Harrier Reserves Open Season Against Guilford Myers, Arbes Top Local's Scoring

Quakers Expected to Offer Locals Strong Opposition

By Bill Woestendiek

Carolina's cross country team, defending Southern conference champion, will swing into action for the first time this season this morning with a varsity reserve meet with Guilford at 11 o'clock. The race will start and finish on Fetzer field.

Today's meet will provide the long awaited glance at the Tar Heel sophomores, upon whose broad shoulders depends the future of this year's draft-shattered squad. Of the 11 men named by Coach Dale Ranson to start, five are second year men. Men running this morning are Jim Earle, John Eddy, Chuck Howe, Dick Hollander, Tom Jewett, Charlie Johnson, Buck Marrow, Jim Perrin, Zanny Riggs, Art Truxes and Lamar Wood.

Hollander, Jewett, Johnson, Perrin and Truxes are sophs, while Lamar Wood is the only one of the others who saw any varsity service last season. Guilford college is building its cross country squad around three lettermen and several freshmen this year, and should put a good team on the field this afternoon. Walter Patzig, captain and coach, Haul Reddick and Brad Leete compose the letterman trio. It is upon these three men that Guilford is placing its hopes in its bid for victory. Other prospects that have been working hard for starting positions are Thornton Sparrow, Ernest Ferris, Nat Cohen, William Douthit, Charles Monnett, "Shorty" Cockman, Wesley Collins, Walter Shaw, and Arthur Johnson. Today's meet with the Carolina reserves will also be the first meet of the season for the Quakers.

The Guilford men are confident that they can defeat the Tar Heel harriers over the rugged Carolina course, but the untested Carolinians will be contesting for coveted varsity assignments and intend to put forth their best effort of the year. The Quakers will not have to face the Carolina big four due to the fact that this morning's dual meet is a reserve meet. Captain Mike Wise, Rich Van Wagoner, Doug Moody and Frank Hardy form the quartet that will not see action today. These men ran a vigorous three and one-half mile trial yesterday afternoon, however, and crossed the finish mark in the good time of 19:20. The men stated that they were still not running at their top speed and can lower yesterday's mark. Wise and Van Wagoner both appeared to be in excellent shape.

Several freshmen runners started out with the above four, and Marvin Fairchild, Tom Pestronk, and George Lewis turned in performances that bode well for the future. The three men turned in times of 20:20, 21:25, and 22:20. After running in this morning's University Day meet, the Guilford team will be the guests of the university at the Fordham-Carolina tussel this afternoon.

any too impressive in three games.

Fordham arrived in Durham yesterday and took a light workout on the Duke stadium. The team won't come to Chapel Hill until shortly before the game.

The 1941 Cotton Bowl entry, which has come up with another fine line and its best "eight-horse" backfield, comes into the game at top strength. Alex

Students will be admitted to the game today at Gate 6 where Passbook slip No. 4 will be exchanged for a reserved seat ticket. Students are requested to sit in the seat called for on their ticket. Gates will open at 1:00 and students are urged to come early.

Santilli, 195-pound tackle, is suffering from a slight injury, but it isn't expected to put him out of commission. Jim Blumenstock, Steve Filipowicz, Benny Babula, Touchdown Twins Andrejco and Cheverko, Jim Noble and other Ram standouts are set for their exhibitions on Kenan.

Today's game will probably be one of the "passingest" games in the country, since the Tar Heels have done most of their scoring on passes this year and the Rams came from behind in the final 38 seconds against Southern. See FORDHAM, page 4

Kappa Sigma, Mangum, DKE Victorious

Mangum 58, Stacy 0. Sigma Nu 7, Kappa Alpha 0. Kappa Sigma 6, Phi Gamma Delta 0. Phi Kappa Sigma 14, TEP 0. DKE 19, Sigma Chi 6. Med School No. 1, 21, "226 Boys" 0.

Six mural football games were reeled off yesterday with Sigma Nu downing Kappa Alpha 7-0 and Kappa Sigma defeating the Phi Gams 6-0 in close contests.

George Coxhead tallied once and led the Sigma Nus in downing Kappa Alpha 7-0. Clark scored the extra point for the winners and completed the scoring for the contest. McNaughton and Bill Loock also played well for the victors. Gregory and Sebrell were best for the losers.

The champion Kappa Sigs barely eked out a 6-0 win over the Phi Gams. Bo Reynolds scored the only six-pointer of the game and shared offensive honors with Bob Rose and Cecil Wooten for the Kappa Sigs. Don Nicholson and Bob Hutchinson were standouts for the losing team. Mangum Wins Handily Mangum ran rough-shod over a weak Stacy team to triumph 58-0. Bob Fineberg scored twice, Ralph Burnette three times, Dillard Bullock twice and Jack Connelly once to lead the Mangum team. Tom Sparrow passed and ran well for the winners. George Hayes played a good game for the losers.

Rodman and Gibbons were outstanding in the Dekes 19-6 win over Sigma Chi. Truman Hobbs, Harold Maass, and Tommy Dill each tallied once for the Dekes and Parker scored for Sigma Chi. Bales and Antolini led the Sigma Chis.

Phi Kappa Sigs Win
Phi Kappa Sigma eliminated TEP 14-0 in another fraternity league match. Guy Byerly topped the winners with Salzburg showing up well for TEP.

Med School won another contest by defeating "226 Boys" 31-0 with ease. Kirksey was the mainstay of the winners scoring four of his team's five touchdowns. Reynolds added another touchdown to make the rout complete for the doctors.

Two Intersectional Games Highlight Conference Play

By Earle Hellen

Carolina and Clemson take the spotlight this week-end in Southern conference gridiron warfare by meeting two of the East's top football teams in intersectional games. The Tar Heels meet the Fordham Rams here in the top game in the South, while Clemson travels to Boston to battle the Boston College eleven.

The Clemson-Boston tilt has as its antecedent the Cotton Bowl game in 1940 when the Tigers took a 6-3 victory over the Easterners. The Boston club will be out to avenge that defeat which it hasn't forgotten. Boston College has another strong team this year although it lost to the great Tulane team 21-7 two weeks ago. The team has had two weeks of rest and is all set for the invasion of the Southerners.

Coach Frank Howard is carrying to Boston a team which has rolled over three opponents with remarkable ease and from these contests the Tigers look like they are headed for another great year.

From Rose Hill to Rose Bowl?

By Bob Stewart

The following analysis of the Fordham eleven was contributed by Bob Stewart, sports editor of The Fordham Ram, student weekly at Fordham university.

With the screams of the Polo Grounds throng that went delirious in the last quarter of the Southern Methodist game still ringing in their ears, the Fordham eleven collides with North Carolina this afternoon. Playing somewhat spotty football against the Mustangs, alternating from sheer brilliance to woeful ineptness the Rams got safely by their first hurdle on the long road to their ultimate goal. So close did they come to defeat that they are not cherishing any delusions as to their might. They are not taking the Tar Heels too lightly, and are full of determination to wipe the Southerners off their slate.

This Fordham team is geared for high, pulsating action. They never stop attacking. The Maroon backfield is staffed with the fastest group of high-stepping men seen on the Fordham campus. Here are the boys to watch this afternoon.

First and foremost is Jim Blumenstock. Don't take your eyes off him. If you do you may miss a touchdown. Now in his last year, he is in the best physical shape of his career and his mind is definitely set on All-American laurels. If he continues playing the brand of ball he displayed against SMU he should make it.

A step behind Blackie, comes the Fordham Flipper, Steve Filipowicz. Vaunted more for his "hang 'em on the hook" passing, Flip is no weakling when it comes to walloping the line for those extra yards. Then there are the two soph sensations, who came to Fordham from the same high school and who were known there as the touchdown twins. Joe Andrejco is the more dangerous of the two, and his 60-yard jaunt against the Mustangs for the first score was a thing of beauty.

Andrejco's run was made possible largely through the vicious block thrown by his twin, George Cheverko. He has been clearing the path for Andrejco ever since they were kids, and he's got it down pat now. Cheverko is also a potent man with placement kicking and he'll be in there this afternoon quite often.

The Ram is steered on the field by either Handsome Jim Noble or Peck Piculewicz. They share the quarterbacking and both of them are capable safety men and good pass receivers.

With such luminaries as these in the backfield, the line gets but little of the spotlight. But it is a typical Fordham line, and you gentlemen and ladies of the South have some reason to remember the "Seven Blocks of Granite" a few years back. However, it is generally understood up here that everyone of our opponents will score upon us this year, but they will not score often—or enough.

Captain Larry Sartori and Tommy Bennett are the head men up front, both of them being acidly-tested guards for three seasons. The rest of the line will see frequent substitutions, with all men giving adequate account of themselves. The only change in our line-up has been brought about by the injury to Alex Santilli, regular right tackle, in the SMU game. His place will be taken by either Matt Maryanski or Sophomore Joe Yachanich.

We know that you've been pointing for us, and we know what happened last year when you pointed for Duke. We're ready for a hard tough game—as all our games with you have been—and we're also ready and anxious to meet up with the real sportsmen of the South.
