

White Phantoms Defeat State College 47-26

J. DONALD BUDGE and ALICE MARBLE are well-known as the best man and woman tennis players in the world. They are also well-known for this dinner-party pose. They will be seen in a tennis exhibition with Bill Tilden and Miss Mary Hardwick in Woolen gymnasium February 5, which is Student-Faculty day.

State's Techlets Hand Frosh Cagers Initial Defeat of Season, 36 to 28

Tar Babies Match Point For Point Until Last Half

RALEIGH, Jan. 21. — While Horace "Bones" McKinney accounted for 13 points and pushed them in when they were most-needed, State's frosh cagers broke a 12-12 halftime score and went ahead in the last eight minutes to hand the Carolina Tar Babies their first setback of the season. The count was 36-28.

The Tar Babies appeared very much in the ball game, matching the Wolflets point for point until Benny Steiner broke a 20-20 deadlock with a set shot, his first, and McKinney and company increased the lead to 34-28—a six-point margin—with only 2:20 left to play.

Carolina was at a loss beside State's taller performers, particularly the six feet six inch McKinney, and also Forwards Cooper and Magee, who used their height to advantage at taking the ball away off the backboard and in scrambles.

The score was tied six times throughout the course of the ball-game before State started its last-minute rally that carried through to the end. The count was tied in the first half at 3-3, 5-5, 10-10, and 12-12. After the halftime intermission, the Tar Babies knotted it at 15-15 and 20-20. But at 20-20 the Wolflets pulled away.

Bones McKinney fouled out late in the game but only after tallying 13 points, most of them on hook shots copied after the style of George Glamack. McKinney is State's sole survivor of the once-great but now-depleted Durham high club of last year.

None of the Tar Babies was able to do anything consistently enough to threaten State's lead at any time. Carolina was always the team catching up from behind, but didn't have the punch when State began its final push.

Following that 20-20 deadlock State gained its longest lead—eight points. Ellis Freedman, guard, sank two setshots to lower the margin to six points but McKinney and Steiner raised it again to eight.

The Tar Babies' scoring was divided among almost all of those who played, with Don Wilson, high-man in previous competition, held to five points. Ellis Freedman led floor play with Wilson.

Co-Captains High Scorers For Cagemen

By Leonard Lobred

RALEIGH, Jan. 21 — Co-captains George Glamack with 21 and Jimmy Howard with 11 points tonight scored enough to gain victory over N. C. State, and while other White Phantom cagers contributed to the point-making, Carolina defeated the Red Terrors, 47-26, for the second win in Big Five competition and the fourth victory over a Southern conference rival.

The two co-captains provided almost all that was needed in topping the Wolfpack. Glamack, it can be said simply, played under the backboards the first half—shooting and nabbing State's shots—and Howard led the Phantoms so hard on the floor that both quints had trouble keeping up with him. By the end of the half State had a grand total of seven points while Carolina had 23.

Glamack was not well-received at first because of the zeal of State college fans who look to Bones McKinney for greater things than George has produced, and he was booed throughout most of the first half and until he began to sink his hook shot with such amazing perfection that the State college lads began to let their jaws drop open.

Howard was never better. His set shots worked from almost everywhere on the floor, and he sank goals from mid-court in piling up his 11-point total.

Coach Bill Lange sent in 14 Phantoms before the rout was completed, with Wray Lewis, Roy Snyder and Reid Suggs gaining their varsity baptisms and other reserves such as George McCachren, Ed Shytle and Ed Antolini taking part in the activities also.

The ball game was never any contest, for Paul Severin sank a foul and Glamack pushed in a hook shot in the first few minutes to start off the Phantoms. State pulled to 9-5 with seven minutes of action gone, and remained at that five-point mark for 11 minutes while Carolina piled up the count to 19-5.

Despite the Terrors' awakening in the second period, they never got closer than 13 points. Roy Cromartie, State college ace in all previous games, was held to two foul shots, and Tabscott appeared as the high scorer with 10 points on five goals pushed in the

Boxing Team Will Try To Beat Ten Year Jinx

Tar Heels Show Quiet Confidence In Ability to Win

By Abby Cohen

When the members of the boxing team go into the ring against Virginia Saturday night they will try to shake off a jinx that has been clinging to Carolina mittmen for the last ten years.

For the last decade the Cavaliers have been irritatingly consistent in defeating the Tar Heels in boxing. Even when Carolina teams in the past drew superlatives from observers and established themselves as heavy favorites, the traditionally strong Virginia aggregation always came through with a stunning victory. Last year was no different. Everyone thought the Tar Heels certain to win, but they went down to painful defeat in a match replete with freakish bouts.

This year Coach Ronman's men are making no foolhardy claims but there is an aura of quiet confidence down at the boxing room these days that reminds one of the spirit displayed by

Continued Failure Of Men To Appear Worries Quinlan

The deplorable attendance of the wrestling team which annually sets in around this time has struck the mat team with tell-tale blows, as less than two dozen grapplers put in an appearance yesterday afternoon, causing Coach Quinlan to furiously knit his brow, and mutter dire threats against the offenders.

Although the comparative emptiness of the room was partially due to the fact that the current flu wave has taken its toll, Quinlan started his gradually mounting tirade against the slackers with a mild statement that he "wished to see all those men who are, or suppose themselves to be connected in any manner with the varsity or freshman squads, so that we can ascertain for ourselves whether or not they are still existent."

The afternoon was devoted to conditioning exercises and practice bouts among the various assembled perpetrators of the grunt and groan fashion. Several new freshmen have shown willingness to associate themselves with the sport, and are currently working out with the squad.

The coming meet with Duke, scheduled for Saturday afternoon, was indefinite, as the Durham school will be engaged in final exams this week, and they have indicated a desire to avoid meeting the Blue and White forces, at least for the present. But the final announcement will not be made until this afternoon.

Leading Contender For Tennis Berth Leaves School

The outlook for the 1941 tennis season became considerably dimmer when Coach John Kenfield recently announced that Don Manchester, No. 1 on the freshman team last year, had left school because of financial difficulties.

Winner of the annual fall tournament last year, Manchester was a leading contender for the varsity berths left open by the graduation of Co-captains Charles Rider and Red Rawlings.

In addition to his singles playing ability Manchester was an outstanding doubles player and Coach Kenfield had planned on teaming him with Co-captain Zan Carver for the coming season. With Manchester gone, Coach Kenfield will probably have to choose from one of the other outstanding members of last year's freshman team to combine with Carver.

What with ineligibility threatening several of the candidates for the varsity, positions on the team appear to be wide open. From this early date it is pretty definite that Carver, Harris Everett, and Ham Anthony will all see action in the spring. Aside from these three, however, the rest of the line-up is very uncertain.

Fencers Practice For Exhibition In Winston-Salem

With their first two matches marked up as decisive wins, the Tar Heels swordsmen are practicing this week for an exhibition match with the Winston-Salem Men's club.

The fencing team is planning an elaborate program for Saturday, when the Latin-American students will be special guests and everything will be done to help them understand what is happening. A public address system will be installed and the spectators will have no trouble understanding the match.

With Irwin Ebel back after a short stay in bed, a round-robin in foil is again necessary. Lorne Payne, who started in Ebel's place Saturday, won all three of his matches. Tom Deering, who has yet to lose a match this season, and Howie Imbrey are also fighting to hold their positions. Jim McDuffie, by virtue of his excellent showing against Virginia, will also figure in the round-robin.

Coach R. B. Lawson was more than pleased with the results of the Virginia match. "The team is coming along very well and I would like to praise not only the nine starting men but also the substitutes who did so well," he said. "If our start is an indication of our future success, we certainly should do well," he continued.

The Winston-Salem team is led by Glenn Shermer, a three-weapon man who has been coaching the team with a good deal of success. Fencing has become very popular in Winston-Salem and Julian Day, who adds managerial duties to his work as fencer, assured the Tar Heels that the visitors will have a well-balanced team which, although comparatively new to competition, shows a good deal of promise.

Dolphins Face Virginia Saturday In Third Meet

Cavalier Team Composed Mostly Of Sophomores

Captain Steve Clarke, Virginia's ace sprinter, will lead a group of tested sophomores here Saturday against the Blue Dolphins for the third meet of the season for both teams.

Virginia and Carolina have broken even in two previous matches and are meeting in the rubber contest of their young rivalry. In their meets

The varsity swimming team is requested to report for practice this afternoon at 4 o'clock or as soon after as possible.

this season the Cavaliers have lost to the Navy, who beat the Tar Heels, and have defeated VPI, 49-26. The Dolphins trimmed William and Mary in the season's opener before the Christmas holidays.

Virginia has the unique distinction of being one of three teams to defeat Carolina in its home pool and will be seeking its second victory over the Tar Heels Saturday. The Cavaliers licked Dick Jamerson's men the first year Carolina had swimming—1939—by a score of 45 to 30, but the Tar Heels got the best of Virginia by the same score last year.

Ray Heidloff, Virginia's coach, had almost to start from scratch in building his team this year, but has been very successful with his four lettermen and a large group of sophomores who established a good record as freshmen last year.

Captain Clarke, Braxton Bryan, Otto Betz and Dick Vermillion are the returning lettermen. But against VPI in the first meeting of the season, the sophomores shoved all the lettermen except Vermillion and Clarke into the background with their surprising performances and it will be these same sophomores that the Dolphins will have to watch Saturday.

Dave Brewster and Robert Hershner are promising men in the dashes,

Morrison Prepares For Boston Meet

Dave Morrison, once again, was big news along the track front yesterday. Preparing for the Bishop Cheverus run at Boston Saturday, Morrison breezed through the three-quarter mile test in the near-record time of 3:06.4, ahead of Dick Van Wagoner and Henry Branch.

With Jim Wawter setting the pace, the other two relay men of the Carolina team, ran the 660. Vawter breezed through in the good time of 1:24.6.

Thursday night, Morrison will leave for Boston, where he will run in the Garden, meeting Les MacMitchell of N. Y. U., Campbell Kane of Indiana U., Jim Kehoe, former middle distance star at the University of Maryland, and Andy Nidnig of Manhattan.

Swimming Coaches Make New Ruling For League Marks

By a vote of the Southern conference swimming coaches, records which better conference marks made in a dual swimming meet between two circuit schools will be recognized as league records, Dick Jamerson, Blue Dolphin mentor, announced yesterday.

It will be necessary to delay official affirmation of the marks thus established until after the annual conference meet, however. If a time in the conference meet is no better than a mark made during the preceding season, the conference will recognize the dual meet mark.

The new ruling, retroactive from the first of the year gives the Tar Heels another long course record—the 300-yard medley relay—which was made by Roy Gibson, Bob Ousley and Whit Lees in the William and Mary meet before Christmas. The trio swam 7:42.3, bettering the conference mark of 3:47 by :04.7, set by Duke.

This ruling is entirely new in conference athletic circles and probably will cause the short course records to be lower than usual.

Eight schools in the conference with swimming teams participated in the voting. The schools were Duke, Carolina, State, William and Mary, Virginia Tech, VMI, Clemson and Washington and Lee.

Ball Boys Wanted For Tennis Show

All members of the varsity and freshman tennis teams and all students interested in being ball boys for the Marble-Budge-Hardwick-Tilden tennis match here February 5 are asked to meet in Kenfield's Sport Shop tonight at 7:30.
