

Hendrix Elected President Of Interdormitory Council

Manly, Petrie, Leslie Named

The Interdormitory Council elected new officers who took over their duties immediately, and appointed a committee to recommend an amendment to the constitution which would allow election of dormitory officers next fall at Tuesday night's meeting in Memorial hall.

Moyer Hendrix became president of the Interdormitory Council replacing George Hayes. Jim Manly became vice-president, Bill Petrie, secretary, and Jim Leslie, treasurer, replacing Johnny Johnson, Pat Witherington, and Robert Kornegay.

Mike Mangum, Dick Jones, Johnny Johnson, and Dave Barksdale were appointed to the committee to recommend the amendment.

All room reservations for next year were cancelled in order to provide equal opportunity for students evicted this spring from lower quad dormitories to secure rooms next fall. The present constitution provides that dormitory officers for the next school year should be elected in spring. In order to give the men who will actually room in the dormitories the opportunity to elect their own officers the committee is to draft an amendment that will permit dormitory elections to be held early next year.

burden as mistress of a house without roof, water, walls and cleanliness. She was the outstanding character on the stage and her calm perturb set the satirical pace of the show.

Joe Rubenstone, as Mr. Kimber, the rotund gentleman who purchased wagonloads of manure with the finesse of Lucius Beebe ordering poisson marguery and Piper Heidsieck '23. Rubenstone had a high pitched voice which may have ruined some of his rustic laughs but he certainly looked the part and subtle directing technique gave him the essence of the character he was supposed to portray.

Diddy Kelley and Russel Rogers took juvenile leads ably and Lillian Prince dropped one about a "horse in the kitchen" that wowed 'em. Lucile Culbert bore her crust of disgust with sophistication and the theater with a little too much forcedness. Her lines were good, however, and she made every one count for all the fun latent in it.

Bob Carroll, a don Juanesque actor, appeared for only a few minutes but his romantic moues were sexy as a censors nightmares. Phyllis Parker was a smirking neighbor who later unknowingly saved the family from being cast out into the snow.

Virginia Archer played the maid. She was all maid. She caused trouble for the Fullers but fun for the audience. Buddy Westover, as a troublesome little brat could have been strangled by everybody in the audience for a very small fee. His voice fluctuated overly much, but he was mean as a boil, played his brattiness to its utmost. Art Conescu was sufficiently tough as a bothersome neighbor but W. T. Chichester wins honors for the smoothest characterization of the evening.

He takes the part of Uncle Stanley. All Uncle Stanley's nephews kowtow to his whims because they think he is going to leave them tidy nest-eggs when he finally passes into the great beyond. Uncle Stanley, it turns out, "hasn't a gawddam cent" and the way he lets them know of that fact is the most perfectly spoken line of the show.

Paul D'Elia, Lee Zimmer, Barbara Anne Shields, and Elizabeth Blair are weekend guests who manage to become bored without producing the same sensation in the audience. Miss Blair does all right for herself for a gal who doesn't say anything.

The Playmakers have done another excellent job of comedy presentation. We would like to see Wynn apply his special brand of treatment to something a trifle meatier, but in this instance he has started with no play

Cochrane Returns From Hospital, Announces Events

Bill Cochrane, returning from Watts hospital in Durham to finish his term of office as Graham Memorial director, yesterday announced the program scheduled for the coming week.

Continuing the policy of free and public dances, the "Rangoon Rattle" will be given in the main lounge from 9 until 12 o'clock Saturday night.

The Shaw University Choral Society, recognized as one of the outstanding "symphonic" choral organizations in the United States, will appear in concert Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock in Hill Music hall. Under the direction of Harry Gil-Smythe, the choir will sing classics, art songs and folk music.

Monday night at 8:15 in Gerrard hall, Dr. Franz J. Polgar, hypnotist and wizard of mental telepathy, will exhibit his mind-reading powers, spicing them with mirth and mystification. Brought here under the auspices of Graham Memorial, Dr. Polgar has been described as the "most amazing personality of the year."

Bridge enthusiasts will meet in the first bridge tournament of the quarter at 7 o'clock next Wednesday night. Students and faculty members may enter. Howard Duerer, tournament technician, will be in charge.

student body, stressed the importance of students voting according to their residences. Valid proof of University registration will be requested of those students not listed in the new directory drawn up by the YMCA.

The balloting will be closely watched and double-checked to prevent a student voting in two different precincts, it was stated.

In order to prevent added confusion at the polls, no one will be allowed to distribute political literature within the doors of the polling place.

Climaxing the frantic last-minute campaigning, candidates and students will gather in Graham Memorial tonight for the Daily Tar Heel elections party to begin at 8 o'clock. Latest tabulations as released by the Student council counters will be flashed to the assemblage via a public address system emanating from the news rooms of the Daily Tar Heel.

Official posters will keep a tabular record of the returns as they come precinct-by-precinct on giant blackboards set up in the main lounge. The Union will serve refreshments and Mary Caldwell, WGA president, announced that coeds have late permission until 12:30.

All candidates, whether or not they have spent money for political purposes, must turn in a report to the elections committee of the student legislature by 6 o'clock tonight in the editorial office of the Daily Tar Heel, second floor of Graham Memorial.

at all, has wound up with notable comic entertainment.

A little pome expresses the mood of the show: "If Washington had laid his head In everyplace that history said It's no wonder he's the daddy of our nation."

Dies Attacks

Asked if he wouldn't say a few words about that "great American patriot, Martin Dies?" the Price-Fixer drew roars of laughter from the audience when he responded after some hesitation, "... it always happens once an evening—a question the speaker can not answer glibly. I can only repeat what I have stated on other occasions. 'I will eat on the steps of the Treasury building at high noon any organization I have belonged to that Martin Dies proves is subversive. Of course there are some high school groups I belonged to that his flat-feet haven't gotten around to inspecting yet,'" he added with a smile.

DTH Modernizes Motif; Staff Meeting Called

Modernization is the motif with your daily newspaper this week. For the next few days you will see some experimentation with the nameplate, makeup, etc. If anything strikes your fancy or displeasure let us know about it.

The staff of the Daily Tar Heel will meet in the news office at 7 o'clock tonight.

Our patrons are reminded once again of the gala Tar Heel elections party starting at 8 o'clock and are asked to please not phone either office of the DTH as that will only add to the general confusion. Coeds will be allowed to stay out until 12:30 tonight.
