the president and controller who finally compiled the mass mathematics.

Headed by Graham and Carmichael, officials from all three branches appeared on November 14 before the state advisory budget commission.

Relating the University's development with that of the state and nation, President Graham presented the commission with a total requirements budget of almost ten million dollars essential to maintaining the Greater University for the coming two years.

On January 17 newly-inaugurated Governor Broughton turned over to the legislature the report of the budget commission. The University, despite the fact that state revenues for the next two years were estimated to be greater than at any time during the past decade, had had its total request slashed over a million dollars.

Appropriations committees from the two houses took over the commission's report and began to meet jointly for the purposes of holding hearings for all state agencies.

Tomorrow it will be the University's turn and South building is ready. Breakdowns of the commission's recommendation, showing how Carolina's proposed building program, improvements and betterments and non-personnel increases are all unprovided for, have been compiled and checked.

BOXING

one of the best boxing teams in the country, including Penn State, Syracuse and Wisconsin.

The tie between Gates Kimball and Midshipman John Hebron in the heavy-weight affair brought much disagreement. Many experts and reporters felt that there was little doubt of Kimball's victory. Writing in the Washington Post, John Hunhall says, "It wasn't close-actually. Kimball, 195 pounds of rugged battler, out-smarted and outslugged Navy's Hebron, the footballer, and nearly put him away in the first round."

Especially pleased was Coach Ronman with the performance of sophomore Morris Moskow. Moskow employed his jolting left hook to the best advantage and TKO'd Midshipman Buzz Betzel in the second round, gaining one of Carolina's 2½ points. Speaking of Moskow, Coach Ronman said that "he should be one of the country's best collegiate boxers by the time he is a senior."

with all problems, and that if the states cannot at present meet their problems, they should be given the means to do so without surrendering their power.

Elsie Lyon argued that the crisis of 1933 necessitated an increase in the power of the federal government and that "the long range social programs demanded by the people have brought about a great increase in power which has benefitted the people."

Mitchell Cooper, second negative speaker, emphasized the dangers of too much concentration of power in the federal government and stressed that the trend must stop at some point.

In the short space of a few years Don developed into the world's leading amateur player. Two years ago he turned professional and continued his winning ways at the expense of such greats as Ellsworth Vines, Fred Perry, and Bill Tilden.

And now the experts are palling him the greatest player in the history of the game. His own opponent, Tilden, believes Budge has brought to the game a sustained power attack unparalleled in history. Tilden says Budge's attack for 365 days in the year is the most devastating the tennis world has ever known.

turned for 1,640 hours, the propellers consequently completed their circuit only 226,320,000 times. "A mere nothing," Mann said.

The first of the airport's casualties occurred when a student tipped his wing over too far while landing, and the wing-tip skidded over the ground, breaking the edge. Second mishap took place when a student taxied his plane into a parked plane and broke a propeller. Still another plane left parked on the runway was run down and damaged only slightly. Fourth accident occurred when a student coming in for an emergency landing hit a fence pole and crumpled the landing gear.

"Aside from these four, and the usual torn bottoms picked up when a plane comes in for a landing and bounces across a few rocks there were no damages," Mann said.

Mann said that he was especially proud of the record the students had made, and particularly pleased with the slight amount of damage, and lack of any injuries that occurred over the course of the quarter.
