

Library Indicates Possibility of Extending Sunday Hours

Cook Promises Cooperation With Students

Movement Begun By Di Senate Shows Results

New developments in a movement to have the library remain open on Sunday nights, initiated at last Tuesday's Di senate meeting, indicated yesterday that there may be some possibility that the library might be able to keep its doors open for a few more hours on Sunday.

In the past few years there have been one or two efforts on the part of students to have the library stay open on Sunday instead of closing at 6:30 as it does, but none of these has been successful.

The main argument against the idea has been that the library finances could not stand the extra hours. Olan Cook, acting librarian, said that library officials are always glad to cooperate with the student body and "if enough students express a desire to have the library open on Sunday nights, all possible efforts would be made in that direction."

The Di senate passed a resolution suggesting that the library close on Saturday nights and open on Sunday evening, thus leaving the finances unhurt.

Cook, acting librarian, said yesterday that it would be unsatisfactory to close the library on Saturday nights, for, although many undergraduates do not use the library on those nights, the graduate students and people not connected with the University do use it extensively on Saturday evening.

As to the financial side of the matter, Cook explained that it would be impossible to give an estimate on the entire cost of leaving the library open for four hours longer on Sunday evening, as figures on the costs of occupancy (lights, water, heat, and so on) are not available immediately.

However, the expense of keeping the rooms which would be used by students staffed would amount to about $80 a month if the library was kept open until 10 o'clock each Sunday night. Approximately $30 of this amount would come through NYA funds, leaving 50 dollars to come from the library's own finances. This does not cover cost of occupancy.

Cook said that since the library budget is balanced "to the hilt," it would be necessary for the University administration to make an appropriation to cover the added expenses if the extra hours are added.

The question of whether the students want the library open on the night before the week's work begins will probably be answered through petitions and student polls. The Di senate as instigators of the idea are expected to post petitions asking those interested in having the library facilities on Sunday nights to sign. It is also possible that the next DAILY TAR HEEL poll will contain questions bearing on the matter.

FEES BILL

cant step in student government for several years.

Setting up administrative details of the plan will be left to the incoming legislature.

An amendment by Walter Haas to amend the bill by providing for an appropriations committee representative of all campus organizations failed when the legislature refused to suspend the rules. Speaker Cochran explained that such a committee will probably be provided for when details of the proposal are worked out later.

Only other business transacted was an amendment to the political expenditures bill allowing a candidate for head cheerleader to spend $15 on his campaign.

TRACK

Records Should Stand

Although the track should be fast, barring rain between now and tomorrow afternoon, it is not likely that any records will be broken, with the possible exception of the mile. The standing marks, such as Jennings :48.6 in the quarter mile set in 1939, Moore's vault of 13 feet 1 inch in 1936 and March's :23.8 in the low hurdles in 1939, seem just a little too steep for this year's cinder crop.

Eighty-five per cent of June graduates at University of Texas plan to go to work, 10 per cent plan to marry, 5 per cent plan to return home.

Library Asks Faculty To Return Books

The circulation department of the University has made a move to put many stagnated books into use by requesting faculty members to return to the library by May 1 all books they have checked out. A letter embodying this request was sent to members of the faculty by B. J. Caldwell, chief of the circulation department.

"In order to avoid inconvenience to others, to keep our records accurate, and to guard against the loss of books, we ask you to return all books you have from the main library or any of the departmental libraries, by May 1, 1941," the letter said. "Such books that you wish to use further will be reissued to you upon their return."

Community Sing Sunday Held In Forest Theater

Culminating the present series of a recently started Sunday night institution, Fish Worley, Graham Memorial Impressario, will hold this year's last Community Sing in the Forest Theater, Sunday night at 8:30.

There will be no pictures, but the Sigma Nu fraternity promises to make up for that with several special numbers and a quartet of the barber shop variety.

Leon Adams will conduct as usual, but Jim Pace will accompany on the marimba instead of the usual piano.

COED CONFERENCE

Coached by Lt. M. M. Riker of the Naval ROTC.

A dance demonstration was held at the Carolina Inn last night. Mrs. Adaline McCall, Elsie Earle, Mrs. Nancy Cook, and Fish Worley were the demonstrators.

Today's Program
Highlight of today's activities will be an address by Miss Hartwig on "The Trend of Student Thought in Woman's Athletic" at 2 o'clock at the Carolina Inn.

Opening this morning's program at 9 o'clock, discussion groups will meet to discuss intramural competition and methods of interesting women students in recreational activities.

A closed meeting will be held at 11 o'clock, followed by luncheon at noon at the Inn.

A fencing exhibition will be presented by Adaline and Mary McCormick, Carolina coeds, at 3:30 o'clock at Woollen gymnasium. Three movies, "Fencing," "Slim Women," and "Better Tennis" will be shown at the gymnasium.

Coed swimmers from WCUNC will give a water pageant, open to the public, at 7 o'clock in Bowman Gray Memorial pool. Following the aquaticade, a play night will be held by the coed delegates and the University's Monogram club. Fish Worley will present a folk and square dancing exhibition while the delegates cool off.

Tomorrow, the last day of the conference, final discussion groups will be held, and a summary of the conference will be presented.

Army Ambulance Arrives Tomorrow In Campaign For War Relief Funds

Canadian Veteran Drives "Thumbs Up"

Continuing a cross-country campaign for war relief funds which began in San Francisco early this year, an army ambulance of the British-American Ambulance corps will arrive in Chapel Hill tomorrow. Frank Maxwell, Canadian veteran of World War I, will be driving the ambulance which is known as "Thumbs Up."

Chief purpose of the "Thumbs Up" cavalcade, as it was christened by the mother of an RAF ace, is to raise funds to purchase amphibians to be used as flying ambulances to save valuable lives of RAF pilots shot down in the North Sea and other surrounding waters.

Money is also sought for the purpose of vitamin capsules for the British Ministry of Health to distribute to war-rationed, undernourished British children.

Since the cavalcade started its long trek, the ambulance corps has purchased two amphibian airplane ambulances, capable of landing at sea, to rescue downed pilots. These rescue planes will be shipped to a special London committee appointed by Lord Beaverbrook.

torial page that will not only make easy, enjoyable reading, but which will also take definite stands on all possible issues and campaigns.

"2. Print daily cartoons and crossword puzzles to lighten the appearance of heavy, solid type. There will also be daily human interest features that will deal with all sections of student life. Also, I should like to have a short humor column, not of the dirt variety, but more of the funny story or incident type.

"3. The duty as editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL, however, carries with it the determination of the policy of the paper. We must have a TAR HEEL that will work for concrete gains, such as easy chairs and lights in dorm rooms; continually, we must strive for a fuller and better understanding of student government, which, in these times, is "lesson in democracy"; yet, with the tension and danger of the war situation, we must also have a graphic review of the international scene and our nation's part in it.

bids will be available, and the price will be $10.00. They will not be transferable except through the committee.

Members of May Frolics who do not plan to attend the dances are requested to turn their bids over to the May Frolics committee on or before April 20 also.

Other than the Saturday afternoon concert Dorsey will play for four dances. The set will open Friday afternoon with a tea dance from 5 until 6:30 followed by a Friday night formal from 9:30 until 1 o'clock. The tea dance on Saturday will last from 4:30 to 6:30, and the evening formal from 9 until 12. There will be no Friday night figure. Members of the May Frolics committee will compose a Saturday night grand march.

Tommy Dorsey and his famous orchestra have appeared on the campus several times in the past. Their last appearance here was at the May Frolics set last year.

Hobby Show Taken Aghast By Conrad's Counterfeit

Fish's Exhibition Continues Today

By Carey Hayes

The FBI claims it knows all the engravers in the country—counterfeiting you know. But just in case they have been so busy of late with fifth columnists they have gotten rusty on who is who in the counterfeiting game they should be introduced to Barnaby Conrad.

His "imitation" of a fiver is so convincing that some spectators at the Hobby Show in Graham Memorial last night were completely taken in, thinking Conrad's hobby was the luxurious one of collecting five-dollar bills. Not at all! If you don't believe it come down to the lounge of Graham Memorial anytime today before 5 o'clock.

There were many other interesting hobbies in Fish Worley's show that drew a constant stream of visitors. Among the men, Grady Regan's hobby of drawing the opposite sex clad in considerably less than nothing was undoubtedly the favorite, attracting more than one pair of male shoes and many comments.

Bill Seeman and Lynn Bernhardt entered specimens of their drawings, George Hill covered two tables with bits of minerals which he has found, one of them a delicate piece of fused sand called Fulgorite and formed instantly when lightning struck some sand near Nag's Head, N. C. Albert Josselson entered his replica of the S. S. Normandie which took him a year to construct. And there were stamp, match cover, old sheet music, and pipe collections.

If you did not see the exhibit last night, it will be open until 5 o'clock today.

To prevent spread of tuberculosis, New York City's four municipal colleges now require X-ray examinations of the chests of all entering students.
