Membership Supper Of YWCA to Be Held In Methodist Church

Tickets are still available to the YWCA membership supper to be held Monday night at 6:00 in the basement of the Methodist Church. The program "The Growth of Persons" will be in a panel form. Students participating in the panel are Nonnie Morris, Betsy Ann Barbee, Burlette Capp, Lib Henderson, Sibyl Goerch, Dot Phillips. Kay Farrell will serve as moderator.

The supper is planned to be an annual affair, designed to show all the members of the YWCA the scope of all the committees. Each committee will have a display on the tables representing the work done by that committee this year.

A slate of officers as presented by the nominating committee will be presented to the membership at this time.

Tickets for the supper may be obtained from the Chairmen of Y committees or in the Y office for 35c.

CINDER

(Continued from first page) cream of the track and field talent in the Southeast, is expected to take part, and several record-breaking performances seem certain.

Carolina and Duke again head the arch-rivals who will scrap it out for the Open title, but Georgia Tech and Maryland are dark-horses, and the Cherry Point Marines or Little Creek Amphibs might slip in and beat the whole field.

The last named team is reported to be loaded with ex-college stars, including one former National Champion; a Big Ten and Penn Relay winner; an NCAA, ICAAAA, and Penn winner, and three ex-National Interscholastic Champs.

This will be the fourth of the Southern indoor open meets, which took the place of the nine-year old Southern Conference Games when the latter were suspended for the war.

PLAYWRITING

(Continued from first page) student when her two daughters were old enough for kindergarten. There she studied among other things, playwriting. She has had 70 one-act plays published.

Someone asked the speaker what kind of atmosphere she wrote best in. "I find I can do my best writing in the midst of confusion, for then I concentrate more intently on the problem at hand," the authoress answered. "And my favorite spot for writing is in my kitchen," she added. "When we built our new home here, I allowed for a marble top table in the kitchen as I've always liked to jot down ideas in a place where they will stay, and this way they can't blow away, nor can I misplace the manuscript."

Miss Smith expressed her dislike for many novelists of the day who appear to be writing with one eye on the movies. She said, "Many motion picture people know only what is good for the movies, and not what is good or bad for a book. For that reason, if my courage holds, I will refuse to sell movie rights of my next novel."

The authoress told members of the group, that to her, revising is one of the most satisfying parts of writing. "I enjoy finding for a finished piece of work a word that is just a shade better."

The Carolina Dames club is made up of wives of students. The meeting held Tuesday night upstairs at the Methodist church, was presided over by Mrs. W. G. Burks, president. Mrs. Mary McDuffy, chairman of the program committee introduced Miss Smith. After the program, a social hour was held, and refreshments were served.
