

Chief Justice of Supreme Court Stone Dies in Washington

Brain Stroke Brings Death To Aged Judge

Attack of Indigestion Preceded Fatal Illness

By United Press
Washington, April 22.—Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone died at 6:45 p. m. EST tonight at his home of a cerebral hemorrhage.

He was 73. Death came only a few hours after he suffered an attack of indigestion while presiding over the Supreme Court and had to be helped to his office by two other justices. His passing was announced by his secretary shortly before 8 p. m.

Stone, appointed to the high bench by former President Calvin Coolidge, was elevated to Chief Justice in 1941 by the late Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The attack of indigestion hit him about 15 minutes before the luncheon recess. In his office he was examined by Dr. George Calver, congressional physician.

Calver had been summoned hastily from his nearby office at the capitol. He said Stone had only a "slight attack of indigestion." This was confirmed by Stone's personal physician, Dr. H. A. Grennan who said: "There is no evidence of a heart condition." Stone was sent home by Grennan who told him to take a few days of rest. The death stroke came hours later.

Veteran Representatives Complain to VA Officials

Reasons for Delay in Allotment Payments Sought by University Veterans Association

Armed with the names of over 150 veterans who have not received GI Bill allotments or eligibility certificates, Joe Woodruff and Tom Smith, representatives of the UVA, besieged the state headquarters of the Veterans' Administration last week in an effort to ascertain the reasons for delay in payment of allotments and other veterans affairs.

Officials of the Veterans' Administration stated that during last month over 1000 checks had been returned to the Administration because of improper address and they believe that most of the cases of non-receipt of allotment can be contributed to that one factor. Col. Sheppard, veterans advisor here, announced that change-of-address forms can be obtained at room 119 in Peabody hall.

Another reason for delay, the Administration announced, is that many of out-of-state veterans have not had their files transferred to the NC headquarters in Winston-Salem.

All veterans are urged to use their case number in all official correspondence.

After the certificate of eligibility has been returned by the University, a veteran should receive his allotment within 20 days.

Constitution Is Ratified By Legislature

Measure Now Faces Student Body Vote

In the remarkable space of five minutes, the constitutional convention of the student legislature last night rendered itself obsolete by an overwhelming approval of the proposed student constitution. The document now comes before the student body for ratification at a time to be determined by the elections committee.

Last night's stamp of approval ended three full weeks of stormy discussion on the constitution, weeks notable for the number of reversals made by the convention of some of the more controversial issues.

Approval of two-thirds of 25 per cent of the student body will now be necessary for ratification.

A minor amendment added to the constitution last night provided that two and not three members of the Coed Senate be named to the House Privileges Board and that one coed be elected to the board from the women's council.

Former Pupil Says Shawn Great Artist

Dancer Appears at Playmaker Theatre With Barton Mumaw Tonight at 8:30

By Roland Giduz

"The first great dancer that America has produced." Those are the words used by Foster Fitz-Simons, University dramatics teacher to describe Ted Shawn, who appears with Barton Mumaw in the Playmakers Theatre tonight at 8:30 o'clock, under the auspices of the Graham Memorial student union. Students and faculty will be admitted to the performance free.

"Famous Contemporary Dancers" is the subject of Shawn's lecture, which will be accompanied by the showing of kodachrome slides of many famous dancers who have performed under him. Mumaw and Shawn will each give dances based on operas, folk dances, continental selections, and American folk music.

Fitz-Simons With Shawn

Fitz-Simons, who traveled from coast-to-coast as a member of Shawn's troupe of men dancers from 1934-1938, stated that the noted artist is appearing here tonight "solely through affection for the University of North Carolina and his many associations here," in a performance for the benefit of the Jacob's Pillow "University of Dance" located near Lee, Massachusetts.

Together with his wife, the renowned Ruth St. Denis, now making a dance tour of the west coast, Ted Shawn formed the Denishawn School of Dance in 1920, out of which have come most of America's present day top-flight dance artists.

In 1933, believing that the position of men in American dance was at a low ebb, he gathered a group of students, mostly college athletes, and trained and formed the famous troupe with which Fitz-Simons toured for several seasons. As a sort of "dean" of this Jacob's Pillow school at present, he conducts
