

Tar Heels Fall Before South Carolina, 13-7

George May To Speak Here At Symposium

To Discuss Recent Economic Trends At Meeting Oct. 24-25

One of the principal speakers scheduled to appear on the program of the second annual Symposium on Accounting and Taxation to be held at this campus and Duke University October 24-25, is George O. May, for 30 years senior partner of Price, Waterhouse and Company.

Now retired from this position, Mr. May has for the last several years been active head of the Committee on Accounting Procedure of the American Institute of Accountants and of earlier committees of similar scope.

Mr. May is a frequent witness before Congressional committees and courts and is an occasional lecturer at Harvard University. He is director of the Council on Foreign Relations, Inc. Has Impressive Record

From 1930 to 1935 he was chairman of a special committee on cooperation with stock exchanges of the American Institute of Accountants and is a past president of the National Bureau of Economic Research, Inc., of which he is still a director.

Mr. May is also a past vice president of the American Economic Association and a past director of the American Statistical Association.

Among a number of other nationally known speakers will be Thomas N. Tarleau, Legislative Counsel of the United States Treasury Department, and M. L. Black, Jr., of the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply.

The Symposium, sponsored by the North Carolina Association of Certified Public Accountants, is being planned to provide timely and instructive information of vital interest to lawyers, financial officers of corporations, bankers, controllers, and others interested in accounting and taxation.

Topics to be discussed include the Revenue Act of 1941, the effect of war upon economy and business adjustments to crisis, with emphasis upon inventories and inflation; last-in, first-out inventories; auditing procedure, audit reports, detection of fraud, personnel problems, price cutting and professional ethics; tax problems of small corporations, price legislation, price ceilings and priorities.

Pan Hellenic Group Sponsors Tea This Afternoon

The Pan Hellenic council will be hostess to all University women this afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock at a tea in the lounge of Graham Memorial, Jennie Wells Newsome, president, announced yesterday.

"We want all the girls—old and new—to come and give us a chance to know you," Jennie said. "You do not necessarily have to be interested in sororities."

The receiving line will include mothers in sorority houses, dormitory counselors, Mrs. Marvin H. Stacy, Adviser to Women, and members of Pan Hellenic. Members of the honor council will pour, and formal clothes will be in order.

DTH Applicants, Staff To Meet Tomorrow

The Daily Tar Heel news staff will meet tomorrow at 1:30 o'clock in the news room, 206 Graham Memorial. Attendance is imperative. Newsmen will be given permanent beats at the meeting. Failure to attend will result in immediate rearrangement and assignment of beats.

Tryouts and recent appointees are to meet at 4 o'clock in 212 Graham Memorial, and are to bring samples of their work.

Hillel Will Hold Reception Tonight

The Hillel organization will hold a reception for all new students this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the main lounge of Graham Memorial.

AL GRYGO, SOUTH CAROLINA'S sensational half back, rips through the center of the Tar Heel line for a ten-yard gain during the second quarter of yesterday's contest. Running interference for him is Krinovak, USC guard and coming in for the tackle are Carolina's Bill Faircloth, and Joe Austin.—Photo by Morton.

Stastica Runs 66 Yards For Winning Touchdown

Pecora Takes Connor's Pass Over For Sole Tar Heel Touchdown

By Harry Hollingsworth

Lacking the offensive threat to push touchdowns across the goal line once they were in scoring distance, the University of North Carolina Tar Heels were defeated by a superior team from South Carolina here yesterday, 13-7.

But it took the flying heels of Stan Stastica, the substitute for South Carolina's greatly heralded Al Grygo to furnish the finishing touches to a one-sided ball game. The South Carolina flash dashed 65 yards through the entire Tar Heel team in the fourth quarter to the Gamecocks' second touchdown.

Stastica Stars

Having thrust off second and third quarter South Carolina offensive drives, the Tar Heels appeared well on their way to a 7-6 victory when Stastica took the game into his own hands.

With the ball first and ten on the Gamecocks' 34, Stastica threw a pass which was promptly knocked down by an alert Tar Heel secondary. On the next play the same Stastica broke around left end, cut back sharply to the left as Frank O'Hare and Mike Cooke missed tackles and then outran Joe Austin to the goal line. Austin made a diving attempt for him at the 10-yard line, but the fleeing South Carolinian had gone too far.

Dutch Elston kicked the extra point and from then on it was a case of South Carolina keeping control of the ball most of the time. Four times in the final stages of the fourth quarter North Carolina got its hands on the ball, but each time no offensive drive would be started.

South Carolina kicked off to the Tar Heels after scoring the winning touchdown and Hugh Cox tried three passes, all incomplete, before Harry Dunkle punted and Ken Roskie, who stayed in the Tar Heels' secondary most of the afternoon, made a 34-yard return to North Carolina's 44.

Gamecocks Get Control

South Carolina made a first down and then punted. Carolina took the ball on the 20, but Cox fumbled and again South Carolina had control of the ball in the closing minutes of the contest.

Less than a minute was left in the game when the Tar Heels got their hands on the ball again. This time LeBlanc's pass was intercepted by Grygo. Roy Connor was throwing passes for Carolina when Blouin intercepted a pass just before the game ended.

The superior backs of South Carolina told the story of the game. Time and time again the Gamecocks, led by Grygo, Stastica and Blouin, swept the Tar Heels' ends for gains.

Tar Heels twice in the first half were stopped by South Carolina inside the five-yard line. Johnny Pecora missed a fourth-down pass in the end zone on the first scoring opportunity late in the first quarter and Hugh Cox fumbled on the two-yard line to stop the second opportunity.

North Carolina's touchdown was manufactured on a Roy Connor to Johnny Pecora pass. Pecora took the

See JOE AUSTIN, page 3

"PROFF" FREDERICK H. KOCH, who opens the Carolina Playmakers 24th season at the Playmaker Theater Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

Koch Opens 24th Season Tuesday Night

Dr. Frederick Koch will open the 24th season of the Carolina Playmakers Tuesday night at 8 o'clock when he gives a talk on his "Adventures in Playmaking" in the Playmaker Theater.

More than 100 slides relative to his lecture will be shown, reviewing the activities of the Playmakers. Such former Playmakers as Paul Green, Thomas Wolfe, Kay Kyser, Sheppard Studwick, George Denny, Jr. Eugenia Rawls will figure in "Prof" Koch's discussion.

Tryouts for the first production of the year, "The Male Animal" will be held next Friday in the theatre, followed by a presentation of Green's "The House of Connelly" on October 10.

"Prof" will open the regular Sunday Evening Playreadings with "Hamlet" October 5 in the Playmaker's Theatre.

Tentative plans include a dance recital by Elizabeth Waters and her company on November 14; Paul Green's reading of his play adapted from Wright's "Native Son", November 16; "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" in the fall quarter; "Offenbach's 'La Vie Parisienne' in the winter; and the comedy, "Charley's Aunt" in the spring.

Season tickets to Playmaker productions are now on sale in the business office in Swain Hall and the Dramatic Museum at 113 Murphy.

UNC Alumnus Heads Midshipmen's School

A University alumnus who later graduated at Annapolis is now head of a school which graduates classes in rapid fire order.

He is Captain John J. London, native of Pittsboro, and the school he commands is the United States Naval Reserve Midshipmen's School whose campus and classrooms are the "USS Prairie State," tied up at 136th Street and Hudson River in New York City.

Captain London this week presided over exercises at which 429 young officers received commissions as ensigns in the Naval Reserve. The fourth class to complete the course on the old battleship, the class which graduated September 16, ended the first year's program. A new class took up its training September 18. Nine thousand officers are to be provided in the two-year program for the rapidly growing fleet.

Roosevelt Reiterates Determination To Maintain Freedom of the Seas

Nazi Armies Reported Sweeping Ukraine

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27—President Roosevelt declared today that the full might of the United States will be used to guard the new "liberty fleet" against torpedoes, bombs, or shells on the seven seas.

His declaration reiterating the administration's determination to maintain freedom of the seas despite German threats and acts was repeated at shipyards in all parts of the country as fourteen units of the new wartime emergency fleet slid down the ways in the greatest mass-launching since the World War.

Congress regarded his speech which was transcribed in advance and played at each of the launchings as the final prelude to his request for complete repeal or modification of the neutrality act to enlarge the delivery of lend-lease materials.

The President is expected to decide during the coming week whether he will seek outright repeal or revision of the neutrality act. He expects to see his congressional leaders Monday to go over the situation. A message on the subject to Congress may be forthcoming during the week.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—A British radio heard by the United Press listening post reported tonight that a state of emergency was declared in Czechoslovakia.

BERLIN, Sept. 27—German reports said tonight that a Nazi war juggernaut rocked across the flat Ukraine intent upon dealing the death blow to the battered forces of Marshall Semyon Budenny now attempting a back-to-the-wall defense of Kharkov

See ROOSEVELT, page 4

Unusual Play To Be Aired

Varied Accents Make Casting Hard

The accent will be on accents when the Carolina Playmakers of the Air broadcast "In Time, In Space" by Joseph D. Feldman over WRAL Monday, September 29, before the annual North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs meeting at the Raleigh Women's Club. Out of ten characters in the cast the script calls for a Negro woman, a French art dealer, a Negro preacher, and a Dutch watchman.

Wynn Shows "Ingenuity" To take these parts Mr. Earl Wynn, director of the Playmakers of the Air has shown "great ingenuity" in the matter of casting. Playing the French art dealer, Deval is Georges Levy, a native of France who has been in this country but two years. Leaving France at the time of the occupation Mr. Levy came to this country and established residence in High Point. He now spends his winters in Chapel Hill where he is studying business administration and enjoys his hobbies of playwriting and acting under the tutelage of the dramatic art department.

In the role of Bessie, a Negro woman in whom is reincarnated the talent of an early Italian painter, is cast Mrs. Florence Busby, director of the Blue Mask Players of Catawba College and at present working for her master's degree at the University. Robert Bowers, assistant director for this production and familiar to most North Carolinians for his work in "The Lost Colony" as

See UNUSUAL, page 4

Landmark Enigma

Hippol Castle, Stronghold of the Gimghouls, Is Shrouded in Mystery and Mystic Legend

Martin Dreamed Of Castle in 1899

By Billy Webb

Shrouded in mystery and legend is Hippol castle, medieval stronghold of the Order of the Gimghouls.

Born in 1889 in the mystic imagination of Wray Martin, law school leader, Hippol castle was the fortress of an ancient city.

Martin fairly reveled in romance, constantly checking over such works as Sir Thomas Malory's "Morte d'Arthur." Vividly imaginative, he reconstructed his own age of chivalry, the glamour and beauty of that romantic era.

Strolled to Piney Prospect

Often he strolled to Piney Prospect, the present site of Gimghoul castle, in the dead of night and there lost himself in a mystic reverie. In the moonlight he gazed upon the panorama spread out before him. He saw the valley as a misty lake, the hills as a dozen or more islands reaching out of the cool water. Upon Piney Prospect he visualized the city of the Gimghouls with a royal palace and a massive fortress, Hippol castle. He recorded his reveries and they were later incorporated in the Gimghoul records.

Martin was also fascinated by the persistent legend surrounding the Dromgoole rock. Peter Dromgoole came to the University in 1831. A moody, silent lad, Dromgoole was the nephew of a prominent Virginia politician who had the misfortune of killing a Mr. Dugger in a duel. Dugger's son, Captain John E. Dugger, was then superintendent of the Raleigh graded school. After a short stay, Dromgoole disappeared without a trace. The woods were unsuccessfully combed for his body. The legend states that Dromgoole was murdered in a duel with Dugger, his body being carefully hidden under the round stone on the summit of Piney Prospect.

Even though for years the Order of the Gimghouls met in a lodge on Rosemary street, Martin's dream of the city of the Gimghouls was not forgotten. Invitations and proclamations were issued from "Hippol Castle," and the Piney Prospect site was held as sacred. Ambition of the Order was to make a reality the wild imaginings of Martin.

Residential Section Arose

Apprehension arose among the members of the order when the Paul Cameron estate, co-owners with the University of the section, began a move to develop the Piney Prospect site as a residential section. Residences would radically interfere with the traditional initiation built around the mysterious Dromboole rock. The first step toward realization of Mar-

See HIPPOL CASTLE, page 4

Turn Your Clock Back Tonight

University clocks will be turned back one hour at midnight tonight when daylight saving time goes into hibernation for the winter.

A free hour will be lived when timepieces pause at 12 o'clock to let the sun catch up. Cautioning statements have warned against confusion. Merely set your watch back an hour when you go to sleep, and when you awaken, you will be chronologically in tune with the world.

In a statement from the North Carolina budget bureau, state controlled institutions were advised to revert to Eastern Standard time at midnight tonight.

It was explained that Durham and the Eastern Seaboard turned their clocks back this morning, but Carolina, as a state institution must wait until midnight tonight.

Mann Says CAA Posts Still Open

"There are still from six to eight applications for the fall quarter CAA program that have to be filled," W. R. Mann, airport manager announced yesterday.

Those interested in applying should call Mr. Mann at the airport today and arrange to take the physical exam that will be given during the day by Dr. Morgan at the University infirmary.