

Carolina Has Teams To Beat for Four Conference Titles

Frosh Mermen Face State For State Championship

The question of who has the best freshman swimming team in the state and possibly the Southern conference will be settled this afternoon when the State Baby Terrors and the Carolina Baby Dolphins clash in Bowman Gray pool at 4:15. The victor will win the Big Five crown.

Neither team has been defeated this season. Both hold victories over the Duke Blue Imps, although the winning margin between Carolina and Duke was much more than between State and Duke.

Carolina will be depending upon the victory trio of Jack Eshelman, Denman Hammond and Ed Shumate to pace the Babies in their quest for their 20th consecutive win. All three have played prominent parts in the team's victories this season, and are ready to face the State team this afternoon.

State, like Carolina and Duke, has gathered its top freshman team in years, and promises to be the toughest foe the Tar Babies will swim this season.

Led by four men from the State champion Raleigh high school team of last year, the Baby Terrors will be the underdogs today for the first time.

Freshman swimmers are requested to report to the pool this afternoon at 3:30.

this season. Although the Tar Babies rate the role as favorites, their position is very slim. Bob Reynolds and J. W. Bailey, sons of North Carolina's Senators in the United States Congress, and Bryant and McCade, all of whom were members of the Raleigh high school team last year, are leaders on the team.

They formed a 200-yard freestyle relay team which set a new interschool record.

Mittmen Start Intensive Drills For Loop Tourney

Returning from victory over Citadel, Coach Mike Ronman's mittmen yesterday began a schedule of four days of intensive practice which will end Friday when the Tar Heels travel to Columbia, S. C., where they will make their bid for the conference championship.

Although Carolina boxing teams have failed to win the team title since 1929, they have usually, supplied more than their share of individual champions. Two members of the present team won crowns last year when Co-captain Red Sanders captured the 165-pound title and Bob Farris won in the 155-pound division. Farris will not defend his crown but will attempt to win the 145-pound championship, the weight at which he has been fighting this season.

Clemson's "Golden Boy" Wilson is making his last campaign in the intercollegiate wars. Last year Wilson won the heavyweight title, defeating Gates Kimball in the semi-finals in a match which some people claim was one of the biggest flukes in conference tourney. After graduation in June, Wilson plans to turn professional and become a potential challenger to Joe Louis' crown. According to the experts, the Clemson lad may "change his mind" about turning to the professional game if he runs up against Kimball in the tournament. Kimball is undefeated this season and is gunning for another chance against the aspiring Wilson. Their meeting will be the highlight of the tourney and should produce more fireworks for one bout than boxing fans have seen in many conference struggles.

Games Tonight Decide State's Cage Champs

One of the best championship programs in the history of the state's high school basketball is expected in Woollen gym tonight when six teams scrap it out for the Class A, B, and C titles.

This tripleheader will get under way at 7:30 with Cary and Hanes playing for the Class B crown. One hour later Durham and High Point will take the floor in the title-setting Class A game, and at 9:30 Green Hope and Stanley will clash for the Class C championship.

The three contests match a fine array of high scoring artists. In the Class A game Durham's Gordon Carver and Bill Gattis, sharp-shooters, will be matched with "Abie" Short and Jack Preston, High Point's two point-making aces.

Doug Holleman and Dillard of Cary and Bill Sheets and Jim Long of Hanes are likely to vie for high scoring honors in the Class B game. Green Hope's Junius Glover and Billy Ennis and Stanley's Ned Cannon and Jack McGinnis head the point-makers in the Class C feature.

Two champions will be back to defend titles, Durham, Class A, and Green Hope, Class C, won titles here last winter. Walnut Cove, State Class B champion in 1940, was eliminated in district play this season thus vacating the "B" championship.

Chief interest is centered on the Durham-High Point game. The contest will be the rubber meeting between the teams, with each having won on its home court.

Free-scoring, nip-and-tuck games loom in all three divisions with the outcome probably in doubt almost to the final whistle.

Probable lineups:

Team	Class	Position	Player
Durham	A	rf	Gattis
Durham	A	lf	Carver
Durham	A	Center	Gantt
Durham	A	fg	Loftis
Durham	A	lg	Jones
High Point	B	Short	Short
High Point	B	Wellborn	Wellborn
High Point	B	Reid	Reid
High Point	B	Preston	Preston
High Point	B	Hayworth	Hayworth

Officials: Knight (Durham Y) and Hawn (Lenoir-Rhyne).

Meet with State Postponed A Week

Because of the death of the father of Don Cox, co-captain of the State swimming team, the scheduled meet between Carolina and State varsity tank teams has been postponed until either Tuesday or Wednesday of next week, Coach Dick Jamerson announced yesterday.

The postponement of the meet removed the last opportunity for the Dolphins to get any competition before the conference swimming tourney Friday and Saturday in Blacksburg, Va.

The meet today would have decided the wearer of the conference crown, since the tourney will decide only individual winners and not a team champion, according to present plans.

Glamack Seeks National Record

George Glamack, Carolina's All-American center, who is gunning for a national scoring record, finished the regular season, according to a check yesterday with 438 points for 21 college games and 528 points if four practice games are included.

The 6-foot 5-inch skyscraper, who is almost blind in one eye and shoots largely by position and memory, will lead the Tar Heels into the Southern conference Tournament, and if he equalled his 62-point mark for the event in 1940, he would have totals of 500 and 590.

Stutz Modelewski of Rhode Island State led the intercollegiate scoring for 1940 with 509 points, but is far behind his record this year. However, Ken Griffith of little Alderson Broaddus College in Phillippi, W. Va., scored 294 points in his first 13 games and still had 11 games to go at the last report.

Track Victory Attributed To Runners-Up, Not Firsts

Gardiner, Morrison, Mengel, Mangum, and Wise Led Tar Heels

Adrian Lee Wise of Charlotte and Carlyle Thomas Mangum of Winston-Salem, both of whom are known as "Mike," were the Monday heroes of the Carolina track team following its victory over Duke Saturday night in the Southern Conference Indoor Games.

This pair of Mikes, Wise a junior and Mangum only a sophomore, shared top honors for Carolina with two Daves — Gardiner and Morrison — and Warren Mengel, who accounted for outstanding performances in each of their efforts. Morrison took first in the 880, according to pre-meet expectations, and Gardiner for the second year in a row displayed tremendous ability in the jumps and hurdles.

Wise, besides placing second in the 440 behind Duke's Werner Brown, took the baton on the lead-off leg in the mile relay, fought off an early bid by Duke's Ed Sargent and a Maryland runner, and finished a good seven yards in the lead. Holding this advantage, it was comparatively easy for Billy Groves to increase that lead, Roy Cathey and Dave Morrison, when other runners had to travel at terrific pace to catch them, to maintain a steady pace and pull away on the back stretch and increase their margin of victory.

Wise has been called "Little Hot" since he was a freshman, when he was outstanding in cross country and the half-mile. Now captain-elect of the harriers for next fall, he seems set for a future of quarter-miling on the board and cinder tracks. He wasn't far behind Brown in the 440 final.

Mangum turned in no last-minute meet - saving efforts, but as a sophomore performed pleasantly well. With Moffat Storer of Duke he was the only second-year man who won a first place, and added to this accomplishment by later taking a third place and raising his point total to seven to tie for third for meet scoring honors. To win the 70-yard high hurdles, he defeated Warren Mengel, who also accounted for seven points, and Dave Gardiner of Carolina, and Archie Taylor of Davidson.

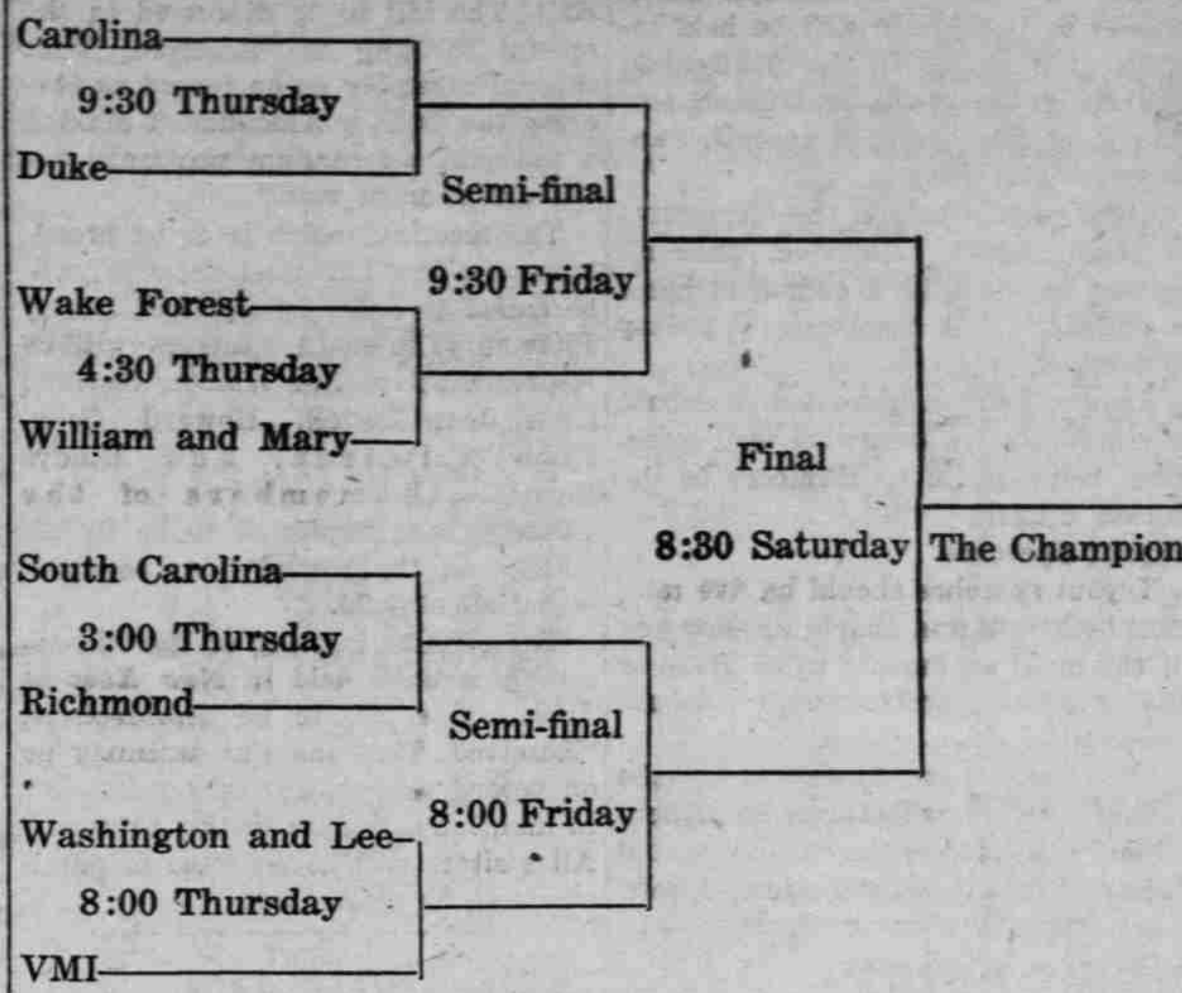

His victory over Taylor brings to light a typical teacher-pupil story. Taylor gave Mangum his first instruction in how to hurdle while both were in high school in Winston-Salem. Then, after Taylor had es-

Tournament Draw

Tournament Draw Should Aid White Phantoms in Title Bid

On the spot more than at any other time this winter, Carolina's White Phantoms took time off yesterday in preparing for the Southern conference tournament Thursday night when they oppose Duke's Blue Devils in the opening round.

The tournament draw, announced Sunday with Carolina facing Duke, Wake Forest-William and Mary, South Carolina-Richmond, and Washington and Lee-VMI, was to the convenience of the White Phantoms, but was in itself a poor method of determining a champion.

The Phantoms will be on the spot from the start, going up against the Blue Devils in the rubber match of their series. When they met Duke in the finals last year in their rubber match, the Phantoms won, and this 1941 crew is supposedly one of the finest in the nation. If they lack aggressiveness again, though, as they did in their 35-33 setback at the Durham indoor stadium, the Tar Heel basketballers will find themselves left behind.

Most followers are expecting Carolina to trounce Duke in this meeting, but after Duke will come the winner of the Wake Forest-William and Mary contest. The Indians are champions of Virginia, while Wake Forest is strong enough to give any team much trouble. Consensus of opinion is that Carolina will face Wake Forest and W&L will play Richmond in the semi-finals Friday night, with Carolina squaring off with W&L in the finals.

Tournament officials, when they made up the draw, might as well have ordered the champions of North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia to play each other for the title, for this is the situation at present. Carolina, Duke and Wake Forest—all in the top bracket—cannot help but eliminate each other. W&L, loser only to Duke once and Carolina twice, will then meet either Richmond, another Virginia team, or South Carolina, the only quint representing the Palmetto state.

Carolina is accustomed to drawing tough opponents in the first-round. In 1939, the Phantoms met Clemson in the opening round, and while losing, 44-43, gave the Tigers their closest battle of the tournament. Carolina

Tar Heels Lead Southern Loop In All Sports

The Tar Heels of the University of North Carolina have become the boys to beat in all four of the Southern conference tournaments scheduled this weekend—in basketball at Raleigh, swimming at Blacksburg, boxing at Columbia, and wrestling at College Park, Md.

By defeating State college in their meet postponed for a week, the Blue Dolphins will win the conference swimming title with a perfect season in loop competition, and even should they lose, the Dolphins will tie with State and Duke on a percentage basis. The conference swimming tournament no longer decides the championship team, but only the individual titlists, and Carolina is expected to dominate this competition as well, with possible champions in all but three events.

The Dolphins lost a close meet to Navy, but have beaten Virginia and Georgia Tech in non-conference matches, and William and Mary, VMI, Washington and Lee, and Duke in the conference. With only the State meet remaining, the swimming team has the best chance of any University team to win.

The White Phantoms will have to dispose of Duke's Blue Devils in the first round of the tournament if they are to go through the finals and recapture the crown everyone conceded them at the opening of this campaign. With both teams still having their most recent engagement well in mind, the game will probably be the most hotly-contested of this winter.

Were there no conference meet in wrestling this year, the Carolina grapplers would already have won the conference title. They tied VMI, one of the co-champions, and defeated Washington and Lee, the other co-champ, for the first time since 1929, in addition to Duke, Davidson and State.

Coach Chuck Quinlan's matmen have a perfect record and would share the league crown with VMI had not a conference tourney been scheduled for the first time in several years. The Tar Heels have several men who may go through the finals.

Carolina boxing teams have entered every tournament for the past few seasons with an outside chance of winning, and this year is no exception. With two defending champions and a team consisting almost entirely of seniors, Coach Mike Ronman has one of his most potent squads. Virginia Tech, tutored by Jules Medwin, Ronman's former pupil here at Carolina, is favored along with Maryland, The Citadel and Carolina. Although they lost conference engagements to Virginia Tech and Maryland and topped Citadel, the boxers upset such powerful ring teams as Virginia and Penn State. Scores were close in all matches.

Here is Carolina's winter season record:

	Conference	All
Basketball	14 1 —	15 5 —
Swimming	5 0 —	7 1 —
Wrestling	5 0 1 5 1 1
Boxing	1 2 —	3 3 0
	25 3 1	30 10 1
