Soph Yearbook Pictures May Require Class Vote

Photography Stops As Snag Develops In Fee Collecting

Pending an investigation of the collection of class fees, photographing of sophomores for the class section of the Yackety Yack is at a standstill, Editor Byrd Merrill said yesterday.

A class meeting may have to be called to approve the collection of fees to pay for individual sophomore pictures in the annual before any more may be photographed, he said. The pictures were included in last year's book for the first time by a special vote of the class.

Already Making Pictures

Merrill, Sophomore President Johnny Hearn, and Assistant Dean of Students Fred Weaver are investigating last year's records to see if the vote by last year's class should be binding this year.

Wooten-Moulton studios had been making pictures on Merrill's assumption that the sophomore photo fee of $2.00 would be collected again this year automatically.

However, Clyde Shaw, student activities auditor, learned this week that the fee is not being collected with fall quarter bills and that the accounting department's record of last year's collection was marked "approved for 1939-40 only."

As a result, picture-taking was stopped after about 100 had been taken.

Department's Policy

Assistant Controller L. B. Rogerson said that the finance department's policy in collecting student fees in the past has been to collect the same fees each quarter that were collected the same quarter the year before unless contrary instructions are received. If this policy is followed the soph fee may be collected in the winter quarter as it was last year.

Betty Coed, Joe College Ignore Tar Heel Interviewer As They Meet For First Time To Discuss Likes, Dislikes

Elinore Mayer

Elinore Mayer, Jack Milne Receive Honor

By Ernest Frankel

A pair of blue eyes accompanied by two dimpled cheeks and a tooth-paste-ad-smile met a blond, sun-tanned athlete yesterday. She said, "Hello, Joe." He answered, "Hi ya, Betty."

So, Betty Coed and Joe College met for the first time and immediately, disregarding a would-be interviewer, began to discuss one another, likes, dislikes, dancing, music, sports, and—the opposite sex.

The two were selected by the Durham News Journal and the Durham News Messenger from more than 2,000 photographs taken on the campus during the past two weeks. Prizes were awarded by the paper.

Joe was the more aggressive. "My real name is Jack Milne," he ventured. "What's yours?"

Not So Sensible

"I'm Elinore Mayer and I'm from Erie, Pennsylvania, and I'm a senior and I can't believe that I'm really Betty Coed and I'm majoring in English and—and I can't think of a single sensible thing to say."

Joe was satisfied with the answer. He mimicked, "I'm from Toms River, (Continued on page 4, column 1)

Heart Attack Proves Fatal To Dr. Few

Duke President Was Outstanding Southern Educator

Dr. William Preston Few, president of Duke university and one of the South's foremost educators, died yesterday morning in Duke hospital of a heart ailment. He had been ill for exactly one week, having suffered a heart attack at his home on the morning of October 9.

Dr. Few had been connected with Trinity college and Duke university for over 44 years, and was inaugurated president of Trinity on November 9, 1910. He was born in Greenville, S. C., December 29, 1867, the son of Benjamin F. Few, a physician who served as a surgeon in the Confederate Army.

He would have been 73 years old on December 9. Coronary thrombosis was the immediate cause of death, which came to Dr. Few as he was sleeping.

Dr. Few, outstanding in the realms of education and religion in the South, held offices in a number of societies and organizations, and was recognized as one of the country's most profound thinkers.

Funeral services will be held on Friday afternoon in the Duke Chapel, followed by interment in a crypt in the chapel. Classes of the University will be suspended on that day.

Dr. Few is survived by Mrs. Few, the former Miss Mary Reamey Thomas of Martinsville, Va.; four sons: William Few, electrical engineer of the Clark Comptroller company, Cleveland, Ohio; Lyne S. Few and Kendrick S. Few, graduate students at Harvard university; Randolph R. Few, sophomore at Duke; a brother and sister, I. P. Few and Miss Ellie Few, of Greenville, S. 16,500,000 Men Register; Clouds Shelter London

Roosevelt Confers With Ministers

By United Press
Now the army has 16,500,000 men to choose from. They were mustered yesterday in the first functioning of America's first peacetime conscription law—the selective service act.

From the number will be picked 900,000 of the best, the cream of the physical fit, the mentally sound and the socially available, to learn to shoot a rifle, to drill, to throw a grenade, to thrust a bayonet, to peel potatoes, to ride a tank behind a machine gun, to do columns right and left.

966 University Students Register For Possible Military Conscription

Students Sign With Uncle Sam In Woollen Gym

Wise-cracking, laughing, willing—Carolina students registered yesterday in Woollen gymnasium for possible military conscription.

They seemed to enjoy registration although they were in dead earnest. They asked intelligent questions, maintained order, and broke all registration tradition by not standing in line.

Everything happened. Dean R. B. House registered the first draftee, Frank M. Rogers, a dyed-in-the-wool South Carolinian who was there at 7:15 in the morning—because he believes that "South Carolinians would rather fight than work."

By mid-afternoon, the registrars were still laughing over the unpredictable things which manage to happen whenever a thousand students get together.

The question asked most often was, "Where do I register?" The two words repeated most frequently during the day by 40 different registrars were, "Name please?"

Observers can't believe what they saw early this morning when a blind boy registered. He said, "I'm blind, but if I'm called I'd like to get into the air corps." That spirit seemed typical of the general feeling of all the registrars.

The Roosevelt Club, undaunted by the speculation as to whether or not students favored what has been called, "Mr. Roosevelt's draft," was on hand to sign members. It reported that many draftees joined the club after registering. The Willie supporters were not present en masse, but Willie buttons could be seen.

Turnip Salad and Royal Domestic James both registered and gained the distinction of having the strangest names of all the draftees. Turnip (Continued on page 4, column 5)

Stephen Kennedy

Union Sponsors Voice Recital

Stephen Kennedy, Baritone, to Appear

Stephen Kennedy, young American baritone of opera, concert, and radio, will give a recital here under the sponsorship of the Graham Memorial Student Union on October 30 in Hill Music hall, Director Richard Worley announced yesterday.

"We are very fortunate in being able to bring Kennedy to the University this year," Worley said. "Not only is he a well-known and popular artist, but his personality and choice in selections should appeal to the student body."

Kennedy made his debut in Naples, singing the role of Germont in "La Traviata" and was praised by the press and public. After a tour of European centers he returned to the United States where he has been featured over numerous New York radio stations.

He has appeared as soloist with leading orchestras of the country, including the Rochester, N. Y., and Wheeling W. Va., symphonies. Last season he appeared in the Rose Bowl before an audience of 20,000 and made two guest appearances at the San Francisco World's Fair.

In September he sang the leading role in Victor Herbert's "Natoma" in Hollywood, California, and this season he is booked to sing in all sections of the United States.

Johnson's Band On Air Tomorrow

Freddie Johnson and his orchestra, well on their way to national fame and popularity will give their second coast-to-coast broadcast Friday afternoon from 5 to 5:30.

The band gave its first coast-to-coast broadcast last Friday from Memorial hall. Following the Friday night broadcast the band will play at a dance in Bristol, Tenn., Saturday night. It was also announced that the band has been signed to play at the Davidson college Fall Pan Hellenic dances on November 1 and 2.

Since last Friday's broadcast the band has received over one hundred wires, letters and cards of congratulations.

Tar Heels Lead Other States In Registration

Doors closed last night on the first peace-time registration for possible military conscription in the nation's history with 966 University students registered out of an eligible 1035.

The absence of the 69 students from the possible maximum was explained by the fact that many of those subject to the regulations returned to their homes for registration. Others have reserve commissions and were not subject to registration.

Registrants from North Carolina, were by far in the majority with 592 registering. New York followed with 63. Students registered from every county in the state and from 35 states in the Union. Forty per cent of the registrants were out-of-state students, because the majority of those registered were members of the professional schools or are taking graduate work, where out-of-state proportions are higher.

Draft authorities warned that all students who did not register yesterday were subject to penalty, but that they should report to local registration officials in order to avoid further complications.

No tally was made of conscientious objectors, but registrars recalled only a few who objected because of religious beliefs.

The number registering from each state follows: North Carolina, 592; New York, 63; South Carolina, 41; Pennsylvania, 26; Virginia, 23; Georgia, 23; Florida, 21; Tennessee, 9; Connecticut, 14; Ohio, 13; Illinois, 8; West Virginia, 8; Mississippi, 7; Maryland, 7; Louisiana, 6; Alabama, 6; California, 5; District of Columbia, 5; Kentucky, 5; Massachusetts, 5; Delaware, 4; Arkansas, 4; Texas, 2; New Mexico, 2; Kansas, 2; Oregon, 2; Maine, 1; New Hampshire, 1; Idaho, 1; Missouri, 1; Washington, 1; Mon- (Continued on page 2, column 2)

Advisory Group Considers Plan For New Walks

Carolina's notorious gravel walks—so hard on shoe leather—may disappear soon, if a suggestion now before the Student Advisory committee is carried out.

At a meeting yesterday the committee considered the possible construction of campus sidewalks of more durable material, perhaps brick, and decided to give the matter more thorough consideration at a meeting later this week.

According to Chairman Bill Allen, the committee is designed to serve as a liaison body between the students and the administration. "We want all students to feel free to come to us with any troubles which they believe warrant a change," Allen said, "for the fundamental duty of the committee is to serve as a connecting link between the student body and the offices of the administration."

The committee is composed of Allen, Bill Bruner, and Ben Tillett, and meets with L. B. Rogerson, assistant controller, who represents the administration.

Wolf Will Show Movies Tonight

Carolina's play of the week—the one that carried Sweet Jim Lalanne to a touchdown against Texas Christian last Saturday—will be among those diagrammed and explained by Head Coach Ray Wolf in tonight's football clinic, which will be held at 7:45 in Gerrard hall.

Coach Wolf will lecture briefly, and play-by-play movies of the entire TCU game will be shown.

Sponsored by Graham Memorial Student Union, the clinic is held each Thursday night during the football season, and has proved to be one of the most popular on the Union's program.

Movies of runs by Lalanne and Don Baker and TCU's vaunted passing attack should provide entertainment aplenty for those attending tonight's clinic.
