

Carolina Invades Fordham Territory Today

1,000 UNC Students In Gotham Today; Grid Graph Will Keep Campus Posted

Kyser To Lead Carolina Band At Half Time

NBC Network To Broadcast Pep Rally

By bus, train, automobile, airplane, and boat, 1,000 Carolina students poured into New York City this morning to witness the gridiron clash between intersectional football rivals, Carolina and Fordham university, to take part in this morning's parade down Park avenue, and the NBC coast-to-coast broadcast of the pre-game pep rally.

Kay Kyser, Carolina's popular maestro-alumnus, will be on hand at the rally to lead the students in sending his famous Yackety-yell over the nation's air waves and at the game to lead the University band in its "between halves" marching.

Police Escort

Mounted police will escort the cheering throng of Southern invaders from the Waldorf-Astoria hotel down aristocratic Park avenue to the Vanderbilt theater, scene of the rally which goes out to the nation at 11 o'clock. Rebel cheerleaders, Charlie Nelson and Jane Rumsey will lead the turn-out in a shouted voicing of the theme of the day—"beat Fordham."

The entire Red Network of the National Broadcasting company is collaborating the sponsors of the celebration, the University club, to carry the sound of Tar Heel voices to the listening public.

Carolina Blitzkreig

The smart Empire room of the Waldorf, featuring "the ole professor" Kay Kyser and his "le's dance" orchestra, plays host tonight to the Carolina blitzkreig. A special floor show has been arranged, but it is as yet indefinite as to whether Fish Worley will stage his square dance as planned.

Ferebee Taylor, president of the University club has been in the northern metropolis since Thursday, making final arrangements for this gala day.

Full Day

The special train left Carrboro station last night at 6:45 and will pull into Pennsylvania station at approximately 8:15 this morning bearing the vaunted Wolfmen and their spirited following. It will wait in New York long enough tonight so that its occupants may take in the North (Continued on page 4, column 2)

Willkie Supporter Takes DTH to Task

When the DAILY TAR HEEL staff began work yesterday afternoon it found a sheet of yellow paper posted on the office bulletin board. At the top of the page was pinned a satirical article about the campus Willkie club which was clipped from yesterday's paper. Beneath it were typed the following remarks:

There is a Willkie club on the campus! We hold our meetings every Monday at 5:15 in Graham Memorial. I'm sure Mr. Worley is aware of the fact. We like publicity!

And we have been trying hard to get our name on the front page of the TAR HEEL for a long time. So far we have rated only a few lines on the back page—maybe this is the reason very few know of our existence. We can't help it if the Dems do such foolishly spectacular things that you feel compelled to smear them on the front page. We have about fifty paid members!

In a recent membership campaign in the Y we enlisted the support of at least 250 interested persons.

We picked up our mail last night—and it was not in the waste paper basket.

Play-By-Play Description Starts At 2:30

Lettermen Present Graph of Game In Memorial Hall

A play-by-play grid-graph of the Carolina-Fordham game this afternoon in New York will provide students remaining in Chapel Hill a near-eye-witness account of each play as it occurs, beginning with the opening will be staged in Memorial hall with admission 25 cents. Doors open at 1:30.

Sponsored by the Monogram club, the grid-graph will describe each play offensively and defensively as it happens. The grid-graph is a miniature playing field, showing players of both teams as they line up. Each play is diagrammed on the graph, on instruction from a Western Union operator who sends play-by-play from the Polo grounds.

No Broadcast

Since the Carolina-Fordham game is not to be broadcast, the grid-graph will be the only medium through which students may follow the contest. Sid Sadoff, president of the Monogram club, has said that lettermen are sponsoring the program in order to give the student body this chance to follow the Tar Heels.

Because of the cost of renting the direct wire, it has been impossible to admit students free, and although the Tulane game was broadcast last year, 900 students saw the play-by-play (Continued on page 4, column 1)

Stay-At-Homers Will Celebrate All Day Today

All the unfortunates who are holding down the home fort this weekend will have an all-day workout tomorrow attending the Open House in Graham Memorial.

Activities will start at 11 o'clock and will continue for 12 hours. Fish Worley, director of Graham Memorial, urges that "everyone bring dates and attend the house - warming."

A broadcast of the pep rally from New York will start the program at 11 o'clock this morning. A recorded program of college songs and marches will be featured at one o'clock.

The broadcast of the Fordham football game, if any, will be heard at 2 o'clock, and the results of other games will be posted throughout the afternoon.

Fun at Night

The evening program, starting at 7 o'clock and continuing until 11, will include bridge, rummy, and music in the small lounge round and square dancing in the banquet hall; checkers and chess in the Grail room, and newspapers and magazines in the main lounge.

Even the ping pong and pool enthusiasts have not been neglected—they will have their innings from 10 to 11 tonight in the game room.

Danziger's Adds New Room to Delight Campus Pastry Lovers and Linguists

By Philip Carden

Danziger's has more booths now. And if you can read all the writing on the walls of the new room you will be presented with a box of the store's choicest candy.

Edward G. Danziger, Austrian immigrant to Chapel Hill, and his family worked all summer building and decorating the addition. They built everything but the furniture and upholstered that.

Decorating the walls are slogans and proverbs in 18 different languages. "God Bless America," with a statue of liberty and a flag to decorate it, is the easiest to read. It's in English. And Arabic, Too

Russian, Czechoslovakian, Greek, Arabic, French, German, Latin, Polish, Dutch, Swiss, are all represented. The Arabic looks like another wall decoration.

He'll take you around and translate them for you, except for the Arabic which he doesn't know himself, but that won't help you win the bon bons. The catch is that you have to read and pronounce them.

The rear of the room is designed after the most popular style of Austria (Continued on page 4, column 6)

ALL-AMERICAN PAUL SEVERIN will be on the receiving end of the Lalanne-to-Severin combination today when the Tar Heels throw their aerial circus against Fordham.

Berlin, London, All Greece, Suffer Heavy Aerial Attacks

RAF Carries War To Southern Italy

By United Press

BERLIN, Nov. 2.—(Saturday)—The heart of Berlin was rocked by crashing shellfire last night when bombing British planes in one of their earliest nighttime attacks caught thousands of people in central streets and sent them plunging for air raid shelters.

The RAF bombs caused "a number of dead and wounded in residential districts" after an earlier siege of the Nazi-held Dutch city of Amsterdam where 19 wounded German soldiers were killed in a bombed hospital according to an official Nazi communique early today.

ATHENS — (Saturday) — Italy turned the fury of an "aerial blitzkrieg" upon all Greece yesterday in 24 violent bombing attacks that killed and wounded nearly 250 persons and blasted five important ports and cities, an official communique said early today.

Tons of bombs smashed upon the port and airport of Athens at Salonika bombed six times in as many hours on the central city of Larissa and the islands of Crete and Corfu.

Mussolini unleashed his heavy aerial assault, it was claimed, after Greek mountain troops in major victories hurled back tank and infantry assault on the northern front.

Greece's tiny air force was said to have struck heavy blows at the invaders on the fourth day of the war on the ancient soil of Greece, bombing and disorganizing marching columns of Fascist troops, airdrome and other objectives in Albania.

A strong Italian drive led by tanks was said to have been hurled back from its objective of the fortified Greek town and base of Janina 35 (Continued on page 4, column 2)

Political Duel Flames Again In Chapel Hour

Supporters of the "solid South" nearly raised the roof of Memorial hall during Chapel period yesterday when several willing Willkieites tried to explain to the Roosevelt rooters just why Wendell L. Willkie will be the next President of the United States.

Maybe the campus Republicans slept late yesterday morning, or perhaps the freshmen have an aversion to "Hoosiers," but at any rate the Willkie supporters were woefully outnumbered.

The fellow who introduced the opposing sides to the belligerent audience tried to be impartial. He argued that if anyone had to give vent to booning or cheering, it should be done at the end of each speech.

First Speaker Gets By

The first speaker escaped unscathed. The second was only challenged once. Other speakers dared to face the crowd and they too made it—but it was close.

There were but two more speakers to be heard. The freshmen were finding it hard to keep quiet. A Willkieite advanced uncertainly to the platform. He started sailing through his prepared speech. He was reading it exceptionally well, wagging a finger to (Continued on page 4, column 5)

Former Carolina Students Marry

Announcement was made here today of the marriage of Miss Ruth Worth Crowell of Newton and Woodrow Ferrel Leafer of Fayetteville Sunday, October 27.

Mrs. Leafer is the daughter of Mrs. A. H. Crowell of Newton. She received her A. B. degree from the University here in 1937 and her M. A. degree in 1940. At present she is acting as research aide for a national resources planning board study being conducted in High Point.

When an undergraduate at Carolina she was a member of the DAILY TAR HEEL staff. She is the only one ever to have served as night editor for an issue of the paper.

Leafer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Isador Leafer of New York City. He attended Carolina and New York university. He is now chief announcer at radio station WFNC, Fayetteville. They will be at home in Fayetteville after January 1, 1941.

Rams' Sixty-Minute Team Threatens Heels in Air

By Leonard Lobred

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Eleven 60-minute gridironers from Fordham university, the only New York school ever to beat Carolina either here or at Chapel Hill, will attempt to imitate the 1937 Rose Hill club and its "Seven Blocks of Granite" this afternoon when Carolina's flying Tar Heels sweep into the Polo grounds to help

UNC Students Hurt In Wreck Going to Game

Three Escape Injury When Car Overtakes On Delaware Highway

By Bucky Harward

Three University students were injured and three were unhurt in an automobile accident in Wilmington, Delaware, yesterday. They were enroute to see the Fordham-Carolina game in New York City.

Jerome Shack, driver of the auto, and Robert Taylor were given first aid by state police. James Byrd was taken to a Delaware hospital for treatment for a head injury. Those who escaped injury were Ted Royall, Mac Burnett and another student whose name has not yet been obtained.

Shack Fined

The automobile was being driven by Shack when the accident occurred. Local authorities imposed a $10 fine for reckless driving. No information is as yet available as to whether the car was in condition to continue to New York.

The group of six left Chapel Hill at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Shack, a junior from New York City, lives on the airport road. Two weeks ago he received severe cuts about his head when the steering gear of a car he was driving jammed and he ran into a tree.

Music Composer

Bob Taylor, junior from New York City, rooms in 3 Battle. Sophomore Jim Byrd of Chadburn, N. C., at 301 Pritchard avenue. He was one of the two freshmen who last year wrote the scores for the original songs in the Sound and Fury production of "One More Spring."

Ted Royall, freshman, also from New York, lives at the same address as Byrd. Sophomore Mac Burnett from New York roomed in town beyond the University laundry plant and worked with sound effects in the campus radio studio last year.

It was not known late last night whether or not the boys were able to continue their trip to New York. From reports, the car was wrecked too badly for further use.

stage a battle between two outstanding teams on the bounce-back from defeats last weekend. The kick-off is at 2 o'clock.

Without the undefeated record and build-up that usually accompanies Carolina's visits to the Big City, the Tar Heels are fielding an eleven known at home as one of the most versatile ever turned out at Chapel Hill, and are out to halt the baffling aerial game, adopted this year by the Rams, which was good enough to bury Tulane two weekends ago and hold out against St. Mary's last week until the very last minute.

Flashy Running

Carolina is meeting again one of those toughest-we've-met teams—an eleven that is a 60-minute threat in the air and one that showed in its appearance two weeks ago against Tulane that it is powerful enough to take over competition of any class. In that engagement as in all others, the Rams showed a flashy running attack and a passing attack so deceptive yet accurate that pass receivers pulled down aerials regardless of the position of the defenders.

Sleepy Jim Crowley, one of Rockne's Four Horsemen at Notre Dame, is handicapped this season by a scarcity of reserve talent, but has made up for this deficiency by training his veterans to handle the pigskin adeptly. The first team club is a 60-minute club that gets help only toward the end of (Continued on page 3, column 2)

Junior Committee Hopes Big Crowd Will Pass Budget

The junior class executive committee hopes that it can solve the problem of the ever-elusive quorum. The group has already approved the class budget, but the vote of the class is necessary before it becomes law.

Charlie Wood, swing band leader, is the committee's ace-in-the-hole. He will swing out next Wednesday morning in the hope of luring prospective voters to the junior class meeting. If present expectations are realized, Gerrard hall should be jammed with juniors eager to pass their budget for the coming year and—perhaps to hear Charlie's band play.

The executive committee, headed by Ervin Bowie, will meet Monday night at 7:30 in the small lounge of Graham (Continued on page 4, column 3)

Paul Green's 'The Highland Call' Ends Fayetteville Run Tonight

Flora Macdonald Epic Closes After Three-Week Run

"The Highland Call," younger sister to Paul Green's "Lost Colony," ends its three week run tonight in Fayetteville after playing to college, high school, and grammar school students from all over North Carolina. The epic of Flora Macdonald and the revolutionary era in North Carolina has been praised by educators, historians and statesmen for its educational and patriotic values. D. Bradford Fearing, president of the Roanoke Island Historical association, has said that it is "one of the finest plays I have ever seen. It deserves to become a national institution."

Dr. Frank Graham, president of the Greater University, after seeing the production, said, "Not only every Scot of the Cape Fear region and every North Carolinian but also every American would do well to see Mr. Green's stirring drama. It is not strange that it has been seen and enjoyed by people from 34 different states."

Special buses have been chartered to bring groups of students to the (Continued on page 4, column 2)
