Carolina To Turn-Over Dorms To Navy

Town Meeting Speakers Argue Peace Planning Now

Legislature Sets Up Committee To Study Freezing

Faculty Men Appear on Air As Challengers

Ball and Flynn Give Opposing Viewpoints

Minnesota Senator Joseph H. Ball and New York economist John T. Flynn last night argued the feasibility of United Nations peace-planning organization now on the opening program of the April 8-16 Institute of Human Relations.

Speaking on the Town Meeting of the Air, broadcast from Memorial hall, the legislator supported the affirmative of the night's question, "Should the United Nations Organize Now," and the economist attacked any program calling for statement of peace plans and policies at a time when it might "embarrass all concerned."

Challenges

At the conclusion of the two addresses, two Carolina faculty men, Dr. Archibald Henderson and Dr. Ray Newsome, served as the radio program's "challengers." Henderson questioned Flynn while Newsome took issue with Ball's statements.

George Denny, Carolina alumnus and founder of the Town Meeting, presided.

Today's Speakers

South America, "land of opportunity of the 20th century," will hold the stage today as the Institute of Human Relations enters its second day.

Dr. Hubert Herring, noted educator and long-time student of Latin America will be the speaker at tonight's Memorial hall meeting, slated for 8:30 o'clock. Together with other experts on the United States' relations with her Good Neighbors, Herring will lead the afternoon luncheon conference at 1 o'clock.

Herring

In recent years, Herring has made annual trips to South and Central American countries, as reported today.

An address by Dean of Men Roland Parker and speeches by Bennett and Robinson will open the meeting. The latter part of the session will be turned into an open discussion on freezing.

The student body was invited to attend. Members of the Council will be introduced after the inauguration of the vice-president and the secretary-treasurer.

The new legislature, presided over by Terrell Webster, will also be present at the final meeting.

Experimental Tryouts Scheduled for Today In Playmaker Theater

Tryouts for the 89th Bill of Experimental Plays, to be produced April 20, during the Carolina Workshop Festival, will be held today at 4 p. m. in the Playmakers Theatre.

The following plays have been chosen for production: "Old Worlds for New," a domestic drama of New York City, by David Hanig; "Backstreet Blues," a song-picture of the people in the streets of Baltimore, by Walter Carroll; and "Never Miss a Trick," a gruesome black-out skit about ghosts and graveyards, by Marion Gurney.

"This is the most important Bill of Experimentals of the year," Professor Samuel Selden stated yesterday, "because it will be produced during the Carolina Workshop Festival, as the Carolina Playmakers' contribution to the festivities. Hence we want to stress that everyone interested in acting is welcome to try out for roles in the plays."

Webster Sees Need in Future For Such Plans

Committee Heads Named in Meeting

Terrell Webster, newly-inaugurated Speaker of the legislature, yesterday released preliminary plans for his organization's investigation into methods for freezing student government in anticipation of "the necessity to take steps in this direction at some future date."

First action to set up freezing machinery was the appointment at the Wednesday night meeting of the legislature of an emergency committee to study all such plans so far proposed. Already named to do this work are Harvey Hamilton, E. O. Brogden, Nick Long, Billy Britt and Charles Johnson. Ex officio members are Bucky Harward, Dean Parker and John Robinson.

Webster Statement

In a statement to the legislature, Webster said that there were three alternatives student leaders can choose from. The most drastic would be freezing.

Acting as spokesman for the two, Carmichael stated, "there is no disposition in the administration to question the motives of those supporting the Swain investigation. We believe that they are sincere in trying to get the best possible food at the lowest prices. I do think, however, that there are some who are trying to get in on this investigation like a buzzard on a carcass."

Carmichael

Carmichael then repeated his former suggestion that a committee of those interested in the problem be formed and that the business office would cooperate with them in seeing "that all efforts were being bent to see that something be done to lower Swain

Steele To Remain Open For Civilian Freshmen

By Sara Yokley

Steele was left last night as the only civilian men's dormitory when Guy B. Phillips, secretary of the War College, announced that Navy V-12 students will be housed in Old East, Old West, BVP and Whitehead, beginning July 1.

Navy Groups To Pick Coeds For Training

Officer candidates in the WAVES and SPARS will be selected from qualified coeds of the senior class, Ensign Mary Frances Ivey and Dr. W. D. Perry announced yesterday.

Those coeds who apply for enlistment will first be considered by a committee on the campus, and then, if approved, will be sent to the Office of Naval Officer Procurement in Raleigh where official Navy tests will be administered.

Eligibility

To be eligible a woman student must be scheduled to graduate at the end of the second Summer session or before at which time she must be at least 20 years old. Upon enlistment she will be deferred until she graduates. Physical qualifications will be considered only by the Raleigh department, not by the local office.

The judging committee consists of Miss Elizabeth Huntley of the Dean of Women's office, Miss Marie Thomas, and Dr. Perry. Their approval will be necessary before a coed will be considered by the Navy.

Applications

Applications should be filed with Miss Thomas in the Bureau of Military and Vocational Training, Raleigh, N. C.

See NAVY, page 3

The two summer school sessions, from June 10 to July 20 and from July 20 to August 27, will run concurrently with the Navy college training program beginning July 1.

Mr. Phillips called attention to the special offerings in chemistry, physics, the sciences and math, designed to meet the needs of deferred students.

Catalogue

The summer school catalogue went to press this week and will soon be available with the list of subjects to be taught this summer.

Phillips stressed the fact that there is no uncertainty about summer school for regular students or those from other schools. These and all occupationally deferred students will be able to get courses that will fit into their regular college program.

prices. This committee should work calmly and efficiently to ascertain the facts."

He also stated that any financial experts the committee desired could examine financial records and interpret them for the students' benefit.

He added, however, "that this is not something that you can find out about very quickly. Swain is one thing we seem to know the least about."

He then promised to soon have extensive comparative figures on food costs in several neighboring institutions and concluded his remarks by stating, "I believe and believe definitely that this investigation is now on the right track and that an early settlement will be realized."

Johnson

Aaron Johnson, speaker of the Di, concluded the meeting by stating, "this investigation has not been and is not intended to damn Carmichael or Rogerson. It is merely to get the facts and if it is not possible to reduce Swain prices, then we are willing to pay them. I do deny that the Di or Phi have been guilty of trying to stir up any intrigue against the business administration."
