsequent meeting.

The reasons for his motion, Dr. Dashiell said, were that the interruption of class work would be less felt in the fall quarter, which is the longest, and that holding the holiday on a Saturday would eliminate the disruption of laboratory work planned week by week.

Conference Schedule

Here is the program for today's sessions of the second annual student officers' training conference:

- 1:00—Luncheon and general session with address by Dean R. B. House followed by a cross-examination of the Student Council.
- 3:15—Special Interest Groups. Parliamentary Procedure by Dr. E. J. Woodhouse in room 213. Class Honor Councils by Jim Davis in the Grail room.
- 7:30—Dormitory Government in room 213. Fraternity Government in room 212. Independent Organizations in the Grail room. Finances (for treasurers) by Clyde Shaw in room 211. Publications in their respective offices.
- 8:00—Women's Government in the Institute of Government building.

RETURNS BRING DORM ELECTIONS NEAR COMPLETION

Scattered Run-Offs Remain After Three Days of Balloting

Three days of balloting in the 13 men's dormitories neared completion yesterday as all returns were reported with the exception of scattered run-offs.

Opening Speakers

Weaver Scores Vote-Pledging, Carolina Attitude to Coeds

Bradshaw Gives Ten Commandments Of Leadership

"The Carolina 'gentleman's' attitude toward the coed and the practice of vote-pledging en masse were pointed out yesterday by Fred Weaver, assistant to the dean of students, as specific examples of present opportunities which call for good leadership on the part of campus officers.

Weaver presented the critical half of a duet with Dean Francis F. Bradshaw on "A Consideration of Leadership" at the opening luncheon of the second annual new officer's training conference yesterday afternoon.

Dean Bradshaw, in presenting suggestions on how the new officers should go about the job of being good leaders, built his talk around the "Ten Commandments of Good Leadership," which he called the "Ten Steps to Good Leadership."

Ellis Presides at Luncheon
Phil Ellis, chairman of the conference planning committee, presided at the luncheon and pointed out the purposes of the conference asking cooperation on the part of the new leaders in accomplishing the purpose.

"Our women students deplore the so-called 'bad reputation' of Carolina coeds and the characteristic attitude of the Carolina 'gentleman,'" Weaver said. "He regards the coed as a walking sex-organism, devoid of any personality apart from her sex."

"Yet none of these things need to continue. All that is needed to stop them is a display of leadership by a few fine girls. . . . But what kind of 'gentlemen' are our boys if it is necessary for women to take this stand?" he said.

Points to Political Processes
In pointing out that present political processes may sometimes ignore leadership, he said, "Some of our fraternities, sororities and other organized groups band together and pledge to vote en masse for certain candidates . . . to secure position of leadership for their own members. . . . This process is the opposite of leadership and cannot but project into office people who are followers, not leaders."

He emphasized that a leader must popularize the right thing rather than (Continued on page 4, column 4)

WOMEN LEADERS STATE PURPOSES OF ASSOCIATION

Few Girls Realize Regulations Made By Them—Corbett

"Women students do not understand their individual responsibility on this campus, and they can not expect to better their positions as coeds until there is a campus-wide realization of the objectives behind the women's association," stated Melville Corbett in the first meeting of the women's student government training conference yesterday afternoon.

Girls who met in the Institute of Government building to discuss problems of women students agreed that the objective of women's student government is one of self-discipline and self-regulation, keeping in view a balance between individual and group improvement.

Clampitt Makes Suggestions

Martha Clampitt, treasurer of the YWCA, pointed out that the main obstacle confronting women's government is how to define satisfactorily the coed's responsibility and then put it into effect. She suggested two methods: one, group study of student government which would not be limited in its membership to campus leaders; two, the transference of more power to the women's Student Council. Coeds should not be forced to follow rules made for them by other groups, she said.

In response to the question of why the Women's association is not making the progress is should, girls claimed that the fault lies in the coed's ignorance of the government set-up. Jane (Continued on page 4, column 5)

Publication Staffs Will Meet Tonight

The TAR HEEL, Carolina Magazine and Buccaneer staffs will meet in their respective offices at 7:30 tonight.

W. M. Neilson, O. F. Jensen Discuss Jobs in Fields of Science Tonight

Dr. W. M. Nielson, chairman of the physics department of Duke university, and O. F. Jensen of the DuPont company will discuss "Opportunities for Jobs in the Field of Science" on the Vocations for Today program at 7:30 tonight in Gerrard hall.

Jensen will explain the type of positions available to students of chemistry, and point out what prerequisites are required. Nielson will discuss opportunities open to physics majors. Open Discussion Follows Talks

An open discussion will follow the talks, DeWitt Barnett, chairman of the program, said yesterday. At that

Censor Board For Buccaneer Disapproved

A gathering of approximately 75 students expressed almost unanimous disapproval of a formal board of censors or advisers for the editor of the Carolina Buccaneer last night, concluding a warm discussion of the magazine which was a feature of the new officer's training conference.

Bill Stauber, outgoing editor of the Buccaneer, Fred Weaver, assistant to the dean of students, and Mack Hobson, next editor of the magazine, gave the principal talks of the session.

Ed Rankin, president of the Publications Union board, presided at the meeting and opened the discussion with a factual background of the humor magazine problem which came to a head this year when the November issue was banned by the Student Council and had to be reprinted.

Both Stauber and Weaver recommended to the new officers that they work closely and honestly with the editor and emphasized that the Buccaneer was only a part of the University and should be run for the benefit of the University.

Stauber began his talk by admitting that he had failed to recognize the Buc's relation to the University and to consider its interests as he should have.

Explaining his failure to do this, he went into the history of his personal feelings since taking over the editorship last spring. He said that he had never known that the Buccaneer was a real liability to the University, and that the first time anyone had gone to the trouble to explain it to him was after banning one of his issues.

He pointed out that after an editor had seen people condemn the magazine in meetings and then individually (Continued on page 4, column 2)

Today's Sessions Feature Examining Of Student Council

Rigid cross-examination of the Student Council concerning its policy and procedure will highlight today's discussion as the second annual new officers' training conference swings into the second lap of a three-day session.

Dean R. B. House will speak briefly on "Honor and the Honor System" with respect to duties of newly-elected officers at a luncheon at 1 o'clock in Graham Memorial.

Three Student Council officials — Jim Davis, Charles Wood and Jack Fairley—will be in the general session after the luncheon as new of-

Any student interested in the general session or the special interest discussions of the training conferences are invited to attend. Bob Magill requests the presence of all new officers who made luncheon reservations.

Officers quiz the council members about procedural and functional problems of student government administration. All questions concerning the nature of council investigation, reasons for suspension and expulsion will be answered as council officers summarize the exercise of jurisdiction by the council.

Special Interest Group

At 3 o'clock the conference will break up into special interest groups for the consideration of individual problems of student government. Financial discussion, presented as a new conference feature this year and led by Clyde Shaw, will center about the duties of various class treasurers in regard to the Student Audit board and the Student activities fund and (Continued on page 4, column 4)

Jackson's Address Keynotes Peace Demonstration Tonight

News Briefs

Norwegian Troops Reoccupy Roeros, Tynset in Advance

(By United Press)

STOCKHOLM, May 1—Norwegian troops, striking southward into the heart of Nazi-held territory along the Oester valley in a 30-mile advance, claimed tonight to have reoccupied the towns of Roeros and Tynset and to be menacing one of Germans' chief lines of communication.

The semi-official Norwegian statement issued here reported the capture of Tynset 27 miles south of Roeros and about 92 miles below German-held Trondheim by railroad and highway.

Neutral observers believe that the Germans, throwing all their weight against the Allies in the Dombas-Stoeren zone, might voluntarily abandon both Roeros and Tynset to provide more man-power for the crucial struggle along the Gudbrands valley.

The statement said that German troops abandoned Roeros Tuesday night and the Norwegians marched in at 8 a. m. today. Later it was said the Germans retreated from Tynset to the northwest along the road to Trondheim.

WASHINGTON — A stream-lined navy, capable of withstanding air attack, was projected today by Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison who admitted frankly that aircraft now have an advantage over battleships.

Edison said the present advantage enjoyed by bombers does not extend to sinking of warships but to dissolution of personnel and silencing of guns which are inadequately protected.

'Keep America Out' Program Includes Mike Ross Speech

Final preparations, including the distribution of handbills and the completion of program arrangements, marked the eve of Gardner Jackson's Memorial hall address, scheduled for 8 o'clock tonight as the keynote of the American Student Union Peace demonstration.

Jackson is a national legislative representative of Labor's Non-Partisan league. He was a delegate to the recent Chattanooga meeting of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare of which Dr. Frank P. Graham is president.

Ross Speaks on War

In addition to Jackson's speech on "Civil Rights and the Public Mind," which will emphasize the tie-up between preserving civil liberties and keeping America out of war, Mike Ross will speak more directly on the war itself. Ross, a former Texan, has been for some time a representative of the North Carolina League for Progressive Democracy of which there is a local chapter composed of faculty, students and townspeople. Sidney Rittenberg, Jr., executive secretary of the local ASU, will briefly present the ASU peace position.

In the lobby of Memorial hall there will be a large literature table containing pamphlets and books on the war, civil liberties and other information relating to the ASU and national and international problems.

Cap, Gown Fittings Will Begin Monday

Jack Burton, chairman of the cap and gown committee, said yesterday that measurements for caps and gowns will begin at 10:30 Monday morning in the YMCA lobby. Candidates for bachelor's, master's and doctor's degrees are urged to report as soon as possible.

Four Coeds, 36 Rising Juniors Selected for University Club

Present Officers Serve Until Group Has New Elections

The new membership list of the University club composed of 36 rising juniors and four coeds, was released last night by Reddy Grubbs, president of the outgoing club.

With only a few exceptions, every fraternity or dormitory on the campus is represented on the club, which is an honorary campus service and spirit organization dedicated to the promotion of the University.

The new members were tapped after the old club had considered every rising junior and every junior coed on the campus. A University rule prohibits coeds entering before their junior year.

Members are selected by the old club on the basis of character, accomplishments, leadership, and ability.

Club Sponsors Pep Rallies

Every fall the organization sponsors series of pep rallies. This year's series was pronounced the most successful in the club's history, being culminated by the huge rally before the Duke game which Kay Kyser, popular band leader and former Carolina cheerleader, took part in. Kyser is one of three honorary members of the University club, the other two being Miss Mabel Mallett, secretary to Dean Francis F. Bradshaw, and "Coach Bob" Fetzer, athletic director.

The officers of the outgoing club, who will serve until the new organization selects its own, are Grubbs, president; Bill Shuford, secretary; and Dave Morrison, treasurer.

Charlie Wood to Play At Grail Variety Ball Saturday in Gymnasium

Climaxing a big week-end in which the coeds will present their dance on Friday night and stage their annual May Day on Saturday afternoon, the Order of the Grail will sponsor a Variety ball in Woollen gymnasium Saturday night from 8 until 12 o'clock with music by Charlie Wood and his band. Many new features make the dance distinctive from the usual informal dances.

The University club, in cooperation with the Grail, will set up an informal "date bureau," the purpose of which will be to find coeds to attend the dance with boys and vice versa. No formal registration for a date will be necessary. Committees from the club, one headed by Caroline Dalton and the other by Ferebee Taylor, will informally arrange blind dates for the dance.

Fraternity Bridge Tournament Begins With Matches Tonight

With 20 fraternities entered in the first annual Interfraternity bridge tournament sponsored by Kappa Sigma, play will begin at 7:15 tonight at 204 Cameron court with Zeta Psi meeting Sigma Chi and Chi Psi opposing Phi Alpha.

Following tonight's matches, the tournament will continue next week from Monday through Thursday nights.

First round pairings for the elimination play are: Phi Delta Theta vs. Lambda Chi Alpha; ATO vs. DKE; Phi Gamma Delta vs. Chi Phi; Zeta Psi vs. Sigma Chi; SAE vs. Beta Theta Pi; TEP vs. Phi Kappa Sigma; Chi Psi vs. Phi Alpha; Pi Lambda Phi vs. Delta Psi; Sigma Nu vs. Pi Kappa Alpha; ZBT vs. Kappa Alpha. Kappa Sigma has refrained from entering a team.
