Today Last Chance For Organizations To Enter Beauties

Bathing Suit Picture Will Be Taken For Daily Tar Heel, State Release

By Virginia McKinnon

Deadline for entries in the current "Miss Candlelight" contest sponsored by the Daily Tar Heel to be held August 23 as a special attraction of the last summer session Candlelight Room Friday Night Frolics will be this afternoon at 6 o'clock. Several houses have already entered their choice for "Miss Candlelight" in this, the first contest of a series of similar annual events. All candidates submitted after the deadline must obtain special entry permission from the contest board.

All contestants will meet in the Graham Memorial office tomorrow afternoon for a group picture with bathing suits at 4 o'clock. This picture, to appear in the Daily Tar Heel, will be released for statewide publication.

DTH to Print Pictures
All sponsoring groups are requested to furnish individual pictures of their entries, and to pay a small fee for a cut to be run in the Daily Tar Heel. All coeds enrolled for the second term of the summer session, married or single, living on campus or in town, are eligible. The method of selecting candidates is left up to the individual houses.

Parade in Evening Dresses
Attired in evening dresses, the campus beauties will parade before the seven judges, who will select "Miss Candlelight" for her personality, figure, and poise.

Purpose of the contest, in addition to providing entertainment for Candlelight Room patrons, is to reveal unpublished beauty on campus.

Campus Talent Contest Slated for Friday Night

Winner to Get Radio Audition; Manager May Limit Attendance Due to Overflow Crowds

By Sam Whitehall

An all-campus talent contest with the prize being an audition over Durham's radio station WTIK will be held in the Candlelight room in place of the usual 10 o'clock Friday night frolic floor show. Scott Gardner's swing sextet will play for dancing beginning at 8:30. Due to the overflow crowd attending previous Friday night

Di Will Discuss Medical College

The advantages and disadvantages of the proposed four-year medical college at Chapel Hill will be the topic for discussion before the Dialectic Senate at its meeting tonight at 9 o'clock in the Di Hall.

Eddie Black, president pro tempore of the Senate, will present a bill concerning the addition of a full course of medicine at the University of North Carolina.

At its last regular session, the Di voted unanimously in favor of an increased subsistence level for veterans.

There will be a meeting of the Di's executive committee before the regular meeting tonight.

"Kiss and Tell" Tickets On Sale

Tickets for "Kiss and Tell," Carolina Playmakers' second full length production of the summer session, will go on sale Saturday at Ledbetter-Pickard's and the Playmakers business office in Swain Hall. John Parker, director of the play, announced today that tickets will cost one dollar, including federal and state tax, and that all seats will be reserved. Rehearsals for the comedy success of stage and screen, to be presented here August 14 and 15, are now in progress. Harry Davis is in charge of technical work, and Jim Riley is constructing the sets.

Ten Students Needed For Construction Job

Ten students are needed for part-time work on a local construction project according to Louis Berini, supervising interviewer-in-charge of the U. S. Employment office.

The rate of pay will be sixty cents per hour. A special shift will be organized for students.

Interested students are requested to contact the local U. S. Employment office in the Town Hall.

'Jail Student' Miller, Refused for Admission; Locates Room by Humor

Sigsbee Miller, 19-year-old veteran and reporter on the Elizabeth City Advance, will not have to room in the city jail as he suggested in a letter to Mayor Bob Madry recently after trying in vain since last winter to locate a room for the fall term here. Madry and Roy Armstrong, Director of Admissions, have located a room for Miller, praising his originality.

Miller, one of the 9,000 refused admission for lack of housing facilities, resorted to desperate humor in an attempt to resume his education after the interruption by the war, his request for a "suite of cells" has gained him nationwide publicity.

Mary Price Will Speak At SCHW Meet Tonight

The Southern Conference for Human Welfare will meet this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Horace Williams Lounge of Graham Memorial. Mary Price, executive secretary of SCHW for North Carolina, will speak at the meeting.

The organization is posting petitions on the campus this week, urging that the Ku Klux Klan be abolished by President Truman.

Library Building To Be Extended

REV. EMMET GRIBBIN

Rev. Gribbin Accepts Post At Ohio School

The Rev. R. Emmett Gribbin Jr., chaplain to the Episcopal students here at the University and associate rector of the Chapel of the Cross, has announced his acceptance of the post of chaplain at Kenyon College, Gambier, Ohio. He will assume his duties there September 15.

Mr. Gribbin came to Chapel Hill in July, 1941. After his ordination to the ministry in January of 1942, he became associate rector of The Chapel of the Cross while the Rev. A. S. Lawrence was rector. Although primarily with Episcopal students, Mr. Gribbin identified himself with all religious organizations on the campus.

During the illness and subsequent resignation of the Rev. A. S. Lawrence, Mr. Gribbin served as acting rector, and for some months carried the double duty of rector and student chaplain. Although the vestry of The Chapel of the Cross asked Gribbin to become their rector, but he declined for the reason that his chief interest lay in work with college students. The Rev. David W. Yates is the present rector.

Located Near Columbus

Kenyon College, located about 60 miles north of Columbus, Ohio, is a men's college supported entirely by the Episcopal Church. The student body numbers about 500, approximately the size of the University of North Carolina. See REV. GRIBBIN, page 4.

UVA Sponsors Dance Weekly; Begin Aug. 8

Feature Open House For Dorms at Club

The University Veterans' Association will sponsor an informal dance and open house tomorrow evening at the Veterans' Clubhouse, located on the Raleigh road just beyond Woolen Gym, for the girls of Melver dormitory.

Scott Gardner's seven-piece combo, a popular dance aggregation which has been featured recently at the Candlelight Room's Friday Night Frolics, will play for the dance which will last from 8 p. m. until 11 p. m.

Dockham to Emcee

Bob Dockham, freshman veteran from Denton, who produced several entertainment shows during his service with the Navy, will act as master of ceremonies in a floor show to be presented during intermission. Jeanne Ferrier and Stover Dunnagan, popular young vocalists will highlight the variety entertainment.

This dance will inaugurate the rejuvenated UVA social program, which will continue with a weekly open house and dance featuring Scott Gardner's combo, to be given in honor of the different girls' dormitories and sororities. These social festivities are planned by the UVA as a means of better social contact between the coeds and veterans on the campus.

Open House Weekly

James Chesnutt, UVA president, also announced that beginning with the fall term, the organization will sponsor each week an open house and will give one major dance at least once a month. Every effort will be made to secure the services of well-known dance bands for the occasions.

All members of the UVA are requested to bring their membership cards to the dance for admission. Non-members may obtain membership cards at the bar in the clubhouse.

President Frank P. Graham holds honorary degrees from Harvard University, Amherst College, Columbia, C. a. t. a. b. a., Birmingham-Southern, Duke, Davidson, the College of William and Mary, and Temple.

Construction Will Include Two Wings, Rear Extension

University Preparing Financial Estimates To Submit to January State Legislature

Dr. Charles E. Rush, University librarian, announced yesterday that the library building will be extended early next year as soon as appropriations can be secured from the state legislature which meets in January. Plans for the addition call for a wing to be added to both ends of the building and for an extension to be constructed to the rear of the library.

Grail Dance Set Saturday

G. I. Nursery To Get Profits

With all profits going to the Chapel Hill G. I. Nursery, a dance sponsored by the Order of the Grail will be held Saturday August 10 from 9 until 12 in Woolen Gymnasium.

Roy Cole's thirteen-piece student orchestra which has played for numerous campus functions will provide the music.

The G. I. Nursery school which is under the direction of Margaret Lewis has as its main task the caring for and instruction of children during the hours that their veteran fathers are at classes and their mothers are busy with essential household duties.

Tickets for the Grail dance can be procured from the G. I. Nursery school located at the Presbyterian church, from any member of the Grail, and from the office of the YMCA Secretary. The price of admission to the informal dance is $1.00.

The two wings will be used to house the North Carolina room, the Southern Historical collection and a storage room. In addition, space will be made for an office where books can be ordered, classified, and catalogued. The rear extension will be utilized to afford more space for the stacks.

Need More Book Space

In 1938 and in 1940 the University had planned to enlarge the library, but war and construction difficulties forced postponement of the work. Dr. Rush stated that there are 400,000 books jammed into a space designed to hold 266,000. He said that 100,000 more books are now packed in crates awaiting shelf space.

Tests are now being run on the soil behind the library to determine its content and rock structure. Meanwhile, the budget commission of the University is preparing estimates to submit to the legislature in January. When finances are okayed, then work will begin.

ALDERMAN OPEN HOUSE

Alderman dormitory will sponsor an open house and informal dance this Friday evening from 8 o'clock until midnight.

Airport Authority Chairman Favors UNC Bid For Housing

President Graham Visits Washington In Attempt to Secure Former Barracks

The University of North Carolina has been given the go-ahead sign in its attempt to secure barracks at the Raleigh-Durham airport in a statement by John P. Swain, chairman of the airport authority, who stated that there would be no opposition to UNC's bid. The University at present is seeking use of 14 barracks, two mess halls and two bath houses at the airport for use of graduate students in the statistics department this fall. The barracks, if procured, would not be moved to the Carolina campus but would remain at the airport, approximately 25 miles distant.

Airport Not Opposed

"The Raleigh-Durham Airport Authority would not be opposed to any move by the University of North Carolina to secure use of government-owned barracks at the airport as housing for students," stated Swain.

The barracks being sought are one-story structures, about 60 feet long, with stoves in each end of the building. Between 40 and 60 apartments could be made out of the barracks, and they would be used mainly to house married veterans.

Recently President Frank Graham visited Washington in an effort to secure authority to use the barracks for students. Under his plan, the wartime structures would not be removed from the airport grounds or torn down for lumber, but would be reconditioned for use as dormitories.

House Overflow Students

Graham pointed out that because of their central location, the buildings could be used to house overflow students. He said that while it would be necessary for students to commute, the distance would not impose a great handicap.

The buildings desired by the University are all located on 900 acres of land adjoining the airport proper. In addition to the barracks being sought are about 25 other small buildings on the land that are also available.

"The airport authority is not interested in doing anything which would keep those buildings from being used by the University students, especially former servicemen," declared Swain.

The important "figures" in the state-wide beauty contest to select Miss North Carolina of 1946 are somewhat obscured in this picture, but on the other hand the judges deserve some credit for their choice and a reward for their labors. And five Chapel Hill judges out of the seven couldn't be wrong in their selection of the queen. Trudie Riley, of Wilson, wearing her crown, captured first place in the contest.

Reading clockwise around the circle, Betty Brewer, of Rocky Mount, was second, and tied for third place were Avis Warlick, of Kings Mountain, and Mary Jarman, of Wilmington. Names of the judges, left to right, are: Phil Whitten, Tobacco Radio Network commercial manager; Noel Houston, Chapel Hill author of "The Great Promise"; James Street, Chapel Hill author of "The Gauntlet"; Sam Ragan, State Editor of the Raleigh News and Observer; R. W. Madry, Chapel Hill mayor and director of the University News Bureau; O. J. "Skipper" Coffin, dean of the University's School of Journalism; and Dr. William Olsen, head of the University's Public Speaking Department.

The winner and runners-up were chosen according to the rules of the national contest at Atlantic City, which is to be held next month. During the afternoon on Saturday the contestants presented their talents in singing, recitations, dancing and piano recitals. Saturday night they appeared in evening gowns and uniform bathing suits. Vital statistics on Miss Riley are: height, five feet six; weight, 118 pounds; bust, 32 inches; waist, 23 inches; hips, 33 inches; and a size 6½ shoe. She is 19 years old, a graduate last fall of the Wilson high school, and has light brown hair and blue eyes.
