

Town Wins Coed Hockey Tourney

Blue-Red League All-Star Game Scheduled Today

In one of the fastest games of the season, the Town lasses triumphed over McIver 1-0 to capture the coed hockey elimination tournament championship.

Led by the snappy playing of Aliene Brawley, center for the winners, Town rushed the goal to score in the second quarter, but failed to penetrate deep into their opponents' defensive territory again.

McIver's scrappy center-half, Mary Jane McCaskill, played a good game in the secondary. Hilda Bailey, captain of the losing team, also performed notably on defense.

Outstanding for the winners were Alice Morgan and Sarah Umstead, forwards, and Hilda Weaver, hard-driving fullback.

The coed hockey season officially closes today with a Red-Blue league all-star game at 4 o'clock.

Held for the first time this year, it is hoped that the contest will become an annual affair.

Managers Jean Wiers and Mary McCormic urge all players to be at the field on time.

Everett Wins In Mural Water Polo

A scrappy Everett team splashed its way to a 16-8 win over Med School in the mural water polo tourney earning the right to battle the Doctors in a return game Saturday at 4:30 for the dormitory crown. In the frat division Phi Delta Theta, the defending champions, disposed of ATO by a 19-8 score and will meet the Kappa Sigs this afternoon at 5 o'clock to determine the champion of that division.

Chan Highsmith with seven tallies and Bruce Bales with six paced the once-beaten Everett club. However, it was the teamwork of the squad that overcame the undefeated Med Schoolers. Boo Walker was best for the Doctors and tallied three points.

Byron Sherman and Denman Hammond shared scoring honors for the Phi Deltas with each man accounting for eight markers. The Phi Deltas' more experienced swimmers were on the offense most of the contest holding the ATO's to eight points. McClintic played well for ATO and scored two points.

BASKETBALL MENTOR

St. Joseph's One of East's Cage Powers in Recent Years

Philadelphia Five Plays Carolina January 3 in Intersectional Tilt

By Ben Snyder

When Bill Lange's White Phantom five invades Philadelphia's Convention hall on January 3, they will be stacking up against one of the outstanding basketball teams in the nation. St. Joseph's college, whom the Tar Heels oppose on that date, perennially field a quintet of championship caliber and this year will be no exception.

Giving up football four years ago because it interfered with the playing of basketball, St. Joe's was one of the first of the smaller colleges in the country to abandon the more expensive grid game in preference to the cage sport.

The Philadelphia school came into basketball prominence six years ago when Coach Bill Ferguson brought forth on hardwood one of the finest clubs ever to be seen in the East. Led by giant center Matt Guokas, and featuring four men under 5' 10" in height, the "Mighty Mites," as they were dubbed, swept through sectional and intersectional competition for four years—the freshman rule not being recognized at St. Joseph's during their first year of competition.

Carolina Wins in 1937

The Mites went unbeaten for three years, dropping such court combats as Pennsylvania, Temple and NYU with regularity. Then in the middle of January 1937, Carolina sent a ball club up to Convention hall that staggered the Hawks, 36-34, ending their sensational streak and inaugurating a red-hot intersectional rivalry. Following that defeat, St. Joe's went on to rack up another successful season, but Hawk teams since that time have been doing their level best to avenge that set-back.

The following season saw Ferguson's team win over Carolina 34-29 and the series was broken until last year when St. Joseph's won a thrilling 42-41 decision at Philadelphia.

Everything points to another great game this season. Both squads have lost their last year's stars through graduation. Bill Lange's George Glumack, who scored 18 points against the Hawks in the defeat last winter, has departed as has Larry Kenney, who paced the St. Joe's five with 14 markers against Carolina.

Veteran Team

Unfortunately the comparison ends there, for Ferguson has a full squad reporting back, while Lange has been forced to experiment with a green team. George "Doc" Senesky, at guard, will lead the home team against Carolina, while Butz, Kraft, Kelleher and Coughlin, who round out the starting five, all saw plenty of action against the Phantoms last year.

That game will open an all-star intersectional schedule for St. Joe's which includes games with Colorado, Oklahoma A & M, West Texas State, Virginia, and De Paul. Ferguson has been quoted as saying in reference to the stiff schedule attempted by his team that "my club this year will not be defeated without a struggle; they have plenty of fight and ability and will only be forced to fight against overconfidence." Again this year, St. Joe's will feature a fast breaking offense and a man-to-man defense—a method of play that has stood them in good stead throughout past years.

Individual Duels Head Annual Fish Bowl Meet Between Varsity-Frosh

By Harry Hollingsworth

Individual duels between members of Carolina's varsity swimming team and swimmers of the freshman team will feature four events of the fourth annual Fish Bowl meet tomorrow afternoon. The meet will start at 4:30 in Bowman Gray swimming pool in Woolen gymnasium.

Three other events—the two distance swims and the backstroke—will be marked by duels between members of the varsity team.

Chapel Hill Five Plays Men of Mullis

The Mighty Men of Mullis open their season against their ancient and bitter rivals, the Chapel Hill high quint, tonight at 6:45 o'clock in Woolen gym.

The Men of Mullis are the third and fourth string freshman basketball players who are coached by Pete Mullis, the assistant frosh cage mentor.

Coach Mullis has been working his squad hard for the last two weeks preparing it for the big game tonight. Starting with approximately 35 boys at the first practice, the squad has decreased to its present strength of 12 as the others have dropped off the squad. Mullis has rounded into shape a flashy first five with a capable reserve team ready to relieve it.

Chapel Hill Tough

In the past the games with the Chapel Hill Tigers have been hard fought and the Men of Mullis have a definite lead in victories in the long series. Reports from the Chapel Hill camp last night stated that the high school boys have one of the best teams in recent years and are confident of winning tonight. Coach Mullis was hard-pressed to issue a statement but finally consented. He said, "My team has been looking good in recent practices and it will be at top strength for the game tonight. I am confident of a victory."

The starting five for the Men of Mullis will be Snag Clark and Frank Wideman at forwards, Arthur Bowman at center, Bob Rouse and Joe Wright at guards. Other members of the team are Williard Kaylor, Sam Ward, and Wallace Womble, forwards; Monroe Burrus at center; and Ed Johnson, Harold Weinkle, and Delmar Williams, guards.

A special scholarship is maintained at Dartmouth college for a "religious man from Missouri."

The contest, which brings to close the fall practice session, has been termed the "best swimming meet to be held in the pool this season" by both Coaches Dick Jamerson and Ralph Casey.

And that statement covers a lot of swimming meets, for the University of Florida, long-time champions of the southeastern conference, brings its crack squad here this season.

Shumate and Weiss

Probably the best events tomorrow will be in the distance and sprint swims. Ed Shumate, sophomore, and Andy Weiss, junior, will tie up in the distance events and a new Fish Bowl record will probably be set. Last Saturday they tied in the 200-meter swim in the time of 2:29.5 and Weiss edged Shumate out in the 400-meters by a bare six inches in the time of 5:34.5. There are no freshmen on Ralph Casey's team which can compete with Shumate and Weiss.

But the story is not the same in the sprints. Warner Mallison, a tall, lanky freshman, won both the 50- and 100-meter events in the freshman-varsity reserve meet last Saturday and may possibly repeat tomorrow. His chief competitor in the 50-meter event will be Jack Eshelman and in the 100 Whit Lees, senior letterman, will offer the frosh star the most competition.

Ousley and Whitner

Another good race looms in the breaststroke. Bob Ousley, varsity performer, is Southern conference champion in the event, but George Whitner, freshman, has turned in better times this year than Ousley. In a practice meet two weeks ago Whitner did 1:12.9 for 100-meters, some 1.1 seconds better than Ousley has marked up this season.

An indication of how close the diving will be is the fact that there were less than five points difference in the scores of Buddy Crone, Mac Earle, and Johnny Feuchtenberger last Saturday. Crone won, but when the diving is that close it's difficult to predict the winner of a forthcoming meet. Don Nicholson, Southern conference diving champion, will be out until after Christmas recovering from a broken wrist.

Denman Hammond, the best backstroker in the Southern conference, has the backstroke event already won, but

Humphries, Choice of Fans To Play Gehrig in Movie

Ex-Carolina Star Leads Poll Held By Sporting News

If baseball fans have their way about it, the man to fill the role of the late Lou Gehrig in the forthcoming film to be produced by Samuel Goldwyn will be Johnny Humphries, star pitcher on the University of North Carolina's 1936 baseball team.

This choice of Humphries was the result of a poll conducted by The Sporting News, official baseball weekly newspaper feature, and the survey showed the fans definitely favored a ball player for the role rather than a movie star. However, in the event a screen performer is selected the voters designated their choice as Gary Cooper, one of the movies' leading actors and a former Academy Award winner.

44 Candidates

Forty-four candidates were nominated for the Gehrig role and the selections were strictly on a basis of physical appearance. The question put before the fans was which one of the diamond and screen stars most closely resembles Gehrig.

The Sporting News collected many photographs of all the nominees, and the decision narrowed down to two ball players and one actor. The athletes were Humphries and Albert Hollingsworth, pitcher of Sacramento in the Pacific Coast League. The actor was Eddie Albert, whose head and face greatly resemble Gehrig.

Humphries Leads

Humphries, who has a close facial resemblance to the great Yankee first baseman, even to the dimpled chin, led in the total number of votes received by The Sporting News. He was followed by Elburt Fletcher, first baseman of the Pittsburgh Pirates, Gary Cooper, and Eddie Albert in the order named.

According to its producers, this film will emphasize Gehrig the man rather than Lou the ball player. The picture will reveal the personal story of Gehrig as a boy and show how he, with the help of his mother, overcame physical handicaps, went on to receive his college education at Columbia and became one of the great stars of the sport—a hero to old and young, who bore all his honors modestly.

Attended Carolina

Humphries attended Carolina in 1935 and 1936 and as a sophomore in 1936 he showed possibilities of developing into one of the University's all-time pitching greats.

Professional scouts followed him throughout his sophomore season and early that summer he was purchased by Cleveland and sent to New Orleans, Southern association farm club of the Indians. Humphries enjoyed two successful seasons with New Orleans and then was called up to Cleveland where he served as reserve pitcher in 1939 and 1940.

Last season he was traded to the Chicago White Sox and turned in the best performance of his brief Major League career. He won 5 games and lost 2 and two of his victories came on shutouts.
