Young Democrats Suggest Willkie For Duke Head

The campus Young Democrats club yesterday mailed a letter to the Board of Trustees of Duke university suggesting that Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential candidate, be made the next president of the Methodist institution, to replace the late Dr. W. P. Few.

In the letter it is pointed out that Willkie has previously stated that he "would like to retire from the utility business . . . and become the head of a large university."

The local YDC has, according to "Wink" Norman, its president, made considerable progress in the drive sponsored by the organization to arouse and solidify spirit on the campus toward reelecting Roosevelt. They have distributed nearly 1,000 Democratic buttons, 500 at the football game in Raleigh last Saturday. Norman stated that "hundreds" of people have received Roosevelt campaign literature from the YDC headquarters in the YMCA and in 209 Graham Memorial during the past few weeks.

Plans are under way, Norman reported, to choose students native to each of the 11 congressional districts in North Carolina as district chairmen who will contact freshmen coming from those districts and interest them in the YDC. These chairmen will also enable the campus club to keep in close contact with the city and county clubs all over the state. The YDC group here stands ready, it was stated by the president, to give anyone desiring information on voting absentee ballots.

Bullitt Urges Swift Action To Meet Germany's Challenge

Churchill Scorns Invasion Threat

By United Press
CHICAGO, Oct. 21—William C. Bullitt, United States ambassador to France, charged tonight that Nazi leaders in Germany are "determined to reform the way of life that we have followed since the birth of our nation."

Bullitt said that the United States is producing airplanes fast but that it should begin immediately to manufacture war materials and planes "with as much urgency as if we were at war."

"Only swift action," he said, "can make our country so strong that whatever happens no other nation will dare to attack us."

Describing the Nazis as "death's head huzzars" Bullitt said that they are determined to enslave the world "by fear, tyranny, persecution, and lies" and replace our world order by a tyranny of German masters by reason of the recently consolidated alliance between Germany, Italy, and Japan," he said.

"If ever a clear warning was given to any nation that the aggressors are contemplating a future assault upon it that warning was given to the people of the United States by the recently announced agreement of Berlin."

Heated Debate Ends in Favor Of New Plan

Vote Is 17-13; Monday Chosen For Future Sessions

By Philip Carden

The Student Legislature last night passed the campus organization bill 17 to 13 after more than an hour of heated debate.

Under the bill the campus will be divided geographically into 400 discussion groups of about ten members as an advisory organization to the president of the student body to give all the students an opportunity to have a direct voice in making decisions of student government.

Dave Morrison, president of the student body, who appointed the committee which proposed the bill, addressed the legislature briefly giving the history of the bill and the committee's reasons for proposing it.

Discussion was opened by Terry Sanford, ways and means chairman, who said that it was being reported by the committee without comment and explained some of the arguments which came up for and against it in the committee's meetings.

Create Interest in Government
Proponents of the bill last night pointed out the need for some means of creating more interest among the students in their government and said that the chances of the organization plan satisfying that need made it "worth a trial."

The principal argument against the measure was that it "probably won't work." Fear of regimentation, which was encountered both by the ways and means committee and the organization committee which proposed the bill, was not brought up by the legislators.

Greek Has Word For It In Next Playmaker Show

If it "sounds like Greek" to you when the curtain rises on the third act of Saroyan's "Love's Old Sweet Song," opening Wednesday in the Playmakers theater, your ears won't be deceiving you. You'll be hearing Greek, the real thing.

It will be spoken by Pan Athas, who has every reason in the world to know how it should be spoken. He is a native of Greece and lived there for many years. Now living in Chapel Hill with his family, Mr. Athas is doing historical research at the University.

Mr. Athas became a member of the cast in an entirely unexpected manner. Sanford Reece was originally cast as the Greek-American grandfather who had never learned to speak the language of his adopted country. Mr. Reece had a smattering of Greek but not enough to read correctly all that the part demands. So he called for help on Mr. Athas, who read the lines so well that Reece suggested that he take the part. He had never acted before. (Continued on page 2, column 5)

United States Marine Band Concerts Received Here by Large Audience

All-American Music Features First Program In Student Entertainment Series

The United States Marine Band, presenting the first program of this year's student entertainment series, played yesterday afternoon and last night to two large and appreciative audiences in Memorial hall.

This is the band's first concert in Chapel Hill since 1929, when the concert was held in the then brand-new field house.

The entire program in consistency with director Captain William Santelmann's persistent promotion of music by native composers was "All-American." It included the Southland's "Dixie," properly recognized by applause, and concluded with the assembly-singing of "The Star-Spangled" (Continued on page 4, column 5)
