Soviet Loses Iran Question Fray With UNO

Byrnes Leads Fight Against Red Motion

New York, March 26—The Soviet Union has lost its fight to keep the United Nations Security Council from considering its dispute with Iran. The Council turned down the Russian motion to exclude the Iranian question by a vote of nine to two late this afternoon. Only Poland voted with Russia. The Soviet delegate—Andire Gromyko—then immediately moved to postpone the Iranian hearing until April tenth.

Earlier, the Soviet delegate revealed that the Red Army is leaving Iran under terms of a new Russo-Iranian agreement. He did not reveal the terms of the agreement.

The American Secretary of State—James Byrnes—led off in the fight against the Russian motion to postpone. Byrnes said that if Russia and Iran have reached a new agreement they should report it to the Security Council. And he pointed out that Iran has not withdrawn her complaint against the Soviets. Russia has threatened to stay out of Security Council discussions on Iran entirely of the Council does not agree to postpone the question until April 10th. Russian Ambassador Andrei Gromyko threatened a Soviet boycott of the hearing after his motion to shelve the Iran issue entirely was defeated.

Summer School Slated To Be Regular Quarter

Increased Enrollment Causes Officials To Lengthen Term for Twelve-Week Period

An enrollment for the coming summer session is expected to double that of last summer, and, as a result, officials have designated it a full 12-weeks' term to serve as the fourth quarter of the academic year, it was announced here yesterday by Chancellor Robert B. House and Prof. Guy B. Phillips, director of the summer session.

Chancellor House at the same time announced the action of the executive committee of the Board of trustees in approving the operation of the 12-weeks summer session as a fourth quarter.

Serving as the equivalent to a regular University quarter, the session will be operated in two terms of six weeks each, with some courses continuing throughout the 12 weeks. No credit will be allowed for such courses except for those students who attend the full session. Other courses will be offered on the six weeks' term basis and may be completed in that period. Work for graduate and professional students will be to a large extent confined to the six weeks' basis.

The first term will run from June 13 to July 20 and the second from July 22 to August 29.

Approximately 2000 veterans will be enrolled here by summer, Director Phillips said. The veterans, along with an unusually large coed registration, explains the anticipated increased enrollment.

Preliminary announcements carrying information on admission, courses, housing, costs, and special features have just been mailed to prospective students by Director Phillips. The regular catalogue will be distributed the latter part of April, he said.

A new policy with regard to admission to the Summer Session has been set up which requires the submission of an application on the part of any student not now in residence at the University. Professor Phillips said. "This is necessary because of the fact that preference during the Summer Session will be given to graduate students, professional workers, and residents of North Carolina. The priorities set up by the Board of Trustees will be applied to male applicants."

For those who do not remit by mail, the following alphabetical payment schedule has been established:

March 27: H through K

March 28: L through N

March 29: O through S

March 30: T through Z

New Di President Presents Policies At Meeting Tonight

David Pittman, new president of the Di, will deliver his inaugural speech tonight in the Senate Hall on the third floor of New West. No bill is planned for discussion as Pittman will present his policies for the coming quarter.

Of primary importance among Pittman's aims has been his goal for new members to the Senate. As chairman of the Membership Committee he may be expected to have some positive plans regarding new membership which should be of interest to both members and non-members.

The next quarter will see an entirely new set of officers at the helm with a trial parliamentary seating arrangement in practice.

Visitors are heartily encouraged to attend and are promised consideration for membership. Meetings are held at 9:00 o'clock each Wednesday night.

Dr. James Andrews of the Medical School will teach a Red Cross class in nutrition beginning sometime next week. All persons interested in taking the course, especially wives of veterans, are requested to call Mrs. John Couch at 3481 for further details.

Vance Welcomes New Students to Carolina

On behalf of the student body, I want to congratulate you on your choice of a university. We heartily welcome you and we are looking forward to having you join us in the classroom and in Carolina's many extra-curricular activities.

Most of you have been on the campus only a few days and yet you have probably already noticed the friendly attitude of all students and the freedom and liberalism for which Carolina is noted. You are probably surprised at the amount of freedom granted to students. We have gained this freedom only because we have shown ourselves willing to accept the responsibilities that come with self-government. Here at Carolina we believe in the right and responsibility of every student to govern himself. We have one simple code of living, The Campus Code, which all students pledge themselves to uphold: "Every student is bound by his responsibility as a gentleman to conduct himself as a gentleman at all times, and to see to it in so far as appropriate, that his fellow students do likewise." In other words, if we behave ourselves, we will never get in trouble.

Again we welcome you to Carolina and urge you to join us in striving for a decent life and a free mind. In so doing, we will make Carolina an even finer university.

Charlie Vance.

Dillon Hits for 16 In NCAA Title Game

Kurland Tops Scorers with 23 Points As Tar Heels Fight Brilliant Battle

New York, March 26—The University of North Carolina White Phantoms gave their whole heart tonight and came within an ace of pulling the impossible but in one of the greatest games ever seen in the Garden, the Oklahoma A. & M. Aggies, led by their brilliant star, Bob Kurland, captured their second straight consecutive N.C.A.A. championship, 43 to 40.

Trailing by six points at halftime, the Tar Heels fought the Aggies nip and tuck throughout the final half but couldn't quite close the gap. The loss of Bones McKinney midway in the final period hurt the Tar Heel chances immeasurably but in spite of his loss, the Phantoms held the highly favored Aggies basket for basket.

Kurland rolled up a total of 23 points for top scoring honors tonight but was closely trailed by John Dillon who thrilled the tremendous crowd with his brilliant hook shots which came within three points of tying the score. Kurland was presented the most valuable player award in an impressive ceremony immediately following the game in which all the members of the Tar Heel squad receiver prizes.

In the consolation game for third place honors, the Big Ten champions from Ohio State defeated the University of California, 63-45. The Buckeyes held only a 22-21 lead at halftime, but ran away with the contest in the final period. North Carolina had previously defeated Ohio State in the Eastern finals, 60-57 in an overtime contest.

Just before the championship game began, Norman Cordon, famous Metropolitan Opera star and native Carolinian, sang "Hark the Sound" from the middle of the Garden court without any accompaniment whatsoever and received a tremendous round of applause from the 18,500 fans crammed into the arena.

It was reported from New York that individual tickets for the classic were being scalped for as much as $40 apiece before the contest.

The following is a running account of the first half of the Carolina-Oklahoma game:

Kurland put the Aggies out in front with a beautiful push shot, 2-0. Dillon then sank two foul shots to tie the score, 2-2. McKinney missed a foul opportunity and then Kurland tossed in a hook shot to put Oklahoma ahead, 4-2.

Dillon tossed in a perfect hook to tie the score at 4-all. Williams tossed in a foul as Dillon had his second personal chalked up against him, Aggies leading, 5-4. McKinney missed another foul shot. Kurland dropped in another to make it 7-4. McKinney converted a foul to make it 7-5 as Kurland had his second personal charged against him. McKinney hit with a beautiful two-hand shot from foul circle to tie the score at 7-7.

The crowd roared its protest as McKinney was charged with his second personal which Kurland converted to make it 8-7. Anderson hit a long shot to put the Tar Heels in front, 9-8. Paxton laid up a snowbird to give Carolina 11-8 lead after nine and a half minutes.

Kurland dropped in another short one to make it 11-10. Kurland laid in another to put the Aggies back in front, 12-11. Dillon sank two foul shots to regain the lead, 13-12. Bell sank a foul shot to tie the score at 13-13 with eight minutes left in the first half.

Anderson hit with a push shot to take the lead 15-13, but Kern came back with a crisp to tie it up at 15-15. Kern hit with a foul to make it 16-15. McKinney dropped in a hook shot to put the Tar Heels back in front, 17-16.

Grill Dining Room Opening Rests in Today's Polling

With probable relief for the congested food situation of the campus in mind, all students interested in the projected Graham Memorial Grill Dining Room, administration officials stated yesterday, are advised to fill out the enclosed form today, and drop it in the poll box in the YMCA lobby.

Today is the last day of the census which is being taken by the Graham Memorial Board of Directors in an effort to determine the possibility and feasibility of having the grill reopened by the administration.

In reply to a student union query, South Building officials disclosed that they "would be interested in reopening the grill on a dining room plan if sufficient interest were shown in the project."

The grill is equipped to serve from two to three hundred patrons per meal and all members of the dining room would be required to subscribe on a quarterly basis, fees paid in advance. Today is the last day of polling and the administration's decision on the opening of the grill will largely depend upon student interest expressed in the plan.

I would like to eat in the proposed Graham Memorial Grill Dining Room, in accordance with the plan under which it will be operated.
