

Plans For Summer Session Complete, To Open June 12

Preparations for the opening of the summer session at the University on June 12 have been completed it was announced yesterday.

While enrollment is expected to be about the same as last year's—2844 for both terms—a marked increase in graduate students is indicated. More than 300 courses will be offered by 151 members of the regular teaching staff and about 40 visiting instructors.

The first term of the summer session, headed by Dean of Administration R. B. House, will continue through July 19 while the second term will run from July 21 through August 27.

Other Features

In addition to the regular courses of instruction there will be a number of special features. Among them are the fifth all-state high school music course, June 12-July 20; the fourth summer session in dramatic art for high school students, June 12-July 20; the Carolina Institute of international relations, June 23-30; the fifth annual North Carolina Bankers conference, July 14-18; the 14th annual Parent-Teachers institute, August 4-8 (tentative), and the 20th annual coaching school, August 18-30.

There will also be a number of conferences for North Carolina teachers to be sponsored by the North Carolina Education association and the State department.

Two features of the University Education department will be the Community Education workshop and the Observation school.

Lacrosse Team To Meet Tonight in New West

A meeting of the lacrosse team has been called for tonight by Captain Coleman Finkel. The team will meet in New West at 7:30.

Rockefeller Fellowship in drama for the coming year.

"The Saint and the Lord" by Elton Parker is the only play by an undergraduate on the program. It is the second undergraduate play to be produced this year. Based on actual stories of Coastal North Carolina, it is the story of a preacher who turns out to be only human, with all the weaknesses of his flock. The scene is laid in North Carolina, shortly after the War Between the States.

Graduate students who are directing the plays are Joseph Feldman directing "First Wave"; Elizabeth Blair, "The Saint and the Lord"; and Robin Bolce, "The Ninth Commandment".

Admission to the plays is free. Tickets may be obtained at the Playmakers business office in Swain hall, or at the Dramatic museum, 113 Murphy hall.

who has majored in dramatic art says, "I'm going to leave it up to daddy. He always can find something for me to do. Right now your guess is as good as mine because I don't know what he will decide." A more ambitious Playmaker, Jane Putnam of Beckley, W. Va., plans to attend the American Academy of Dramatic Art in New York City.

Martha LeFevre of Chevy Chase, Md., Martha Navy of Mars Hill, Elton Elliott of Brooklyn, N. Y., Grace Rutledge of Yadkinville, Josephine Austin of Hatteras and Thelma Brammer of Bassett, Va., all say that they are "The Dorothy Thompsons of the future."

Wedding bells are ringing in the ears of Margaret Johnson of Shreveport, La., Jean Trant of London Bridge, Va., and Eleanor Jones of Cambridge, Mass. They are studying for their careers by means of Dr. Groves' marriage course.

the IRC for three years, and was treasurer of the club this spring, is a Phi Beta Kappa, and a member of the Di senate.

Collins and Manfred Rogers, who has taken a leading part in the rise of the IRC during this year from a comparatively unknown organization to one of campus-wide significance, were named honorary life members of the club, the first ever to receive this honor, for their services.

Rogers was appointed head of a special committee of IRC members who are to be in Chapel Hill during the summer and who will be in charge of making arrangements for the fall program, laying plans for the appearances of Welles and the other speakers already announced and for speakers who are on the tentative list.

PRISCILLA LANE and Jeffrey Lynn, the sweathearts of "Four Daughters," are co-starred in "Million-Dollar Baby," now playing at the Carolina theater. Horning in on the two-some is Ronald Reagan.

Sophomore Notice

C. P. Spruill, Jr., Dean of the General college, announced yesterday that present sophomores who took sophomore courses in modern languages this year without having previously taken the romance language reading test, are not required to take it at all.

pointed a special reorganization committee which drafted the constitution adopted yesterday and presented it to the coeds last week for action.

The WA was set-up in 1917 by 45 coeds, and during the last four years has proved inadequate for the present large number of coeds.

Unique features of the new plan are a Woman's Training Program for junior coeds, attendance at which will be a requirement for holding offices; and orientation, handled by a committee composed of the presidents of the WGA, Pan-Hellenic, interdorm, and Town Girls' associations, and a YWCA representative.

The new Senate will handle finances, elections, point system, amendments, social changes, social functions, and other legislative functions. Members will be seven elected at large, four of whom must be non-sorority, two graduate, two junior, and one town representative, the WGA vice-president and treasurer, Town Girls' president, and representative to the campus student legislature. The speaker of the Senate will be elected by the members.

Honor Council

The president, vice-president, and secretary of the WGA, interdorm president, and one graduate, one town, and sorority, and two junior representatives will be members of the honor council, which will interpret the new constitution in addition to trying violation of the honor and campus codes.

Members of the new interdormitory council will be the house presidents and sorority house members and they will provide the mechanics of dormitory life.

Under the jurisdiction of the interdorm council will be house councils in each dormitory made up of one member from each floor and the dorm president which will try violations of the social rules.

Graduate representatives will be elected in the fall and juniors will be elected in December. The first general election under the new plan will be held next April.
