Ringmen Fight Navy Mittmen In Annapolis

With the last practice session scheduled for this afternoon, Coach Mike Ronman's boxers will go through final workouts and entrain for Annapolis where they will battle with Navy tomorrow night.

Coach Ronman's face took on a worried look yesterday as he sent the mittmen through sparring matches. The anxious expression was not due to his men's performances, who have been showing up well in drills this week; rather it was because of the profound respect Ronman holds for the Middies' ringmen. Always strong, the Sailors this year are reputed to have their strongest team in years. In view of this report, the coach claims he is not being pessimistic when he says the best he is hoping for is a draw.

Coach Counting on Hughes

One hundred and twenty-pounder Tom Hughes continued to shine in yesterday's drill and looks more impressive every day. Gaining confidence, Hughes has shown a potent right-hand which hitherto has been unknown in his fighting. With this improvement, Coach Ronman is looking to Hughes to earn a point for the Tar Heels tomorrow night.

In an outstanding sparring bout, Jack Johnston matched blow for blow with Milt Harris, the regular 135-pounder. A member of last year's varsity, Johnston has been giving a good account of himself of late and is pressing keenly for Harris' berth.

Ronman will use the same eight men that fought against Virginia, with the exception of Grady Britt.

Probable lineup for the Midshipmen will be: Murray Vager, 120; Bob Martin, 127; Dick O'Brien, 135; Buzzy Betzel, 145; Bill Peterson, 165; Bill Chip, 175; John Hebron, heavyweight.

VETERAN MIKE BOBBITT will have a tough battle on his hands when the Tar Heels meet the Midshipmen at Annapolis Saturday night. The "Mighty Mike" meets Navy's Bill Chip in the 175-pound feature.

Wrestlers Off For VMI Battle In Lexington

Scheduled to tangle with the cadets of VMI tomorrow evening at Lexington, the wrestling teams, both freshman and varsity, will board the bus this afternoon at one o'clock to start the trek to the Institute.

Tapering off exercises and several last minute trial bouts occupied the time of the matmen yesterday afternoon. Bill Somervell and Gordon DeLoach, waging a strong battle all year for the 145-pound slot, took the mat during the afternoon, with DeLoach coming off with a slight margin. In the 165-pound class, Sam Gregory and Winston Broadfoot, both lettermen, fought, and these two, with Steve Forrest, will divide the duties in the 165- and 175-pound divisions Saturday.

McKeever Has Best Record

In the light weight class, both Hamlin and Lambeth will make the trip. Lambeth fought against Duke last week, and turned in a fine performance, while Hamlin, although dropping the decision to Navy, nevertheless made an impressive showing. It will be a toss up between the two to determine who will face the cadets. Hobie McKeever, with the best record on the team, having amassed a total of 15 points for the Tar Heels, will be in the 128-pound position for Carolina.

Tillett Will Fight

Charlie Tillett, who has shown great improvement since his opening defeat at the hands of Davidson, will fight at 136 pounds. Roger Weil, bothered all week with a cut over his eye, will undoubtedly be ready to occupy his regular 155 pound spot. Don Torrey will be in the unlimited division.

The freshmen will engage the VMI plebes in combat as a preliminary to the varsity bouts, and it will be the second match of the year for the Tar Babies, who have previously handed the Davidson Kittens a setback. Cook

VIRGINIA TECH presents Julius Rubin and Guy Crawford, its two high scorers, tonight against the White Phantoms at 8:30. Rubin is a forward, Crawford a guard.

UNC Favored To Overcome Tech Cagers

By Leonard Lobred

A Virginia Tech quint composed of two seniors and three sophomores, winner of only two games this winter, plays Carolina's White Phantoms in Woollen gymnasium tonight at 8:30, following a freshman game with Oak Ridge.

Although the Techmen have lost all four starts against collegiate opposition, they are supposedly rising in potentialities, especially after their last start against Washington and Lee. The Generals whipped Virginia Tech, 41-29, the first time out, and were held to 37-30 in the Techmen's last game.

Three sophomores have shown enough ability to push Captain Keith Haff, forward, off the starting five. Julius Rubin, Guy Crawford and Frank Montgomery are leading the scoring on the squad, with Center Tom Ingram trailing. Rubin has 70 points, Crawford 60, Montgomery 58, and Ingram 48.

Phantoms Look Good

The Phantoms showed enough spirit and excellence yesterday in practice, after a day of rest, to threaten seriously. After an active scrimmage in which all of the Phantoms took part, the entire group was recovered enough to play tonight.

Hank Pessar, whose defensive work on Wake Forest's Herb Cline last Tuesday was a highlight of Carolina's showing, appeared slated for continued starting assignments and George Paine, sophomore, seemed ready for more action. Ed Shytle also looked particularly good.

Nelson and Severin Ready

Joe Nelson, sophomore forward, took part in practice and is ready to return to the line-up. Paul Severin, although still slightly affected by a serious cold, is able to play but not too much.

Virginia Tech opened its season by topping Langley Field, 42-41, in its first engagement, but lost to Navy Training, 39-38, Navy Apprentice, 41-39, and topped Navy Training again, 67-38. William and Mary beat Tech, 54-51, W&L did it, 41-29, Virginia did it, 49-35, and W&L again 37-30.

Swordsmen Ready For W&M Match

Carolina's undefeated fencing team meets the William and Mary swordsmen tomorrow in a match which will decide the supremacy of the South. The winner of this match will enter the South Atlantic Tournament as the favorite.

William and Mary has been turning out top-notch fencing teams for several years. The present team boasts two veterans leading the attack against the Tar Heels in an attempt to bring about the Carolina swordsmen's first defeat. Jerry Glassman and Dave Meyer, co-captains, were both members of last year's team which scored a 19-8 victory over the Carolina squad. Glassman looked like an "army tank" plowing through the enemy when he tramped over the entire Tar Heel foils team without a setback.

Tar Babies Seek Victory Over Oak Ridge Academy

Gregory Schultz Now Diving Star For Baby Dolphins

When the Tar Heel Baby Dolphins swim Duke's Blue Imps tomorrow afternoon in Durham, one of the many dependables performing for the Tar Babies will be Gregory Schultz, diver and freestyler.

The Tar Heel swimming team has little to fear in the way of divers during the next four years, for Schultz will probably be able to carry on in the same convincing way in which Don Nicholson and Johnny Feuchtenberger, varsity divers, have already demonstrated.

Tagged as the most likely looking prospect in the diving event that Carolina has had, Schultz has worked hard since the start of swimming and now ranks as the No. 1 diver and the fourth best freestyler on the frosh team.

Casey Likes Him

His coach, Ralph Casey, goes even further than calling him the best prospect ever to come here and says that he is the best diver he has ever coached.

Casey considers him superior to Buddy Crone, high school youth of Goldsboro, who placed sixth in the National junior diving event last summer. He bases his statement on Schultz's ability to get more height in his dives than Crone. Plenty of height is a primary requisite for a well-executed dive.

Two other diving abilities of Schultz's are also most helpful in aiding him to execute properly the difficult dives he accomplishes.

Layout Dives Good

His layout dives are considered to be among his chief aids in securing a high score in a meet, and his hurdle step, the last step a diver takes before leaving the board, is tops.

Like nearly all divers, his optional dives are his chief weakness, but they have improved in the past several days and he promises to develop into a superior diver before he leaves Carolina.

Schultz attended high school at Ross high school in Fremont, Ohio, before coming to Carolina, and was a standout on the high school tank squad. He placed third in the diving event in the Ohio interscholastic meet last summer. A teammate of his captured first place and later on in the summer he defeated the Ohio high school champion.

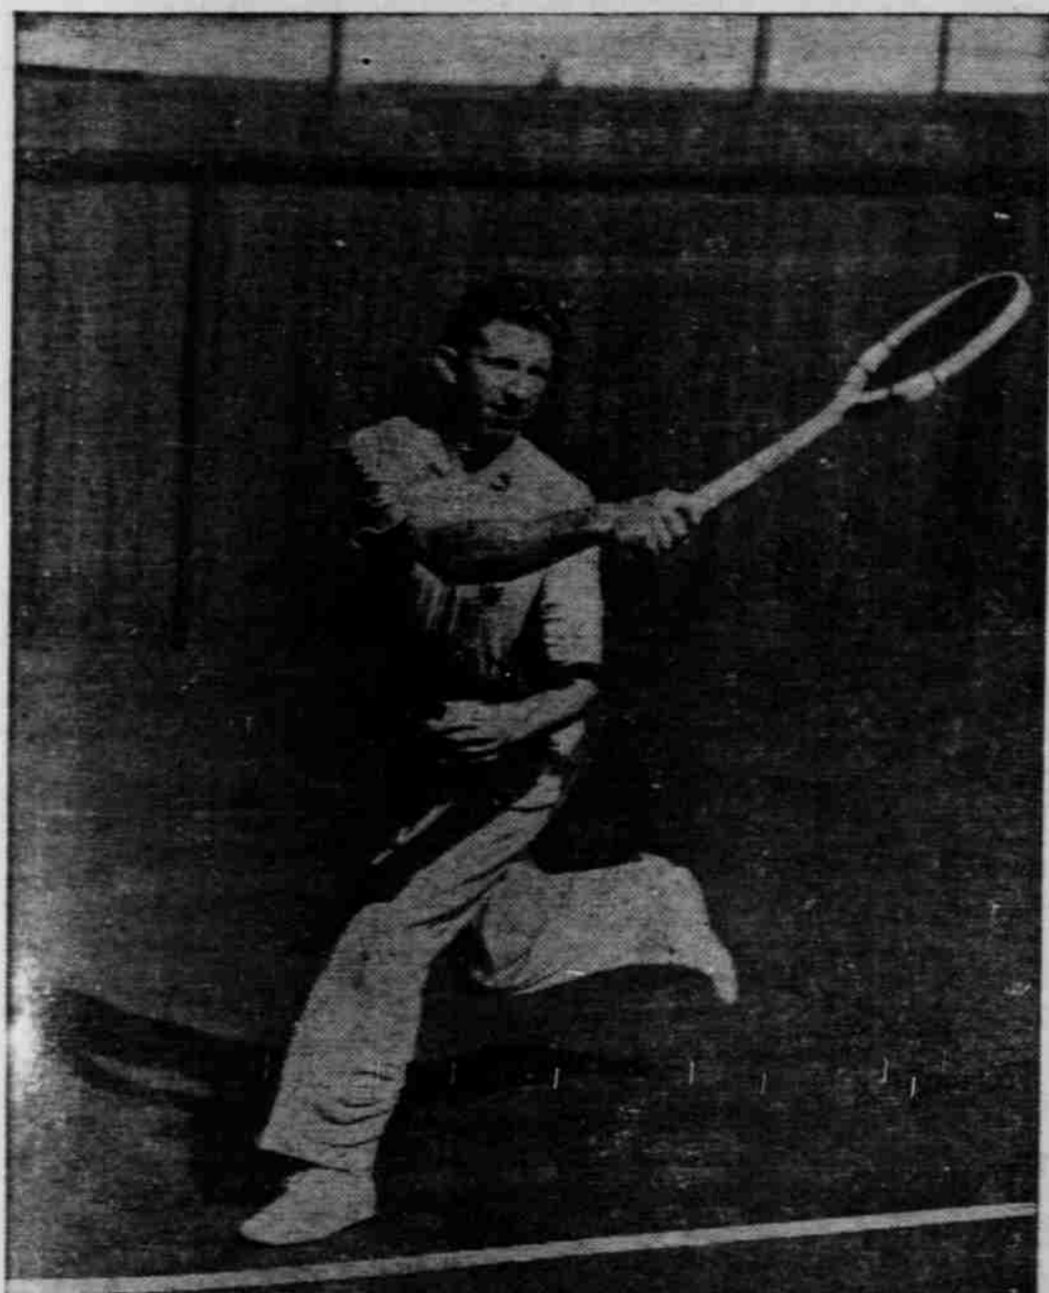

Against Duke tomorrow Schultz will do double work when he will swim on the freestyle relay team and also handle the diving event for the Tar Babies.

Don Budge Boasts Greater Combined Record Than Any Other Athlete In World Of Sport

J. DONALD BUDGE appeared in Woollen gymnasium year before last to play Ellsworth Vines and last spring to play Carolina's Archie Henderson. This is one of his famous poses. He plays here Wednesday on the Alice Marble-Bill Tilden-Mary Hardwick tour.

Tilden Still Tops In Exhibitions With Top-notch

Donald Budge, world tennis ruler, who meets Big Bill Tilden here Wednesday in one of three feature matches, has perhaps the best combination record in amateur and pro competition of any athlete in any sport today.

During the past two years Budge has retained the world's professional singles championship against such tennis brilliants as Ellsworth Vines, Big Bill Tilden, and Fred Perry. Before turning pro he was the acknowledged amateur champion.

Star of Davis Cup Matches

Budge's performance in Davis Cup competition in 1937 and 1938 was amazing. He won 10 consecutive singles matches without a defeat and teamed with Gene Mako to win four of five doubles matches. Included in the string of triumphs were four singles victories over Australian opponents and two each over foes from England, Japan and Germany. Budge's victories made it possible for the United States to win the Davis Cup championship in both years.

Other amateur championships won by Budge included the U. S. singles title in 1937-38, U. S. doubles championship (with Gene Mako) in 1936-37-38, U. S. mixed doubles championship (with Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabryan) in 1937, and (with Alice Marble) in 1938, British singles championship 1937-38, French singles title in 1938.

Tilden Still Tops

On this current tour, during which the troupe is playing in 65 cities and towns in 36 states, Budge is still displaying the brilliant tennis that enables him to retain the title of world's leading player. But the red-head is having his hands full with the amazing 47-year-old Tilden, who is still regarded a formidable opponent for him.

A near-capacity crowd is expected for the three matches which get under way at 8:15 in Woollen gymnasium. Alice Marble, the world's leading woman player, meets Mary Hardwick, English champion in the first singles match, and Budge and Tilden clash in the second singles contest.

Duke Blows Four-Point Lead, Loses To State College, 37-36

Ahead At Half, Blue Devils Miss Scoring Chances

DURHAM, Jan. 30—Ahead by one point at halftime, Duke university's basketball team collapsed in the late minutes tonight and lost to N. C. State college, 37-36.

Duke had its big opportunity in the last minutes when State began to freeze the ball with two minutes and 15 seconds of play remaining. The Blue Devils missed on two chances to tie or go ahead. First, Eddie Shokes missed a free throw, and then when a jump ball was called, Duke took time out to figure out a play.

On the toss-up, under the State basket, Chuck Holley batted the ball down to the Duke goal, Cy Valasek broke ahead of all the Red Terrors and with an easy shot at the basket, muffed a lay-up shot. State recovered the ball off the backboard and could hardly move to the center line when the gun ended the game.

Duke went almost five minutes before breaking into the scoring, and slowly moved the count to 20-19 at the half. Bill Mock fouled out before the end of the half, and Holley had three personal fouls in the first period. In the entire game State had three men working under the burden of three personals, with a total of 30 being called during the evening, but only Mock was evicted.
