Government Readies Fight On Coal Strike

Walkout Is Illegal Says Justice Unit

Washington, Nov. 15—(UP)—The government has accepted John L. Lewis' latest challenge. Federal lawyers say the Justice Department is considering injunction action or prosecution of the leaders of the United Mine Workers if the threatened strike materializes next Wednesday night. Government legal experts say if Lewis goes through with his threat and forces a shutdown of the soft coal mines next week, it will constitute an "overt act" inciting the miners to strike and will open the miners boss to prosecution under the Smith-Connally Act.

'Mystery Move'

In addition to considering injunction action, the administration is reported to have planned another "mystery move" to prevent the walkout. But official circles refuse to give the slightest hint of what that might be. The government lawyers went into conference on the mining situation after Lewis ignored a 60-day truce plea from President Truman and announced that he was terminating the union-government coal contract at midnight Wednesday.

GOP Plans to Reduce Government Employees

New York, Nov. 15—(UP)—The Republican planners aren't wasting any time on their budget-balancing program. Yesterday the GOP steering committee for the House of Representatives made public its plan for reduced government spending. Today, the House committee moved forward a step toward putting its plan into effect. The committee conferred with its Senate counterpart and got the Senate group to accept the plan.

The GOP's principal saving will be effected by firing government workers. The expected head of the House appropriations committee, Representative John Taber of New York, says this can be done without damaging the efficiency of the government.

The proposal left civil service commission officials speechless. These officials, who control the hiring and firing of all but the top-ranking government workers, refused to comment on Taber's plan. One executive said, "We can't comment on that one, it would get us into awful conflict with the legislative branch."

Federal Reserve Board Relaxes Credit Curbs

Washington, Nov. 15—(UP)—The Federal Reserve board has announced a sweeping relaxation of credit controls effective December 1. Curbs on installment buying have been lifted completely on dozens of items—jewelry, musical instruments, sporting goods, electrical appliances, cameras, and more. Twelve items however, including cars, refrigerators, cooking stoves and ranges, washing machines, radios and phonographs—the hard-to-get items—still remain under credit curbs.

Solution to Trieste Found by Big Powers

New York, Nov. 15—(UP)—The Big Four Foreign Ministers appear to have cracked one of their toughest nuts—what to do about the Adriatic port city of Trieste. The principles for settling the sharp dispute between Russia and the western powers were worked out in a super-secret meeting high in the tower of New York's swank Waldorf-Astoria today. French Foreign Minister De Murville has been named to draw up a compromise outline.

Weather Today

Increasing cloudiness, mild temperature, possible rains in higher regions.

Political Group Will Hold Social, Business Session

In the first meeting to actually consider nominations for the coming political campaign, the Student Party will hold an open business and social session tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Candlelight room of Graham Memorial.

Party Vice-Chairman Jack Booraem explained that all students, old or new, interested in campus government and the Student Party, will be welcome, and are urged to attend. A coke party, beginning at 4:30, will be held prior to the business meeting.

Tom Eller, recently elected speaker pro-tem of the Student Legislature, will speak on the topic, "Good Politics Means Good Student Government."

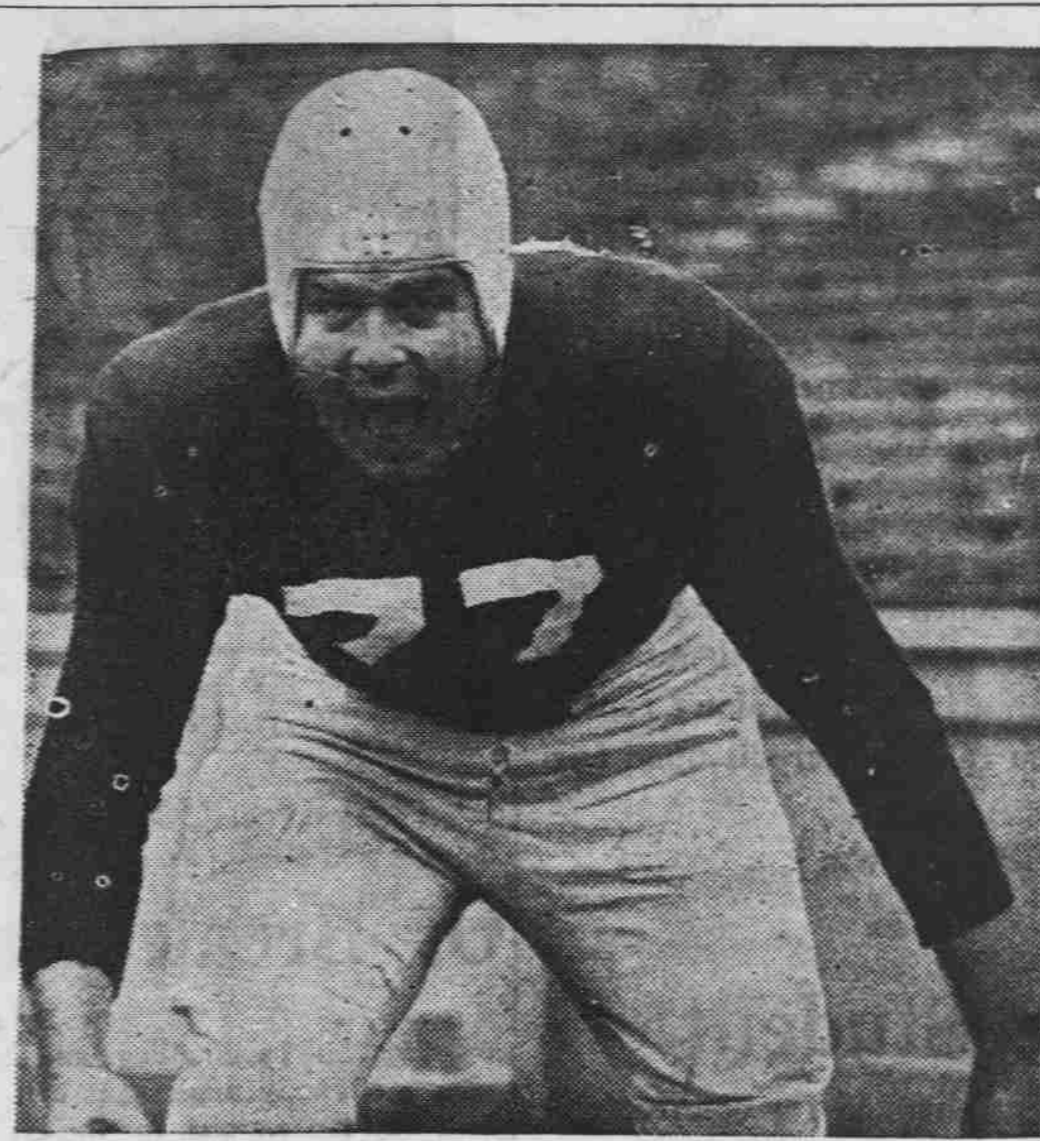

At this time nominations will be in order for candidates to fill 25 six-months legislature seats, which become vacant next month, as well as Student Council offices which have recently been vacated.

Response to the Student Party-sponsored petition to the General Assembly, which was posted this week for signing, will be reported on by Walt Stuart.

Yackety Yack group pictures for the 1947 annual will also be taken at this time, Booraem stated.

Ground Offensive To Oppose Aerial Attack in Battle

By Bob Goldwater

A powerful running attack collides with a fancy passing offensive in Kenin Stadium this afternoon when Carolina's once-beaten gridders oppose a strong Wake Forest eleven in the 44th renewal of the Old North State's oldest gridiron rivalry. The kickoff is set for 2 o'clock.

A crowd of over 30,000 spectators is expected to be on hand to view the Southern conference clash, which will have an important bearing on the final standings. The Tar Heels are battling for the loop crown and need a victory today and next Saturday to capture their first conference tilt since 1937.

Seek Sixth Win

Carolina will be seeking its sixth triumph of the campaign and the first over the Deacons since 1942. The power-laden and deceptive attack is sparked by Charlie (Choo Choo) Justice, eighth ranking back in the nation whose six long touchdown gallops this season total over 400 yards. Aiding the Asheville speedster in the offensive operations are such capable performers as Hosea Rodgers, Jim Camp, Billy Myers, Bill Maceyko, Billy Britt, Walt Pupa, Jack Fitch, B. New President Depicts UVA As True Voice of Veterans "Under the leadership of President Jim Chesnut, the U.V.A. has grown to be a true voice of the veterans of the University. Our principal purpose is to continue the forward movement of the University Veterans association during the coming months," stated Roy Moose, newly-elected president of the organization.

A 24-year-old sophomore from Mooresville, Moose said that as yet he had not finished completing his plans for his term of office, but is planning to meet with the various committees to formulate plans, which will be released to the campus in the near future.

Work on Daily Tar Heel

Moose entered the University last January and immediately joined the UVA and took an active part in the organization. He also made an outstanding record on the Daily Tar Heel staff as a reporter. Moose served several years with the Army Air Forces as an intelligence officer. He was overseas in the Mediterranean Theatre.

State Conference Votes to Continue College Centers

With no relief in sight from overcrowded conditions on regular college campuses, the North Carolina College Conference meeting in Greensboro Wednesday voted to continue the off-campus college centers in 1947-48.

The recommendation that the college centers be continued, along with provision for the establishment of additional centers, was presented to the conference by Russell M. Grumman, director of the University Extension Division and Chairman of the steering committee on veterans education.

Representatives of 41 junior and senior colleges and universities also approved the steering committee's request that students who complete their freshman year in college centers be given priority for admission to regular colleges for their sophomore year.

Grumman submitted to the conference a report showing a net enrollment of 949 students in the 12 college centers. Also representing the college centers at the meeting was Charles E. McIntosh, assistant director of Extension in charge of the off-campus centers.

Sunday Beer Sales Ban Is Effective Tomorrow

At a meeting of the Board of Aldermen Wednesday evening, an ordinance was enacted which officially forbids the sale of beer and wine in Chapel Hill between the hours of 11:30 Saturday night and 7 o'clock Monday morning.

Since the Hillsboro and Carrboro aldermen and the county commissioners have already taken similar action, the ban on Sunday sales is now county-wide.

The bill was passed several weeks ago, however, did not go into effect until its third reading at the Wednesday meeting.

Coeds May Remain Out Late If Attending Dorsey Dance

Women's Interdormitory Council Approves Two o'Clock Permission for Friday Night

By Fran Walker

The Women's Interdormitory council has approved two o'clock permission for all coeds attending the Tommy Dorsey dance next Friday night. Nonnie Morris, president of the Council, pointed out that only coeds attending the dance may have late permission. They will be required to sign out before going to the dance and sign in when they return at two.

Against Changing Hours

The Council also unanimously voted against changing closing hours for coeds to two o'clock every Saturday night, as had been proposed. This bill, introduced earlier in Coed Senate, was tabled by the senate and referred to the Interdormitory council which approves social regulations of this type.

"I have conferred with Infirmary and Administrative officials as well as house presidents to find their opinion on the matter," said President Morris. "They all agreed that in a town the size of Chapel Hill there are no reasons to lengthen coed hours. Records of other schools show that later than one o'clock permission is extended to coeds at only three other universities in St. Louis, Philadelphia and Los Angeles, where activities necessitate later hours," Nonnie continued.

Only in '42

Only in 1942 were coeds permitted late permission on Saturday nights. Fran Golden, chairman of the Women's Honor council pointed out that records during this year showed the number and types of Honor Council offenses to be extraordinarily high.

Main reason for the consideration given changing Saturday night hours was due to the midnight shows at the Carolina theater. Members of the Interdormitory council are yanking with theater manager, E. Carrington Smith, and it is hoped that an arrangement can be worked out so the show will end before one o'clock.

Music Must Be Loud to Attract Fans' Attention...

Twin-Sized, High Stepping Drum Majorettes Twirl Batons for 100-Piece Carolina Band

By Arnold Schulman

When the first coed took her place on the Carolina football field in the fall of 1940, many students still felt that the woman's place was in the home. It was bad enough, they thought, to have females leading cheers, but when a woman starts leading a band—that's too much!

Since that time, however, the University drum majorette has become a permanent figure before the 100-piece band. In fact, when the band dominates Kenan stadium at a ball game never let their eyes get past the majorettes' high-stepping, to inspect the precision of the rest of the band.

Stop at Majorettes

Diminutive Margo Martin and Bettie Gaither, twin-sized twirlers of this year's band, strut with such prominence that, according to a recent poll, 65 percent of the spectators at a ball game never let their eyes get past the majorettes' high-stepping, to inspect the precision of the rest of the band.

The girls, and the rest of the band, only have two hours a week for practice, but this has not proved to be a serious handicap. Experts in parade-dancing have gone on record to say that no college in the country can boast of a more colorful pair of baton-swingers.

Both coeds are local North Carolina products, coming from the eastern part of the state. Both went to St. Mary's college in Raleigh and both are members of the Alpha Delta Pi sorority. Neither Bettie nor Margo is "pinned," and in answer to the wild cat-calls that greet their appearance on the football field, both say they "are available to the right party."

Bettie, from Elizabeth City, will graduate this year with an A.B. in English. She already has a degree in Spanish which she put to practical use last summer while studying in Mexico. She was a drum majorette here last year after four years of high school band experience. In addition to her twirling duties, she was also business manager of the Daily Tar Heel. When asked what she intends to do after graduation, she expressed hopes of getting connected with some air line.

Margo Martin, from Roanoke Rapids, is a junior majoring in psychology. She, too, began prancing while in high school and said that she would like to continue with the University See TWIRLERS, page 4
