Tennis Tilts, Shipwreck Shuffle Feature Tonight's Events

Four Great Net Stars To Meet In Gym At 8:15

By Harry Hollingsworth

When Alice Marble, Donald Budge, Mary Hardwick and Bill Tilden step on the Woollen gymnasium floor tonight at 8:15 for the start of the tennis show, three of the greatest tennis players in the United States and a high-ranking British star will swing into action to demonstrate to Chapel Hill fans the art of the net game.

Tonight's card lists singles matches between Marble and Hardwick and Tilden and Budge and a doubles contest between Marble-Tilden and Hardwick-Budge.

Tonight's stop by the touring netters, who will cover something approaching 50,000 miles before the end of the journey, in one of the two which will be made in North Carolina. The stars move to Charlotte for a show in the Charlotte Armory tomorrow night.

Proceeds of tonight's matches, after deductions have been made to pay the agency backing the show, will be used for improving and constructing new tennis courts for the use of the University students and townspeople.

Being brought here largely through the efforts of John Kenfield, Carolina tennis coach, the show has been a success in all the towns it has stopped since opening night in New York City at Madison Square Garden early in January.

Tennis and Charm Featured

Not only do the matches feature the swift playing of Don Budge and the craftsmanship of Bill Tilden, but also the sweetness and charm of Alice Marble and Mary Hardwick have added much to a tennis match that would create a sensation with the two great male stars of different generations matched against each other.

Largely because good women tennis players are rarely seen, the matches between Miss Marble and Miss Hardwick have been drawing the attention of most of the crowds. Until Miss Hardwick defeated the former American amateur champion, Miss Marble has run up 266 consecutive wins. Although the win by the English girl, who was the best amateur woman player in England before she was marooned in the United States, was classed as an upset, it did not create much surprise, for the little English

IF ALICE MARBLE plays tennis as well as she looks, there's no doubt that she will be the feature player tonight in the tennis show which opens at 8:15 in the gym.

GOP Veterans Support Aid Bill in House

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 — Veteran Republicans pleaded in the House today for support of President Roosevelt's British-aid bill in the interest of national unity, while two former Army officers rejected the Administration argument that the United States would be in immediate danger of a Nazi invasion if Great Britain falls.

Speaking during the second day of House debate on the measure, Representative James W. Wadsworth, Republican

Johnson Plays For Desert Island Dance

Colorful Carolina Catastrophe Climaxes Campus Cavorting

Carolina's colorful shipwreck shuffle, winding up the seventh annual Student-Faculty celebration, gets under way tonight at 9:30 o'clock in the University Dining hall with Freddie Johnson and his band supplying the sweet and the swing.

Commodore Jick Garland, commanding tonight's shuffle, announced yesterday that last-minute changes made it possible for the dance to be held in the University Dining hall rather than in the Tin Can. Garland said that, because of convenience, more pleasant surroundings, and the fact that the neophyte ball last week was so successful in the Dining hall, the new site was "highly desirable."

Tennis Stars to Judge

The first boatload climbs on board at 9:30 and Garland is expecting a large crowd first trip. He said he was weighing anchor at 9:30 so that those not attending the tennis matches in Woollen gym will be able to get an early start. Students and faculty attending the matches will be out by about 10:30, and the dance will not end until 1 o'clock.

Plans are under way to have the tennis stars Don Budge, Bill Tilden, Alice Marble and Mary Hardwick, judge the dance after their match and present the costume prizes.

The costumes, which should represent the "typical shipwreck kind found two weeks after the wreck on a deserted island, should be as elaborate or as simple as you want to make them."

Prizes

Prizes in the offing for the best costumes are: For the best boy's—a bid to next week's Winter Germans. For the best coed—a gift from the Little Shop. For the best faculty member—A surprise gift from the Carolina Sports Shop.

It was learned last night that Frank Dailey, manager of Meadowbrook Country club, will be on hand at the dance tonight to audition Freddy's outfit and their newly-acquired all-girl quartet, The Dixie Debs.

Admission will be 50 cents a couple or stag, and the voyageurs will be given shore leave at intermission.

Dr. Henderson Will Reign As King; Luncheons, Exhibits Are Planned

By Paul Komisaruk

Chile's lovely Senorita Sylvia Goich, blonde and blue-eyed, and the faculty's veteran Archibald Henderson, tall and stately, will reign today as king and queen of Carolina's seventh annual Student-Faculty day, an event-packed 15 hours of friendly mingling between teacher and pupil.

The royal couple, winners of last Friday's campus election and announced for the first time today, will receive their emblems of sovereignty in a coronation at 10:30 in Memorial hall. Attendants at this, the opening event of the day, will be coeds Eunice Patten and Ruth Applewhite.

KING AND QUEEN of Student-Faculty day — dignified Archibald Henderson and vivacious Senorita Sylvia Goich—pause and pose for their admirers.

With all classes suspended in order to encourage an old-fashioned "get-together," the days events, according to chairmen Ike Grainger and Sis Clinard, are designed "to succeed in the original purpose of bringing students and faculty closer together and helping establish lasting friendly relations."

Will Stress Exhibits
Following the short coronation, the Naval ROTC unit will pass in review in front of South Building, and at 11 o'clock the departmental exhibits featuring the University's "Century of Progress" will open. The exhibits, a rarely emphasized feature in past Student-Faculty celebrations, are being stressed today chiefly to emphasize the University's advances and display its achievements to South American visitors.

Morning exhibits will remain open until 1 o'clock, after which students and faculty will lunch together. Arrangements have been made for every member of the faculty to be a guest of fraternity or student.

Exhibits displaying everything from movies on Robert Benchley, football and South America, to glass blowing, electrical exhibits and discussions of the philosophic background of communism, will reopen at 2:30 in departmental buildings, and in the library, and will remain open until 4:30.

Bingham Shows "The River"

Included in its list of movies during the day, Bingham Hall has announced that it would show the documentary film "The River," considered

Lyons, McDonald Will Interview South Americans

Dr. Ralph McDonald, of the University extension division, and Dr. J. C. Lyons, of the French department, will conduct a round table discussion with four members of the South American delegation on "Peru" over WPTF from 8:15 to 8:30 tonight.

Dr. McDonald and Dr. Lyons will ask questions on several phases of Peruvian history, economics, and culture. Answering these questions will be Senor Antunez de Mayolo, a member of the Peruvian Chamber of Deputies, and specialist in constitutional law and economic affairs; Senor Jose de la Puente, a student in the Faculty of Arts of the University of San Marcos; Senor Jose Romero who is well acquainted with the history, law and government of Peru; and Senor Edwin Rey, whose field is engineering and manufacture.

Two other South American interview programs will be broadcast on Thursday afternoon, together with another lecture in the North Carolina history series. Vivian Gillespie will conduct one interview from 2:45 to 3 o'clock over stations WRAL, WAIR, WSTP, WSOC, WFTC, and WGTM.

Dr. A. R. Newsome's lecture on "Sectionalism in North Carolina History" will be carried by these same stations from 2:30 to 2:45. The second interview, to be conducted by W. T. Chichester, will be broadcast by WDNC, and WBIG from 4:00 to 4:30.

Graham Memorial Band To Play for Open House

The Student Union orchestra, under the direction of Julian Burroughs, will play for an open house tonight from 7 to 8:30 in the game room of Graham Memorial. There will be informal dancing and usual entertainment by cards and games.

Lovely Latin Queen Proud Of North American Throne, But Still Prefers Native Chile

By Paul Komisaruk

She "wishes to thank"—and she is "proud to be honored," and this morning she will be crowned as Carolina's seventh annual Student-Faculty day queen.

Chile's lovely Senorita Sylvia Goich, who with blond hair and blue eyes doesn't look anything like the travel posters' Latin beauty, is more nearly a world cosmopolitan, who in two weeks has captivated the Carolina campus.

It's the first time the charming 18-year-old senorita has ever been a queen. "It's new to me," and though she still isn't used to the American way, today she'll reign as an American queen at America's oldest state university.

America, she explained yesterday, is the fourth stop she has made in her travels and though she "likes it very much," she said, "I'm accustomed to my own country and, (a little hesitantly) I suppose that I prefer it."

Born In Santiago

Born in Santiago, she has been studying history, music and English as a special student, so that she would not have to take a required course at the University in Chile. Seven years ago she attended schools in France and Italy.

Here at the Hill, she has been studying Basic English, American art and architecture, and history. She finds the English most interesting—though, "I missed a week because I was ill with the flu, and may find it hard to catch up. I wasn't bored though," she smiled slightly, "I had plenty of company."

Miss Goich wants to travel, and as if in answer to a question from the Carolina gentlemen, supposes that "yes I will marry in due time." She was not quite sure how she felt about married life—"I've never been married so I don't know, and anyway there is no one yet . . ."

She Dances, Too

She likes sports, "Oh yes." She learned to ski in Geneva and likes it very much. She rides horseback, plays

Town Students Play Host Today

While dormitory boys vie with one another to show their hospitality by throwing open doors to any and all visitors, the Town Students will be hosts to professors and fellow students this afternoon in the lounge of Graham Memorial from 4 to 6.

With prospects of an informal student-faculty gathering, tea, dancing to Fish Worley's many records, and informal bridge games picked at random from the visitors, the Union will extend its hospitality to all the campus as well as to town residents.

Although there will be no town students' exhibit corresponding to the dormitory exhibits, this occasion marks the first time in Student-Faculty history that town students have been given a place of reception.

ATTENDANTS UPON QUEEN Sylvia Goich at today's coronation of the Student-Faculty day monarchs will be Eunice Patten, left, and Ruth Applewhite.
