

Questions and Answers On Flight Training

1. Who is eligible to take courses? Answer: Duly enrolled students at the University, who have completed one year or more of college work.

2. May veterans under the G.I. Bill take this course at Government expense? Answer: The cost of this course can not be covered by the $500 allowance for tuition, fees, books, and supplies for the school year. Veterans who have a greater period of entitlement than they plan to use in finishing their formal education may charge the cost of the course to their total period of entitlement by filling out form 1950a. For each $2.10 so used, one day is deducted from the total period of entitlement.

Example: Jones attended the University through his sophomore year and then entered the service. He stayed in the service for 24 months, thus earning a period of 36 months entitlement. He plans to re-enter the University in September and to complete his requirements for an A.B. degree. Normally he would utilize 18 months entitlement in finishing his program. He has 18 "spare" months. The primary course, which will cost around $350-$450, will at $2.10 a day of entitlement, use up from 5½ to a little over 7 months entitlement.

3. Will courses carry college credit? Answer: Yes, it is contemplated that five quarter hours credit will be given for each quarter. Aviation courses will be considered as electives in the undergraduate curricula. Provision for credit in graduate and professional curricula has not yet been determined but is under consideration.

4. May one enroll for flight training without ground school? Answer: No.

5. Must one take a physical examination to enroll? Answer: Yes, the minimum will be CAA requirements for particular rating desired.

Only Lost His Name In Chapel Hill . . . 'Uncle George' Still Recalls Boys Who Tagged Nickname

In 1922 when Elliot Washington left the University of South Carolina and came to Chapel Hill, he intended to work just two weeks with a construction gang then building dormitories in the lower quadrangle. But as he put it, "I just liked everybody n' everybody seemed to get along with me just fine n' I just kept right on staying."

"UNCLE GEORGE"

Thus for 24 years, Uncle George, as he is popularly known among student, faculty and townspeople has served the University of North Carolina, the greater part of that time with the zoology department in which he is currently working as janitor extraordinary.

The 69 year old, white haired Negro has not been called by his real name, "Elliot," since 1923 when a group of students tabbed him "George Washington" or in short "Uncle George."

"I remember four of them boys who named me yet. There was the McDaniel brothers, George and Everett, one a lawyer and the other a doctor now. Mr. Dan Burrows of Scotland Neck, and Mr. X. T. Keel of Rocky Mount. They started it all and I've still going by that name," Uncle George proudly reminisced.

Some time ago the zoology department endeavored to concoct a fishfood that the fish would eat readily. Numerous attempts met with only mediocre success; so Uncle George came to the rescue, mixed up his ingredients and presto a fish food was made to order. The zoology department is still using his recipe and considerable comment regarding its merits has been published.

Uncle George has been in the limelight in other respects. Several years ago he was invited to speak at a pep rally that students were holding prior to the Duke-Carolina football classic. He made a lasting impression and has been called back numerous times to expound his wit and good sense which make for better pep rally speakers.

Just One Thing to Say
"I just got one thing to say," Uncle George stated, "and that is that I have always got along with every student and faculty member since I have been here and haven't had a bit of trouble with nobody. And I have missed only three weeks in my 24 years when I wasn't on the payroll."

George's wife lives with him in Chapel Hill. Their only child, a daughter, is married and living in Philadelphia.

Campus Code Violation

On August 21, 1946, the Interdormitory Council, in a special session, took action involving the violation of the Campus Code in a dormitory.

Violation: A dormitory resident while under the influence of alcohol, destroyed a telephone in another dormitory. This student made no effort to break the Honor Code by attempting to conceal his actions. He reported voluntarily to the President of the Interdormitory Council and the President of the student body just what he had done. Therefore, there was no violation of the Honor Code.

Sentence: (1) The student was placed on strict dormitory probation for a period of one year, with any further violation of dormitory rules of the Campus Code resulting in automatic suspension from all University dormitories. (2) He shall make all financial adjustments for the damage. (3) The student has been severely reprimanded for his actions.

AVC

GI nursery school. The chapter received a letter from Mrs. Mary Pindexter, in charge of the school, commending its work in behalf of the nursery school by making the initial contribution to it, and also for their efforts at the Grail Dance.

Tentative plans for sponsoring a speaker on US foreign policy in cooperation with other campus organizations were approved and among persons suggested were, Herschel Johnson and former Justice Roberts. Also, a motion was passed to have a faculty member address the meeting on world government prior, to the next UN assembly.

Vet Bill Information
An AVC member, Bob Jones, who has gathered information of all veteran's bills passed by the Congress in the past six years and has discussed a few of them at each AVC meeting, which are of interest to all veterans.

One is PL 584, concerning the disposal of funds from surplus war property sold in foreign countries, estimated to amount to about $15 million. The law provides for a ten man board to use that money for fellowships and scholarships for students desiring education in foreign countries, with preference being given to veterans. These will be awarded on a geographical basis and the number to each district will vary according to the population included.

Another is the National Insurance Act of 1946, which now makes GI insurance almost identical with that offered by civilian insurance firms, and all additions are retroactive on the policies now in effect. Among the provisions are: endowment plans on twenty-year life and for the ages of 60 and 65; lump payments to beneficiaries; a life income fund, which will amount to the complete amount of the insurance plus interest; and special provisions for those disabled either during the war or afterwards.
