Ambassador To Speak Tonight

Ciechanowski Reports at 8:30

International Relations Club's address by Jan Ciechanowski, Poland's begin tonight at 8:30 in cooperation Ambassador to the United States, will begin tonight at 8:30 in cooperation with International Student Day commemoration plans.

Dr. Ervin P. Hexner, associate professor in the University political science department and a native of Czechoslovakia, will introduce the emissary, IRC President Elton Edwards said yesterday.

In addition to his report on Poland's contribution today to the war against the Axis, Ciechanowski is expected to picture especially the situation of the students suffering in occupied countries.

According to YM-YWCA, Di, Phi, CPU and IRC heads, the speech will end the one-day observance of International Student Day. Ciechanowski has already agreed to participate in an open question-and-answer forum following his address in Memorial hall.

IRC members will hold a regular honorary banquet in the Carolina Inn tonight at 6:30. Graham Memorial will hold a reception for the ambassador's party after the open forum. Students will be invited to meet and talk with Poland's envoy during the reception.

Discussion Rages At Phi Meeting Over War Issues

Heated discussion was in evidence at the regular meeting of the Philanthropic Assembly last night when the members debated two bills dealing with war problems.

The first bill asked that the war be financed by taxation entirely doing away with war bonds. In introducing this bill, E. O. Brogden said that in continuing the policy of selling war bonds, another inflation period after the war "would come because so many people and banks would have extra money to spend and invest". He also said that the interest on the bonds is "terrific" and it would be simpler to get money to finance the war by taxation.

The main objection to this proposal was that industry and people could not do their best work if high taxes were fronting them. People would be forced to borrow money to pay their taxes and this would throw the majority of the people into debt.

The second bill presented by E. O. Brogden stated that the General Assembly do something about the ruling recently put into effect by the public instruction authorities doing away with foreign languages as a requirement for graduation from high school. Arguments for this bill brought out that foreign languages help a great deal in the study of English and that more people are needed who understand other languages.

Coed Senate Meets Today

The coed senate will hold a call meeting today at 5 p. m., in Gerrard hall to make final arrangements for the WGA sponsored student government training school which will prepare coeds for an examination on student government which is required of all those interested in running for office.

Booklets on the subject are being prepared and will be ready to distribute sometime this week. Other items on the agenda include the approval of the constitution of subsidiary organizations, the discussion of visiting in town homes, the junior elections the first week in December, and the proposal of two amendments to the WGA constitution.

The 14 senate members will be photographed for the Yackety-Yack following the meeting, and are urged by speaker Ditz Buice to attend.

Edwards Wins Presidency

IRC Elections Fill Three Posts

Elton Edwards, junior law student from Goldsboro, was unanimously elected to the presidency of the International Relations club Monday night.

Paul Kattenburg, native Belgian student, was voted new vice-president and George Stammer of Summit, N. J. was made new publicity director.

Edwards is also the speaker of the Philanthropic assembly, member of the Debate squad and in the CVTC. He was the IRC's vice-president and served on IRC banquet, speaker and poll committees.

The new president was a student legislature member last year, on the DAILY TAR HEEL staff last year and secretary and vice-president of the Young Democrats club. In the Phi, Edwards has served as sergeant-at-arms and speaker pro-tem. He has been prominent in WSSF, Greek and China war relief drives. He is enlisted in the Army Reserve.

Kattenburg has been the IRC's institute program committee chairman. He enrolled as a Carolina student after escaping from France the day after the armistice with Germany and from London after almost two months of the heaviest bombing, in August and September, 1940.

Stammer will succeed Walter Klein. He has been assistant publicity director throughout the fall quarter.

"I'm very pleased, of course, with my election to this position and I am very grateful to the members of the IRC for their backing. I can promise the campus fewer, bigger and better speakers and an equally extensive program in comparison with past quarters."

Legislature Holds Meeting Tonight

Inactive last week, the student legislature will hold its regular meeting at 8:30 tonight in New East, announced W. J. Smith, speaker of the house.

Comer Drafts Chest Plans In Meeting

Osborne Explains Drive to Greeks

As the $10,000 Carolina War Chest closed its first day of the two week drive, Harry Comer, treasurer of the Chest announced new plans and final set-up of the working committees.

Comer said that at last night's Interfraternity council meeting all representatives were appraised of the part fraternity funds will be asked to play in reaching the $10,000 goal. Bucky Osborne, Chest fraternity head, presented the program to the council.

To clear up any question concerning fund drive machinery, Comer also announced the list of leaders of the Carolina War Chest divisions.

Designed to replace the numerous small fund appeals on the campus, the Chest has set up groups to canvass every section of the student body.

Executive committee members are Bert Bennett, Marcia Hood, Bernard Moser, Nancy Smith, Martha Johnson, and Comer.

Heads of the men and women's divisions are Sara Sutton and Jack Shelton.

Miss Sutton has divided her group into three main categories, Town Girls, dormitories, and sororities. Ditz Buice is the leader of the workers contacting town girls, Julia Mebane and Marcia Hood head the dormitory group, Mary Lib Masengill and Mary Martha Cobb are chiefs of the sorority unit.

Following the same general plan, Shelton appointed Barry Colby to head the Town Boy's group, Moyer Hendrix for the dormitories, and Bucky Osborne to lead the fraternity workers.

Chest members under these leaders will play the major and most vital part in the drive, completely canvassing all students in their section before the end of the campaign for the Carolina War Chest.

Louise Fleming To Discuss Coeds In YWCA Address

Miss Louise Fleming of the national YWCA headquarters will make an address tomorrow at 7 p. m. in Gerrard hall.

Miss Fleming will speak on the topic, "Women: War and Work," in which she will discuss government positions needing women workers, the branches of the armed services open to them and the places that a college graduate may occupy in essential private business.

She is in close touch with the War Manpower Board and has studied the situation facing wartime colleges and their coed graduates, the Y announces. Formerly, she served as resident secretary of the house.

All Campus Celebrates Student Day

Hexner Opens Program Tonight

Carolina's celebration of International Student Day, postponed because of the mixup in the schedule of Polish Ambassador Jan Ciechanowski, will be observed today.

CPU, IRC, YMCA, YWCA, Di, and Phi heads, working in close cooperation, have mapped out the entire program for tonight. First portion of the observance in Memorial hall, starting at 8:30 p. m., will be an address by Ervin P. Hexner, associate professor in the political science department, on the significance of International Student Day to students all over the world.

He will then introduce the main speaker of the evening, IRC's Jan Ciechanowski, who is expected to devote part of his talk to the plight of students in Nazi-dominated Europe and especially in Poland.

An open forum after the Ambassador's speech, in which he will answer questions on his address and conditions of students all over the world, will end the day-long celebration of International Student Day.

During the entire program, representatives from all the foreign nations who have sent students to Carolina this year will be on the stage. A partial listing of such countries includes China, France, Belgium, Peru, Venezuela, Argentina, Chile, and Puerto Rico. They will also take part in a short pre-speech feature.

Yesterday was set aside by the students of the world to "memorialize those students and teachers everywhere who have fallen victims to the brutality of the attack of the aggressor powers on free, democratic education; it also pledges the continued resistance of students to the cynical aggression of Nazi Germany, Japan and Italy."

International Student Day was celebrated openly in all colleges of the free United Nations yesterday.

'All World United Over Student Day' Declares Comer

"International Student Day is not so much a commemoration of something that happened in Czechoslovakia, but it is a declaration - a declaration of the solidarity of students all over the world," said Harry Comer in opening the program at the YMCA supper forum last night.

Lily T'ang, speaking for the Chinese students, declared it was "almost impossible" to imagine the plight of the students. "Almost all the universities have been closed by the Japanese or moved inland to free China areas. There was no transportation to the interior, so the students walked, some of them a distance of 10,000 miles. They have no equipment for conducting classes. There are no books, papers, not even a guarantee that classes will be undisturbed by bombing."

Giving a few terse facts about the European situation, Paul Kattenburg pointed out the great need for help in Europe. "Most of the Belgian and French students are now either in concentration camps or working in German factories. Students and faculty in France and Belgium have openly resisted Nazi attempts to superimpose their own educational ideas of these universities."

Ed Ota, former Japanese American student from Seattle, Washington, and now a student at Guilford College, described the tragic plight of these students, most of them American citizens, who had to give up their education because of the war. In the University of Seattle alone there were 450 such students, and 20 faculty members who were Japanese Americans. Much is being done to relocate these students in colleges not in coastal areas so that they may finish their education.

Bard to Make CPU Speech Students, Cadets Invited Saturday

Second Carolina Political Union speaker of the year will be Ralph Bard, assistant secretary of the Navy, who will appear in Memorial hall Saturday at 8 p. m., Dick Bailey, chairman of the CPU announced yesterday.

Bard, gaining fame in the business world before he entered politics, is well qualified to give first hand information on men who work behind the scenes in the Navy. As he terms it, they are the "unsung heroes." The speech was especially arranged for Saturday in order that naval cadets may attend as well as students and faculty members.

It was learned late yesterday that Josephus Daniels, former American ambassador to Mexico and now editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, will introduce the speaker. "Bard is the first government official to come to Chapel Hill who can really give a factual report on the duties of the Navy department in time of war."

A CPU banquet has been arranged for the speaker at the Carolina Inn at 6 p. m. Saturday. Following the speech an open forum will be held, but no question period has been definitely decided upon.

In order to speak here and attend to pressing naval affairs in Washington, Bard will fly to Chapel Hill by plane, arriving late Saturday afternoon.

Assuring himself of a successful career in Chicago business finance early in the century, Bard became well known throughout American business circles before turning to his present government position. He was appointed by President Roosevelt in February 1941 to fill the position left vacant by former-assistant Compton.

By Bob Levin

A 16-man joint Army, Navy and Marine Corps enlistment board, headed by Captain G. E. Pilgrim, will visit Carolina all day tomorrow to hold physical and mental examinations for all reserve units and conclude the day with a mass induction ceremony.

Announced yesterday by W. D. Perry, head of the bureau of war information, the board will draw its enlistments from the ranks of the 400 students on campus who are not yet enrolled in a reserve branch.

Examinations for the Army enlisted Reserve Corps will be held in Room 310 Woollen gymnasium from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. tomorrow with Captain Pilgrim, president of the board, in charge and assisted by Sgt. James Nash and Sgt. Williard Dunn.

Perry said that no examinations for the Army Air Corps would be given but that if enough students sign with his office for the examination a special representative will come to the campus before the Christmas vacations.

Navy and Marine examinations for V-1, V-5, V-7 and the regular Marine program will be held in the men's lounge of Woollen gymnasium from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. under the command of Captain C. C. Dawes and Lieut. Charles Burts.

Di Defeats Bill To Ban Liquor From Army Areas

The Di senate last night defeated by 38 to 6 a bill to prohibit the sale of alcoholic beverages in the vicinity of army camps.

Last night's discussion of a similar bill now before Congress drew many interesting discussions from the floor. Argument against the bill was based mainly upon facts brought out in personal contacts in army areas, mainly Fayetteville, Columbia and Charlotte. The point that a soldier would drink no matter how hard a time he would have finding alcohol was also advanced in the argument.

Argument favoring the bill was based mainly on the example of Navy men getting no alcoholic beverages on ships and the physical harm of drinking.

It was announced at the meeting last night that another initiation will be held next week in order that a full roll can be had next quarter.
