Net Prospects Seem Strong For Next Year

Despite the graduation of four regulars this June, all factors seem to point to a better than average Carolina tennis team for 1942.

First two positions on next year's team will probably be filled by Harris Everett and Ham Anthony, who were recently elected co-captains by the squad. Both these men were undefeated in dual matches this year and as a doubles team they won the North-South and Southern conference tournaments.

Behind Everett and Anthony is expected to be Marshall Chambers, sensational freshman from Cincinnati, touted as the best tennis prospect at Carolina since Bitsy Grant burned up the local courts a few years back. At present Chambers can trim most of the varsity regulars and it is almost certain that he will play an important role for the netmen next spring.

Two rising juniors are strong bets to complete the rest of the team. They are Jack Markham and Tom Wadden. Both have served in the majority of this year's matches. Wadden and Markham served a successful apprenticeship as reserves this year and are the logical men to step into two of the berths left vacant by the departure of Zan Carver, Chuck Harnden, Frank Robinson and Don Neill.

Two other players who must not be overlooked are Kenny Evenson and Harold Maas. A sophomore, Evenson would in all probability have been on the varsity this spring had it not been for his ineligibility. If he is eligible next year he will rank along with Wadden and Markham as outstanding contenders for a regular post.

Playing right behind Chambers on the freshman team this year, Maas has displayed sound, easily-produced strokes and is capable of upsetting any of the present sophomore candidates.

Mural Stars Average .395 In Batting

By Earle Hellen

The powerful Kappa Sigma team which has dominated play in the fraternity softball league for the last two years placed four men on the intramural softball team selected by the officials this year.

This year's array of stars combines excellent pitching with a powerful hitting attack and airtight fielding. The team batting average is .395.

In the infield Roy Lee Connor of Mangum was given the nod over John Thorpe for the first base job. Both men had high batting averages for the season, but Connor's height and long distance clouting gave him a slight advantage over Thorpe, the Zeta Psi star.

Mac Edwards of Kappa Sig was given the call at second base. A bulwark in the Kappa Sigma infield for the entire year, Edwards hit .300 and played a flashy game afield. Bill Conley, last year's all-campus second sacker, is the shortstop. Conley of Pi Kappa Alpha changed positions this year but the change didn't bother his expert fielding as he played a bang-up game for the Pikas all year.

Nick Austin of Kappa Sigma rounds out the infield by holding down the hot corner at third base. Austin was chosen over Ed Shyle of Everett dorm. With a season batting average of .414, Austin is the best hitter in the infield, besides being a polished performer afield.

Buddy Wills of Chi Phi and Henry House form the catching department. Wills sparked the Chi Phi team this year, hitting .412 and playing an alert game behind the plate. House played for the Town No. 2 club and was the most consistent hitter on that club.

Jim Lalanne of Kappa Sig was the outstanding choice for the short-fielder's post. Sweet Jim hit the ball at a .393 rate this year, including several extra-base hits. A speedy felder, he covers a lot of ground in his short-field position.

Toby Webb of Lewis dorm was chosen for the left-field spot. Webb led the Lewis club at the plate this year, hitting .391, and is a fast and dependable felder.

In center-field is Ed Barrier of Aycock who walked off with all hitting honors this year. He belted opposing pitchers for a total of 13 hits in 21 times to the plate for an average of .619. His power at the plate was enough to put him in center-field, but Barrier is also a speedy and accomplished felder. Charlie Baker of Lewis takes the final outfield position in right field. Baker was one of Lewis' top players of the year and had a .341 hitting average.

The pitching corps is well taken care of by Jimmy Hambright of Kappa Sig, Tommy Dill of DKE, and Ed York of Mangum. Hambright hasn't been beaten in two years and his record stands as one of the best in intramurals. His effective pitching baffled his opponents completely this year.

The sensation of the murals this year, Tommy Dill of DKE pitched two no-hit, no-run games during the season, an accomplishment itself. He allowed only 15 hits in seven games he pitched, winning six and losing one. Ed York of Mangum is the third member of the mound staff. York is a little left-hander who was outstanding in the dorm loop. He won six games and suffered no defeats.

Co-Captains White, Cathey Live Up to Ancient Adage

Hard Work Repays Pair with Honor Of Track Captaincy

By Ben Snyder

If ever the ancient adage of "if you don't succeed try, try again" needs replying for the benefit of some disheartened athlete or another here at the University, it will be time to bring forth the stories of Roy Cathey and Dick White, recently elected co-captains of the 1942 Carolina track team. Both men furnish striking testimonials for the worth of the old truism and each has a success story all of his own.

The saga of Roy Cathey, in particular, reads much like a Frank Merriwell novel. Cathey, who came to the Hill after graduating from Charlotte high school in 1938, had never competed in a track meet prior to his matriculation at the University.

It was only at the insistence of friends that he entered the intramural meet in the spring of his freshman year and he is frank to admit that he surprised himself by winning the 300-yard run in the excellent time of :35.9 and taking a good second in the broad jump. The performance was enough to get the track coaching staff on his trail and the following fall Roy reported with the cross country squad for conditioning work.

Last spring hard work and diligent practice brought the Paw Creek trackman down to :51 for the quarter-mile run, but it wasn't until this season that he came into his own. Cathey served notice that he was ready to go in the very first meet of this season by finishing second in the 440 behind Paul Douglas in the Princeton-Carolina dual competition. From that point on until the end of the season, Cathey was in at the finish of most of the quarter-mile events and by the end of the season he had amassed 30 1/2 points to finish fourth in the individual scoring among the Carolina trackmen.

In finishing fourth in the conference 440 at Williamsburg, Va., Roy posted his best time of :49.5, and came back later on in the afternoon to anchor the winning mile relay team. In the inter-class meet, Cathey finished second in the 660 behind Dave Morrison and his time of 1:21.5 made Coach

Zeta Psi, SAE Win in Water Polo

Zeta Psi defeated Beta Theta Pi, 17-5, and SAE licked St. Anthony, 24-3, in water polo matches yesterday afternoon.

It was incorrectly stated in yesterday's TAR HEEL that Phi Delta Theta had captured the fraternity water polo championship. The TAR HEEL regrets the error.

Erhard Carl Jaeger, son of a Harvard professor, who formerly served in the German army, has become a trainee in the United States army.

Carolina Nine Surprised Fans By Winning Conference Title

Late Spurt Gives Tar Heels Six Wins In Eight Contests

Not even the most hearty supporter of the Carolina baseball team would have believed at the start of the ball season that the Carolina nine would defeat Duke twice, win the Big Five crown and finish the season by capturing its first Southern conference title since 1933. It's past history now, but that's exactly what the team did, and it was done the hard way.

With a somewhat stronger pitching staff but with a much weaker hitting attack, the Carolina nine opened the season with the customary weak and ineffective showings against Northern competition.

Carolina got to Springfield for a 5-2 victory but was dropped a couple or so days later by Cornell, 4-2. William and Mary, one of the weakest teams in the conference, garnered a 2-1 decision in a game the Tar Heels should have won several times.

Beaten Again

Four games later the Tar Heels felt the wrath of Michigan, 6-3, in another game they should have won. Les Tomlinson made his first appearance in a regular collegiate game and hurled six-hit ball, but his efforts weren't enough. Loose fielding by the Carolina team cost Les the game.

Wake Forest and Davidson were defeated before the Tar Heels played to a 9-9 tie with State and lost a 5-4 decision to Maryland.

Realizing after the Maryland game that they had a good opportunity to win the conference and perhaps the State crown, the Tar Heels buckled down and won six of the final eight games. Navy and Duke were the victors over Carolina in those two defeats.

Duke Beaten

The Duke series, in which the Tar Heels defeated the Blue Devils in two out of three games, was supposed to have climaxed the season for Carolina, but it was discovered that Carolina and Duke were tied for the conference crown.

The final game of the season—between Carolina and VMI—took on the appearance of a game for the championship of the Southern conference, instead of an anti-climax affair.

Responding to the occasion, Carolina defeated the Cadets, 3-2, to capture the league title.

Finkel Invited To North-South Lacrosse Game

Coley Finkel, captain of this year's lacrosse team, was honored for the second successive year yesterday with an invitation to play in the annual North-South game in Baltimore on June 11. Coley received an invitation to play in the game from Coach Malney of Johns Hopkins. He is still not certain whether he will be able to play, however, since the game is to be played the night following commencement here.

The teams are composed of 22 of the best lacrosse players in the North and in the South. Stars have such foremost teams as Princeton, Yale, Harvard, Hobart, Springfield and many other colleges represent the North, while stickmen from such schools as Johns Hopkins, Maryland, Loyola, Duke, and Carolina defend the South's honor in lacrosse. It is largely on the basis of their showings in this game that the All-Americans are chosen. Ray Brown, Duke's center played in last year's contest, and it was his performance in the game that won All-American honors for him.

Coley and Ray Brown are again representing Carolina and Duke this year. As co-captain of the Carolina team, Finkel sparked it to many important victories which culminated in the Indians winning the Dixie league title.

Finkel was a great player all season, and gave his two greatest performances in the Loyola game and the first battle with Duke. He gave a magnificent display of running, passing, faking, and shooting to score four goals and pace the Indians in their 10-3 victory over Duke in the most important game of the season. In the next game, against the powerful Loyola team, he went on a rampage. Performing before a home-town crowd, he scored five times in a sensational exhibition as the Tar Heels bowed 11-5.

The North-South game will be Coley's grand finale in college lacrosse.
