

Frosh, Sophs, 17, Have to March 15 To Enlist in USNR

Seventeen-year-old college men have until March 15 to enlist in the officer-candidate program of the Naval Reserve, Captain M. C. Robertson, USNR, Director of Sixth Naval District Officer Procurement, announced in Atlanta, Ga.

The V-1 program was designed originally for freshmen and sophomore college students and, as it concerns 17-year-olds, was not affected by the President's recent order stopping voluntary enlistments.

Only 17-year-old applicants who are regularly enrolled freshmen or sophomore students or have been accepted for admission as such are eligible to sign up, Captain Robertson said.

Seventeen-year-old high school seniors graduating in February must be accepted and actually enrolled as a student in the colleges as of March 15 to be eligible for the V-1 program.

Youths wishing to enroll under the Navy's V-1 program may apply at the Office of Naval Officer Procurement, 721 Healey Bldg., Atlanta; Lynch Building, Jacksonville; University of South Carolina, Columbia; N. C. State college, Raleigh.

The service flag of red, white, and blue now waving over the buildings department and exhibiting its 17 blue stars, was put there by members of the department, D. M. Horner, superintendent of maintenance, admitted yesterday.

"Everybody in the department had a hand in putting it up," said Horner. "There is space for 30 stars on it, and each of the 17 that are there now represents one man from our group who has joined the armed forces."

Mrs. C. M. Graham and Mrs. Cook sewed on the stars, he said.

Negro Law School Plans to Graduate First Bar Candidate

By Jane Cavanaugh
Launched in 1939, the law school of the North Carolina College for Negroes is now sailing under its own power as it prepares to graduate its first law student this year. During the first years, the faculty of the University of North Carolina instructed all the classes and Dean M. T. Van Hecke served as acting dean.

Established in Durham by legislative authority four years ago, as a result of a Supreme Court decision declaring equal educational opportunities must be offered to the Negroes in the state, the law school failed to get students for its first year, but in 1940 five students enrolled.

At present Albert Turner, colored college graduate and L.L.B. is acting as dean and there are three Negro teachers. Professors Frank W. Hanft, and M. S. Breckenridge of the University are now conducting special courses there. The Negro students frequently come to Chapel Hill to use the law library.

According to professors, the negro students work at their profession harder than the average white student and make good grades. The most promising are invited to write in the North Carolina Law Review. William A. Bond, only member of the senior class, is now at work on his first article to be published in the next issue.

The law school now numbers one senior and four first year students including one girl.

SELF-HELP

the time clock for a total of 30 hours per week, still finds time to pursue a major in commerce, chat about fellow Army Air Corps Reservists, take in every other movie that hits Chapel Hill and dash home to the Carolina Coop now and again for some real recreation with "the guys there." Morgan favorites include dogs, shows, women, ice cream and wrestling. This whiz soda-jerker, who reaches the yardstick at five feet eight inches if he's allowed to stretch a point or two, even indulged in a few intercollegiate wrestling bouts last year.

Reitzel and his cohorts applied for and received their self-help jobs through the office of E. S. Lanier, director of all student aid appropriations at Carolina. From this same office come reports that in the past six months the student aid situation here has been completely and positively reversed. Whereas until the summer of 1942 Lanier always had a tremendously long waiting list of applicants asking for either or both NYA and University sponsored self help jobs, today he has a tremendously long list composed of potential employees not asking but begging for help.

"Most acute shortages of help at present are in the dining halls and downtown business establishments," explained the man from South Carolina as he glanced at the ever growing pile in the file marked Jobs To Be Filled. "And to complete the picture be sure to add that we still have 14 scholarships that have not been used this quarter." Qualifications for scholarships, as outlined by Lanier, are based on the individual's actual financial need and his previous high scholastic record. Loan funds, granted through application to the student aid office, are also for the first time nearly untapped sources.

Three reasons were cited by Lanier for the reversal of the student financial situation. Firstly, and most obviously, more money is in circulation today, therefore students whose parents have this money no longer need to work while in school. Secondly, many students who

Toms, Fitz-Simons Apply Professional Polish to "Iolanthe"

Under the direction of a top professional singer and a long experienced actor, Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera, "Iolanthe", is getting a gradual professional polish before it is to be presented to the student body February 5 and 6.

The show, which is under the auspices of the Student Entertainment Series and Carolina Playmakers, has John Toms, a professional singer, for the job of conducting the music of the opera. Toms sang the role Tololler in "Iolanthe", during his two year sojourn with the Philadelphia Opera Company.

Foster Fitz-Simons, director of the show, was one of the most sought after actors when he was an undergraduate in the department of dramatic art here at the University. Quite by accident, he got into Ted Shawn's dance group and toured the country from coast to coast. From there he went on by himself in the field of dancing until he reached national fame and attained the high honor of being invited to dance with his partner, Miriam Winslow, in the Rainbow Room of Rockefeller Center in New York.

Tickets for reserved seats may now be obtained for "Iolanthe" at the Carolina Playmakers' business office, 209 Phillips Hall or at Ledbetter-Pickard. Admission to this Winter quarter musical may be had upon presentation of either a Student Entertainment Series season ticket or a Carolina Playmakers season ticket. In cases where one person in possession of both season tickets, he may obtain a ticket and a refund of twenty-five cents upon presentation of both.
