Cheering Squad, Team, Parade To Feature Rally

Coach Vaught To Introduce Football Team

Featuring the University club's first organized pep rally of the year tonight at 8 o'clock in Memorial hall will be the full nine-man cheering squad and the introduction of the entire football team to the student body by Head Line Coach Johnny Vaught.

At 7:30 lights in all the dormitories will blink and the bell in South building will toll. A drum corps starting in King court will rally students and lead them in a parade from there to Morehead Place, and to the coed dormitory quadrangle. From there the students will march down Raleigh Street, turn into Franklin Street to Columbia Street, up Columbia Street to Cameron Avenue, and left on Cameron Avenue to Memorial Hall.

Coeds on Cheering Squad

Curry Jones will have his entire squad at the rally for the first time. The three coeds on the squad are Ann Angel, Ann Craft, Pat Johnson. The five boys are Frank Alspaugh, John Feuchtenberger, Don Blanton, Don Nicholson, Buddy Crome.

Jones has planned a stunt with which to open the rally that is unique, novel and unusual, but he is keeping it secret. He has worked out three new cheers syncopeation, the chant, thunder, which will be presented tonight.

Steve Peck, president of the University club, has arranged to have Coach Johnny Vaught speak at the rally and introduce the team. Co-captains Carl Suntheimer and Harry Dunkle, and Frank O'Hare and Dick Sieck will speak on the program.

"I've been talking to members of the coaching staff," Peck said, "and they say that South Carolina is highly regarded. They want to win this game and will be hard to beat."

Peck said that the rally would be over in plenty of time for those who are going to the Coed Ball tonight.

"Let's all turn out tonight and make this rally one of the best ever," Peck said. "We want to show Coach Wolf that the 12th man on his squad is just as ready for the game as is his team."

Red Cross Begins Annual Roll Call November 11

The tremendous expansion of services rendered by the American Red Cross in a vast program of preparedness for emergency will necessitate the gaining of millions of new members during the annual drive which begins November 11 and continues through the end of the month, the organization announced yesterday.

The aim of the present program is to prepare the individual for any possible emergency and to strengthen weak spots in our social structure which experience abroad has shown will need strengthening, should a real crisis develop.

Red Cross Reserve

Members of the Red Cross Reserve are on hand to care for the health of the thousands of men inducted during the emergency, and the Hospital and Recreation Corps, one of nine Red Cross special volunteer services provides recreation and entertainment during convalescence.

Many college students and the noted coach "Swede" Larson of U. S. Naval Academy have donated blood to a blood procurement project creating a 200,000-unit blood plasma bank for the Army and Navy has been started. Plasma, that part of blood from which red and white cells are removed, may be used in transfusions without typing or cross-matching. Reduced to a dry powdered form and vacuum packed, it may be kept indefinitely.

CHIEF PEPSTER, Curry Jones, who will lead the student body tonight in the first pep rally of the year, in preparation for the tilt with the South Carolina Gamecocks tomorrow.

Grail To Hold First Dance

Satterfield Plays For Informal Hop

Johnny Satterfield and his band will play for the first Grail dance of the year tomorrow night from 9 until 12 o'clock in Woollen gym, exchequer George Coxhead announced yesterday.

The dance will be informal and admission charge for both stags and couples will be $1.10.

Frosh Not Admitted

As in previous years, freshmen will not be permitted to attend because of the impending rush season. The executive committee of the Interfraternity council held a special meeting last night to consider the Grail's request that first yearmen be allowed to come but then decided to maintain the ruling.

Satterfield, who took over Charlie Wood's band last fall, played engagements off and on the campus last year and started off the current season by supplying swing for the freshman smoker.

The band plays best on blues arrangements, many of which are the original work of Satterfield himself, front man and pianist, and Frank Justice, lead sax.

Real Swing

John Hammond, best swing critic in the country, judged Satterfield's band runnerup in the contest here last spring but also declared that the bandleader had as true a conception

Legislature To Meet Next Week

By Paul Komisaruk

Tight-lipped legislative leaders began setting machinery in motion yesterday for the legislatures first meeting of the year, early next week, as feeling grew that a bill preventing students from bringing motor cars to the University would be presented and would find a prominent place on the legislative calendar.

These restrictive measures, which have already taken place in three New England colleges—Amherst, Williams, and Wheaton—have been termed a "blessing in disguise" by the Baltimore Evening Sun.

On Problem

It was felt in some quarters that the bill, presented ostensibly to prevent the usage of gasoline and thus help preserve the nation's supply, was merely being a welcome excuse for "attacking a problem which is much older than that of gasoline consumption."

The Sun explained that nine other institutions including Harvard are putting the matter up to their students in the form of a request, and went on to remark that the "motor car has extended the range of college students," has given the deans something else to worry about, has ruined evenings for many serious minded students, and has increased the dangers to students because of hurried week-end visiting trips of friends and relatives.

Commenting on the measures taken by the New England schools, the Sun said, "The ban, whatever the excuse for it, should be of considerable value if it serves to reduce the impatience of undergraduates to leave their hurried lives in the colleges, for the hurried life of the outside world which, in any event, they experience all too soon."

Campus Budgets

Certain also to appear on the legislative dockets during the first few weeks are the budgets of campus organizations which must be approved by the Legislature. Coming under surveillance will be the annual requests from the Debate Council, the PU Board, the four campus publications, and the classes.

Also headed for the calendar are two bills concerning elections. The first would set up machinery for the fast approaching freshman elections, and the second would deal with conduct of future campus-wide elections. This action arising out of the disorder and complications of last spring's campaign.

Keutzer Calls Meeting Monday Of Glee Club

Professor Clyde E. Keutzer announced yesterday afternoon that the first meeting of the University Men's Glee Club will be held in Hill Music hall on Monday night at 8 o'clock.

In conjunction with this notice came word from President Bill Mehaffey that all candidates for the club, as well as old members, are expected to report. Although actual try-outs for the new men are not scheduled until Wednesday, it is imperative that all interested students be on hand for the group's first meeting.

Number of Vacancies

A number of outstanding men from last year's successful club have graduated and as a result there are a number of openings for freshmen and upper classmen alike who have talent.

Keutzer, when asked about this year's prospects, termed them "excellent" and let word drop to the effect that the club was already scheduled for a broadcast direct from Town Hall in New York's Radio City this coming spring. In addition to the annual spring trip, a number of other worthwhile tours are being mapped out.

New Coeds To Make Debut At Ball Tonight in Tin Can

Invitations for the annual coed ball to be given tonight from 10 to 1 o'clock in the Tin Can were received yesterday, Richard Worley, director of the Student Activities Union, announced last night, and telephones in coed domiciles rang constantly as boys contacted blind dates for the affair.

Each new coed on the campus is invited, and assigned an escort. Admission for stags will also be by invitation only, and formal dress will be worn.

The dance is sponsored by the YMCA and the Student Union in honor of the new girls. The Carolinians will play for dancing, and there will be a special figure dance for chaperones.

Several senior girls will be at the dance to introduce recent arrivals to the stags and dates, but this is to be predominantly a night for new girls to get acquainted.

Chaperones include the hostesses in the five coed dormitories, and the sorority house mothers.

Memorial Hall Convocation Slated for 10:30

Carolina—embarking on what has been labeled "its greatest test"—officially opens this morning with a long-heralded address by President Frank P. Graham, an address which looms as the most important in recent Carolina history, the beginning of the University's campaign to become "the nation's college."

Subject Not Known

The speech, slated for 10:30 in Memorial hall, will be the first message delivered by Chapel Hill's President since last spring, and administrative leaders last night offered no key to the subject of the address. Early this morning it was still not definite that Dr. Graham would be able to leave his business-buried desk in Washington where pressing problems of national defense and strike mediation have kept him for the past year.

Dr. Graham, already noted as one of the foremost educators in the country, has been credited within the past few months as doing the most outstanding work on the board.

The 148th convocation, marking the completion of nearly a century and a half of service on the part of the country's oldest state university, may go down in contemporary history as the South's leading educator makes his challenge to youth.

Classes Shortened

Scheduled for an hour, the convocation will end at 11:30, with 11 o'clock classes meeting at that time, and ending at 11:50.

Reverend C. M. Jones will give the invocation, and Dean of Administration R. B. House will preside.

Preparatory Course For Air Corps Set Up

Spruill Announces Requirements

The University moved a step nearer completion of the year's goal of "nation's college" yesterday, when Dean C. P. Spruill, General College head, announced a new defense one year course—preparation for the army air force—and set up administrative machinery to handle the expected flow of applicants.

Students interested in entering military aviation, and whose parents approve, may meet the educational requirements for admission by completing work in the special course.

Entry Blanks Available For Football Contest

Entry blanks for this week's football contest will be on the bulletin board in the first-floor hall of Graham Memorial today, "Fish" Worley, director of Graham Memorial, announced yesterday.

Four meal tickets, redeemable at Lenoir Dining Hall, will be given as prizes to the four students who pick the largest percentage of winning teams from among those listed on the blanks.

Only one entry will be accepted from each student, and any one is eligible to take a chance. There is no cost for participation.

UNC Library Revamps Reserve Room Arrangement; Bull's Head Bookshop Combined with Browsing Room

Open Stacks Featured

By Ed Lashman

"In an effort to encourage use of the library and familiarity and ownership of books, we have installed a browsing room and completely changed the set-up of the reserve room at the University library," Olan V. Cook, assistant librarian said today.

The Bull's Head Bookshop has been moved upstairs and combined with the browsing room in what used to be the General College reading room. The reserve room now has its books all on open shelves with the idea of putting in one group all the books relating to a subject so that the student will be exposed to every phase of his topic.

Planned by Rush Charles E. Rush, University Librarian devised the plan because he felt that the students were either too timid
