40 Members To Nominate Editor Today

Harris, Campbell In Limelight For Key Position

The DAILY TAR HEEL tumbles on the campus political scene when staff members meet in the office at 1:30 this afternoon to make nominations for next year's DTH editor. "Politicking" for the key job began waxing warm several weeks ago and has now reached its peak. Staff choice will likely be Louis Harris or Orville Campbell.

The meeting will be finished by 2 o'clock. The fight for staff nomination perennially has been one of the hottest on the campus. The two leading candidates this year have renewed the fight with quiet but definite vigor.

Campbell, who transferred in 1939 from Mars Hill, is a two-year staff member. He went to work as a reporter and was promoted to news editor last spring quarter. A native of Hickory, he was a salaried employee at the University news bureau last year. For the past four summers he has done professional work on the Hickory Daily News and written continuity for station WKY in Hickory. He also served as part-time announcer.

Mars Hill Editor

At Mars Hill, Campbell worked up from sports editor to editor of the school paper in two years. He handled all the junior college's publicity. He is sports correspondent for five North Carolina daily papers and has interviewed several Carolina sports stars through the local radio studio.

At present Campbell is on the DTH editorial board and writes the semi-weekly column, "Good Morning." He also serves on the Tar an' Feathers feature board and was editor of Steele dormitory's weekly paper.

Harris is a junior and has been a staff member for the past three years. This year he has maintained a scholastic average of 94. Harris began as a reporter his freshman year, covering South Building, CPU, PU board, Interfraternity council, student government, and the HRI. He began writing editorials last spring. In addition to work on the editorial board,

UP NOMINEE for secretary of the senior class, Breezy Breazeale was unanimously nominated by a special nominating committee for vice-president of the Women's Athletic association, and therefore will step uncontested into that post.

Heels might conceivably pull one out of the fire if the breaks are going Carolina way. Dave Morrison, Rich Van Wagoner, Mike Wise, Henry Branch, Warren Mengel, Jim Vawter, Mike Mangum, Jim Olive, Don Baker, Wimpy Lewis, Dick White, Percy Ashby and others should be rounding into something close to mid-season form by the middle of the week, and it's just possible that superior conditioning and a will can turn the tide, on paper, seems certain to push everything before it.

Harris is writer of the DTH semi-weekly column, "Lend An Ear."

Harris is on the editorial board of the Carolina Mag and has contributed five articles this year. Adrian Spies, who resigned the Mag editorship last month to take a northern newspaper job, appointed him as editor of the April issue.

He is a member of the Amphoterthen, a secret honorary discussion group, chairman of the campus affairs committee of the YMCA, and an active member of the CPU. Harris is the organizer of the weekly round-table radio programs broadcast for the past five weeks over Station WDNC in Durham. He has four years of professional training as reporter on the New Haven, Conn., Register and as technical worker for King Features syndicate.

This year he has been chairman of the student government committee which was organized to study problems of student government. Major accomplishment of the group was in composing and outlining a student curricular committee.

Charlie Barrett announced yesterday that the following were eligible to participate in today's nominations and voting:

Vice-Presidential Nominees

Bea Withers and Mary Elizabeth Nash are rival candidates for the office of vice-president of the Woman's Association. Helen MacKay and Claire Freeman are running for secretary of the organization, and Eleanor Bernert and June Love were nominated for treasurer.

In the first election in which the men students have had a voice in the selection of a May Queen and her court, the Carolina gentlemen will join the coeds to elect either Frances Dyckman, Marjorie Johnston, or Bobbie Winton to reign as queen over the May Day celebration, and a court of eight attendants.

Girls nominated for the four senior attendants in the court include Mary Hawkins, Frances Gibson, Sarah Ruark, Julia McConnell, Eunice Patten, Louise Steifmeyer, Peggy Arnold, and Elaine Terris.

The one graduate attendant will be elected from the three candidates, Rowina Siberry, Kitty Wicker, and Frankie Moose.

tended, 6-3, 6-3. Rhinehart Freeman had difficulty fathoming Stan Lerner's lefthanded strokes, losing the first set, 8-6, but finished up the last two with neatness and dispatch, 6-1, 6-2. Chuck Harnden also dropped a set, but he too put on the pressure to win against Garnett, 6-2, 5-7, 6-2.

In the number one doubles, Carver and Harnden were extended to three sets against Buchanan and Feuille, as they piled up too many errors in the second frame. However, the last frame saw the Carolina pair settle down and cooperate sufficiently to capture the session at 6-2, 5-7, 6-2.

The Tar Heels won the rest of the matches in straight sets.

him home after Faircloth had rolled out to second base.

After the first inning, the Wolf Cubs were never able to find the strength to push across another run until the eighth inning when Steiner tripled to center field and came home when Faircloth singled to center field.

The Baby Terrors touched Red-headed Cantrell for singles in every inning except the third and fourth, but the batting never approached the dangerous stage. Cantrell managed to bring his smoke ball into play with men on bases. His control was good. Very seldom in the hole, he did not give a single pass. Although he had two hits to his credit, he was removed in the eighth for a pinch-hitter.

State's ninth-inning rally which did not produce a score started after two men were out. Heath, pinch-hitting for Fitchette, singled, and then Boseman proceeded to walk the next two men. Steiner, who had tripled on his last trip up, flied out to left center on a play in which Jack Ott made a good running catch.

Showing unusual hitting power for a pitcher, Cantrell paced the yearlings with two singles for three trips. Jack Hussey was second with two for four. Leon McCaskill went hitless for the afternoon, but was on the base paths three times.

For both shows she has had the job of handling the sale of all season and boxoffice tickets and for both shows S and F has played to full houses. She is also a member of the Alpha Delta Pi sorority and the University glee club.

ond, when they scored eight runs. They mixed four hits with two walks and a couple of errors to tally the eight markers. J. V. Morgan did the hurling for the winners and kept the losers checked until the last inning when they tallied all their runs. Ed Shytle collected a triple and two singles, and Walker a triple and a single to lead the Everett team at bat. Lawrence had three singles in three turns to pace Grimes.

Grimes No. 1 ruined the ROTC entry's debut in intramurals by scoring an 8-to-4 win over the Sailors. The Grimes team had two big innings, the third when they tallied four runs and the sixth when they scored three markers. George Hayes and Pinky Elliot with two hits each paced the Grimes club in the victory. Hennessee with two singles topped the ROTC aggregation.

ed when team members stepped between them. Nine of the 12 penalties were handed out during the final two periods.

Gugert Steady Jun Gugert, playing another fine offensive and defensive game, in which he was continually in the thick of all scrimmages, scored from three feet out, while the Teachers were one man short, in 5:45. Toccarino made his second score of the game in 8:00. Gugert soon matched this, in accounting for all the Carolina scores in the third period, in 9:10 on a pass from Harris. West Chester scored first in the final period, when Van Bushkirk's partially blocked shot rolled past Atran in 1:36. Finkel closed the scoring for the afternoon in 8:10 of the final period, on a well aimed backhand shot from right in front of the nets, following a perfect pass from Budden.

and although none has been noted for his slugging ability, all are steady hitters. Cheshire, local fans may hope, is not as wild as on his last trip out. But if he hurls as he did earlier in the season against Springfield, he should hold the Davidsons nicely.

Only worry is that Lucas is of the same calibre as Sicles or Cornell and Crane and Raschi of W & M. Support for Carolina pitchers has been great afield, but base knocks have been missed. Of the entire squad last year, the big four—Stirnweiss, Topkins, Radman and Mallory—collected more than half. Their loss is felt and quite noticeably.
