Freedom On Fiscal Front

Student self-government bounded forward yesterday.

Bill Allen and his special committee yesterday made sweeping recommendations to the administration that all fees be blocked into one lump sum, and then distributed to the various organizations at the discretion of the Student Legislature.

From the student self-rule angle, the proposals mark a new campus fiscal policy — they definitely enter our campus into a field new to student responsibility, that of control over money.

Hitherto, there have been a few isolated examples of students managing their own finances, such as the PU Board, but in all cases they have been featured by faculty supervision. Under the proposals of the nine-man student committee, the administration will only collect and safe-guard the funds, but the students will allot them.

From a purely practical, expedient viewpoint, we have to recognize the real advantages of the proposals. For many years, now, there have been certain campus organizations, such as the Debate Council, which had once been voted a set student fee, but which, during the evolution of the years, had perhaps lost a good deal of their total need for funds. Under the old set-up, however, the administration, year after year, had no other alternative but to collect the fees and to distribute them according to custom, rather than to need.

While these other organizations were losing their importance as fee-collecting agencies in the University, other student groups, such as the University club, the CPU, the IRC, and many others arose, and had no possible way of securing funds, except to beg for them wherever the opportunity afforded itself. Most of the funds that these non-supported organizations received were donations from the other fee-supported groups, which were superfluous. There was obviously a lack of adequate apportionment of the money students were paying.

Among the specific recommendations that the committee made, besides the broad, sweeping blocked fee proposals, were the suggestions that the Athletic Association fees be omitted from the Legislature's control, and that the fiscal year for campus organizations run concurrently with the calendar year. The first of these, that the Legislature leave hands off the Athletic Association might be justified on the grounds that the AA is an independent unit of the University and is not directly a student agency.

Yet, the DAILY TAR HEEL would contest this point, and lay claim on the Legislature's reviewing the fees of the Athletic Association. We point out that intercollegiate athletics and physical education happen to be the return that the students get for paying their AA fee. This fee is paid so that the students can receive entertainment and recreation from the facilities and activities of the AA. It follows that the recreation and enjoyment from watching athletic contests is little different from that of Graham Memorial or the publications. Hence, if these other fees are under student control, why leave out the Athletic Association?

The proposal to make the calendar year coincide with the fiscal year will clear up a slew of objections to present methods of budget collecting. Many are the times when campus organizations have spent funds freely on an unauthorized and even uncollected budget. Such action is not only dangerous, but also ridiculously confusing.

There can be little doubt that Bill Allen's recommendations are good ones. There can also be little doubt that the students and their Student Legislature will be behind the proposals one hundred per cent. We ask the administration, then, that it comply with student wishes when the student body passes the proposal.

The responsibility for handling the funds properly will be a

SOMEWHERE IN THE AEGEAN, April 12—(Saturday)—This Nazi-surrounded sea is really peaceful, regardless of what the UP, AP, INS, Reuters, DNB, FDR or HRI may tell you.

We don't have a fourth for bridge so we can't get mad at us. We don't have any late Harward or Reiss stories to worry about.

We don't have any women or liquor or women's honor councils to stir up trouble. None of us are members of either the CPU or the IRC.

Nobody is heckling us for brick walks, nobody wants to know how much we are spending on our campaigns... Another pigeon just came with a story from the News Bureau to be rewritten... all about how President Graham stayed in Chapel Hill for two and one-half days without once being called for a committee meeting.

Two Italian destroyers just passed by. The fishing smack with the BB gun seems to be gaining.

A pigeon from Reuters just 'dropped' by. Stopped in for a bit of chit chat. Said Sanford Stein had been non-plussed when two of his favorite lassies got into the senior class elections on opposite sides of the fence. SS then merely concentrated on WA politics.

SPECIAL FROM NEPTUNE — The water fairies are holding their annual spring elections next week and today began an intensive campaign to seduce the.

Most interesting race is that between.

This is Zaytoun's zenith! A TAR HEEL just floated up. It's all wet.

But we can read it. Ah, the legislature is planning to appropriate $50,000 to run student activities.

One-third of a nation, and the University library is ill-fed, ill-housed, ill-clothed.

It's a shame we can't attend to-morrow's sunrise service scheduled for a half-hour after sunrise.

The Playmakers are presenting a drama of Christ. A Morrison reform?

The HRI speakers finished their comment on the world crisis, so now the campus will have to wait another two years to hear about the world outside the Hill.

Mermabelle the mermaid died last night. We loved her very deeply. Oh well, other men have buried their mermaids and have gone on living.

AWARDS

team for the past two years and is now beginning his second season of throwing the javelin for the Tar Heel track team. Last Wednesday, he took first place in this event in the meet with Princeton.

As a representative from the Monogram club, he is one of the three student members of the Athletic Council. Richardson also belongs to the University club, the Interfraternity Council and the junior-senior dance committee.

Other senior candidates already announced by the UP are Pinky Elliot for president and Breezy Breazeale for secretary.

big one, but fully realizing it, we still demand this right. On this basis, and on the count that the system of blocking fees facilitates campus finances, the DAILY TAR HEEL supports the measures, urges the Legislature to take immediate action in passing them, and predicts that the student body will vote to free one more bond of outside control on election day, April 22.—L. ## Quotable Quotes

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

"Along with the growing demand for experienced personnel, we expect that the new graduates of 1941 in all fields, and especially in engineering, will meet with very little difficulty in securing positions. The draft and the defense program have at once taken men away from existing jobs and opened many new opportunities. Those of the 1941 class who are not too close to the draft will doubtless find, therefore, many openings awaiting them." Robert F. Moore, secretary of appointments, Columbia University echoes the prevailing note of optimism for the soon-to-be graduates.

"There is a tremendous waste of human resources in this country because of poor health. It is estimated that we have 400,000 deaths annually which could have been avoided if proper medical care and healthful living conditions had prevailed. We do not enjoy the good health in this country that we are entitled to because millions of people are suffering from diseases that are preventable. Poor health takes its greatest toll in the families of the low income group. It is estimated that families with less than $2,500 a year income suffer a money loss of $2,500,000,000 annually because of poor health. Good health is not merely an individual matter. It is clearly a community problem and a community responsibility." Dr. O. Myking Mehus, president of Winona (Minn.) State Teachers college, sees a people of healthful mind and body as essential to safeguarding our nation.

"All over the land professors and other old women are talking about the present generation of the young as soft and lazy, mediocre and fat. Maybe the young are soft. It is also true that all generations of the young have in their times been described as degenerate by the elders about them. In the history of the world there has not been a generation in which the old were prepared to admit that the young were as strong as they were when they were young. It is the eternal excuse for stiff joints in the presence of the supple. It is the anxious vanity of memory over manpower. The young certainly have their faults. They may not be as smart, brave, energetic, strong as their elders who want to be defended by them would have them be. But the old folks were young once also, and being young, not free from faults. The young have always, as the old folks reported it, been soft and the old folks, as the old folks hoped the young would believe, have always been wise. That's the rule, but America need not be frightened now if our older people will be as wise as our younger will be strong. We have better reason to count on young strength than old wisdom." — The Raleigh, N. C. News and Observer thumps the critics of youth.

"The highest tribute which society pays to colleges is the tribute of expecting positive contribution from the beneficiaries of the college responsibility. Of him to whom much is given, much is expected, and society expects college women to accept responsibility." — Miss Mildred McAfee, president of Wellesley college, reminds graduate women of their duties to the community.

"We no longer speak a common language as we no longer have a common intellectual background. Putting it another way, our modern education suffers from intellectual malnutrition. The scientists have been the greatest specialists, and... there is probably no other group quite so narrow in its interests. Our system is out of balance, and if we would restore it to equilibrium we must give more attention to the social and the human problems which we face." — President John W. Nason of Swarthmore college calls for corrective measures in the education system.

HRI

Foreign nations will unite at some time in the establishment of a complete system of law, co-extensive with international commerce, but such an achievement now does not seem to be a possibility—if now is taken to mean 'this year' or 'next year,' or even during the present administration. If it is possible now, I am in favor of its establishment right now and have been so minded for 40 years."

Declaring that his program was the "safest, surest, best way to secure real peace," Streit asserted that its program was based on "the conviction that we must first preserve the remaining democracies and prevent the victory of dictatorship in the Old World in order to have peace, prosperity, and freedom anywhere, and nothing short of union now will enable us to do this."

"Unconstitutional," bellowed Davis. "At least ten express provisions of the Constitution would have to be amended before this country could lawfully enter such a union."

"Furthermore," he continued, "Hitler cannot be stopped by paper documents. The only thing that can conquer Hitler is the possession of superior power by his adversaries, handed with superior generalship, on the field of battle."
