

76% of U. S. College Students Believe America Is at War Now 'In Effect'

Undergraduate Opinion Is Pessimistic

Regarding the war, campus opinion is again today on the pessimistic side. Step by step, we hear every day, the United States is getting closer to war. The nation's youth, many of whom are already in the service of the country, look on apprehensively. College men mark time in the classroom, awaiting their June 1 call to the draft army. Bull session topic number one is this: "Will we have to fight Germany again? When?"

But the latest survey of college opinion holds that our aid to Britain and other democracies, our attitude toward Germany, in effect constitutes "war"? To bring campus thought into focus on a nation-wide basis Student Opinion Surveys of America presented this question to a sampling of the enrollment: "Would you say that the United States is in effect already at war with Germany?"

The results:
YES said 76%
NO said 24%

(Only 1.3 per cent said they had no opinion on this issue.)

Three-quarters is a heavy majority and leaves no doubt as to the tenor of student opinion regarding our current part in the European conflict. This is not to say, however, that American students want to go to war. In numerous polls Student Opinion Surveys has found college youth favors doing all we can to stay out. A few months ago a majority disagreed with the general public (Gallup poll) in saying that it is more important to try to keep out of war than to help England, at the risk of being involved.

But this latest survey again brings out the rather pessimistic attitude expressed last month: that a slight majority believe the U. S. will eventually have to fight.

have battled German armored units at Thermopylae Pass, 80 miles north of Athens, to cover the flight of the British army which is taking to ships in wild haste.

In a reenactment of the disaster of Dunkirk, the official German news agency reported, the British are abandoning huge quantities of war booty including "hundreds of tanks and vast amounts of arms" in their flight to waiting troop ships.

LONDON—(Friday)—British and Greek rear guard forces entrenched at Thermopylae Pass are awaiting Germany's final "general offensive" after holding the Nazi blitzkrieg at a standstill throughout yesterday, the Athens radio reported early today.

Striving to avert panic and prepared to suppress Fifth Column outbreaks, the military governor of the Athens region broadcast an official warning that anyone causing disorder will be shot.

Savage aerial bombardment of the Athens area, its ports, highways, and ships carrying men, women, and children to outlying islands, were described by the Greek radio which, for the first time, identified itself and "spoke as the voice of Greece" in the war.

DTH Staff Members To Meet Today

There will be a very important meeting of the DAILY TAR HEEL staff this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the news office in Graham Memorial, Don Bishop announced late last night.

It is imperative that all staff members be present, he stressed.

Airline Absconds With S&F Boss; Party Flukes

Sound and Fury's surprise party last night for Carroll McGaughy took place with only one minor hitch—the guest of honor wasn't there.

After elaborate refreshments had been secured and plans made to have a caravan of cars greet McGaughy when he got near Chapel Hill, several members went to the Greensboro airport to meet him only to find that the plane couldn't land because of poor visibility and had flown to Richmond. Undaunted, Steve Piller, Billy Middleton, Sanford Stein and Arty Fischer drove all night to Richmond to bag their prey.

The entourage returned to Chapel Hill at 6 o'clock yesterday morning. While his captors slept in the car, McGaughy drove all the way home from Richmond.

"calm for a few days after which everything will be straightened out and Greece's great hour of sorrow will be over." (The cryptic statement might indicate that after the evacuation of the British army the Greeks are prepared to negotiate a surrender to Germany.)

ZURICH—(Friday)—British and Greek forces are inflicting heavy losses on the Germans in the "final and decisive battle before the door of Athens," at Thermopylae Pass, the Athens radio said early today.

WASHINGTON—The treasury today asked Congress to hike the federal tax structure to provide 3,600,000,000 dollars in new revenue and suggested that non-defense expenditures be cut about $1,000,000,000 a year.

Danseuse Makes Met Debut As Black-Faced Slave Girl

Gambarelli Appears Here Monday Night

Caruso was singing the role of Rhadames in the great Metropolitan Opera and a seven-year-old girl was making her debut in the historic opera house as one of the black-faced children in "Aida." Two years ago this same girl made her debut as premiere danseuse of the Met in the same opera.

Maria Gambarelli, now a lovely woman, will appear here Monday night at 8:30 in Memorial hall under the auspices of the Student Entertainment committee.

On the memorable occasion of her debut she scandalized some of the old guard by appearing as a slave girl in her own lemon colored hair instead of the traditional black, kinky wig. Many were inclined to view this as mere hoydenish irreverence for the Metropolitan tradition until Gambarelli refuted them by pointing out that blond Ionian slaves were in particular demand among the ancient Egyptians. Hurried recourse to the history books proved she was right.

Audition With Pavlova

At the age of 12, Gamby, as she has been nicknamed, had an audition with the great Anna Pavlova who coached the young dancer and later named her "my logical successor."

After three seasons with the ballet at the Met, Gamby was chosen by "Roxy" to be his premiere danseuse at the Capitol and Roxy theaters. It was here that she later organized the famous "Roxyettes."

Gambarelli then organized her own ballet for a tour of the European capitals, appearing in command performances and several motion pictures before she returned to this country for the opening of Radio City in New York.

In the Hollywood Bowl, she won instant acclaim with her "Little Red Riding Hood" ballet. Soon after she appeared in three successive motion pictures: "Here's To Romance," "Hooray For Love," and "Santa Barbara Fiesta."

DAD ought to know. Look at the wall behind him—his personal military history. Photo of the troop. Dad by himself, very proud in his old-style choker-collared blouse. And his decorations—the Order of the Purple Heart, Victory Medal, Croix de Guerre with palm.

"You savvy quick, soldier," he says to his son as that chip off the old block in the new uniform proffers Camels. "These were practically 'regulation' cigarettes with the army men I knew. Lots of other things have changed, but not a soldier's smokin'."

Right! Today, and for more than 20 years, reports from Army Post Exchanges show that Camels are the favorite. And in Navy canteens, too, Camels are preferred.

Just seems that Camels click with more people than any other cigarette—whether they're wearing O.D., blues, or civvies. You'll savvy, too—and quick—with your first puff of a slower-burning Camel with its extra mildness, extra coolness, and extra flavor, why it's the "front-line" cigarette!
