Judge Issues Court Order Against Lewis

Injunction Requires Stoppage of Strike

Washington, Nov. 18—(UP)—Federal Judge Allan Goldsborough has issued a temporary injunction, forbidding John L. Lewis to call mine strike on Thursday. The order was asked by the Department of Justice and was handed to Lewis personally at 2:15 this afternoon by two deputy United States marshals.

Government spokesmen say that Lewis may be prosecuted criminally under the Smith-Connally Act if he defies the government and calls a walkout. Hearing for a permanent injunction has been set for November 27.

The action is a 10-day temporary restraining order requiring Lewis to withdraw his notice terminating his present agreement with the government. It also specifically restrains Lewis and the UMW from encouraging the mine workers to interfere by strike or any other form of stoppage. More than 35,000 miners refused to report to work today, causing hundreds of mines to close down in eight states. The UMW men failed to show up in defiance of warnings and pleas from Interior Secretary Krug.

SP Endorses Humor Mag Candidacies Filed For Next Election

In the first mass meeting of the current fall student body elections campaign, the Student Party Sunday afternoon filed 18 candidacies within their group, for student legislature, and men's and student council posts, and voted unanimously to go on record as supporting the re-establishment of a monthly humor magazine on the campus.

Meeting in the Graham Memorial Candlelight room, the approximately fifty members attending the session, also voted unanimously to retain party chairman Chuck Heath and vice-chairman Jack Booraem in their present positions for the current campaign, both having tendered their resignations.

Walt Stuart, reporting on the progress of the party's petition to the general assembly, which was posted for signing last week, stated that slightly over 1,000 signatures were affixed to the bill during the one day it was on display in the YMCA on Wednesday. Stuart expressed an opinion that the goal of 4,000 signatures would be reached this week, when petitions are called in from dormitories and fraternities, and after the bill is posted for signatures again in the YMCA tomorrow.

Names of the 18 candidates which were entered for offices will not be publicly disclosed until the SP nominating convention in early December, however, the floor was left open to continue presentation of candidates between now and then.

At a special meeting of the newly elected University Veterans Association board of governors yesterday afternoon, president Roy Moose outlined UVA objectives, appointed committees and laid tentative plans for a grand opening of the new vet club soon.

"Our main objectives will be to coordinate student veteran activities through the establishment of a state wide veterans center here, and to support appropriations to be brought before the state legislature for establishing a University medical center, building new dormitories, increasing teachers' pay, and furthering the state medical program," said Moose.

Officer Establishment Committee To carry out these aims Moose appointed George Whitefield, Peter Gerns, and George D. Slack as a committee to set up the central veterans office. but is unable to because of illness, Dean Weaver will speak on "A Critical Picture of the Campus Scene."

Dewey Dorsett, president of the Student Party and chairman of the conference committee, announced last night that "due to the inability to secure the correct address of some of the campus officers many of them did not receive invitations for the conference."

Dorsett Names Leaders

Ackland Art Museum Decision May Be Revealed Tomorrow

By Earl Heffner

Whether or not the University is to become the art center of North Carolina may be decided tomorrow when trustees of the William H. Ackland legacy will make their recommendation to the District Court at Washington as to whether the University or Rollins College, Florida should be the recipient of a $1,250,000 grant for the establishment of an art center.

Should there develop further litigation, Undersecretary of the Treasury O. Max Gardner, who has sought through five years of legal controversy to bring the legacy to Chapel Hill, has emphasized that his position within the government will not deter his efforts to finish the project he began five years ago and hopes to complete tomorrow. The former governor of North Carolina has represented the University without compensation in the legal battle that coursed from lower courts into the U. S. Supreme Court over the late Nashville businessman's will.

Turned Down By Duke

With the legacy which Duke University, original deviser, turned down because of conditions attached to the acceptance, Chapel Hill will become a great influence in the artistic life of the South, according to John V. Alcott, chairman of the University Art Department, who believes a statewide art service could be instituted.

"The grant would be a tremendous thing for this campus," said Alcott. "The present building is far too small; art activities are scattered over the campus. The new center would provide for a permanent collection of paintings, sculptures, and reproductions—something we really need at Chapel Hill."

Thursday Session Will Have Bonfire Torchlight Parade

By Darley Lochner

Plans for not one, but two, of the biggest pre-Dook pep rallies ever held are now being made by the University club. Mike Morrow, club president, said yesterday that a torchlight parade climaxed by a bonfire at Fetzer field would highlight the first pep meeting Thursday night. Friday night's meeting in Memorial hall will be broadcast by a Raleigh radio station.

Speakers Invited

President Frank Graham will be the main speaker at Fetzer Field. Among those who have been invited to make talks Friday are Pete Mullis, assistant basketball coach, Lath Mariff, better known as Tarazan, ardent Tar Heel rooster, and Kay Kyser, name band leader and Carolina alumnus. Coach Carl Snavelly will introduce Ralph Strayhorn and Chan Highsmith, football team co-captains, at one of the meetings. Rameses will be on hand both nights.

Two hundred torches have been reserved for the parade Thursday which will be led by the University band and the cheerleaders. Students arriving first at the Y, where the parade will originate, will be given torches. The parade will begin at 7 o'clock with the bonfire immediately afterwards.

An outstanding feature of Friday's rally will be the presentation of the Pi Kappa Alpha cup for the outstanding "Beat Dook" poster. Each entry in the contest will be exhibited at the rally.

Friday's celebration will begin at 6:45 since the show will go on the air at 7:30. Morrow yesterday urged all students to be present at the Friday rally, "not only to rouse that good old Carolina spirit but also to outcheer Duke, from which a broadcast will also originate."

Graham Memorial Has New Juke Box

The addition of a new nickelodeon to Graham Memorial's Horace Williams Lounge was announced yesterday by Director Martha Rice. "The size of the lounge, its attractive appearance, plus dance records which include sambas, tangos and rhumbas, make it ideal for small club parties furnishing their own refreshments," said Miss Rice.

Reservations for the lounge may be made by contacting the student union office. The lounge will be available on Monday nights, Tuesday and Wednesday nights after 9:30, Friday nights after 8 o'clock, and Saturday nights from 6:30 until midnight.

Phi Will Discuss Foreign Language Question Tonight

The Philanthropic Literary Society will debate the University's foreign language requirements tonight in the Phi Hall, New East at 7:30 when Bill Hoffman introduces a resolution to abolish all General College foreign language requirements.

Jacques Hardre of the French Department will be the guest speaker at the Assembly. Other faculty members as well as students are expected to engage in the debate on the drastic proposal toward revision of the curriculum.

The session will climax today's student poll on the University foreign language requirements. Students may voice their opinions on the question at a voting booth in the Y from 9 until 5 today.

At the same time students have an opportunity to choose the issue for next week from the following suggested questions: 1. Should anonymous constructive criticisms of professors by students at the end of each quarter be sponsored by the University See PHI, page 4.

Queen Worries over Lipstick...

Joyce Peterson's Cute Nose Sold Her to Beauty Judges

By Jane Mears

Noses have been a hinderance to many a person, but according to judge William Meade Prince, illustrator for McCall's Magazine, it was "the tip of Joyce Peterson's cute little nose," that brought about the final decision that made her Queen of the annual Yackety Yack Beauty Ball held last Saturday night.

Sponsored by the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, Joyce was chosen from a field of 40 contestants by the judges.

Just Not the Type

Joyce says that being crowned was the "most wonderful thing that ever happened to her, but there is just one catch to it. 'It's going to be so hard to go around looking glamorous the rest of the year to live up to my reputation—I'm just not the type to have my lipstick always on straight."

Always poised and graceful, as Joyce walked up the steps to the platform to receive her crown and bouquet of eight orchids, the "Fiji Girl" was greeted by a burst of roaring applause. A 19-year-old English major, she spent part of her summer commuting from her home in Brooklyn to B. Altman and Co. in Manhattan where she was a photographers' model. After graduating she is planning to go into publicity work for this firm. Since spending two years at WC where she worked with the "Playlikers," Joyce finds the Carolina campus "the most wonderful place on earth."

Now Has Two Pins

For several weeks she has been wearing a small diamond-shaped pin next to her Pi Phi pledge pin—belongs to "a certain Phi Gam."

Tar Heels for '43-44 Available Now Gratis

The unassorted loose circulation files of several thousand "Tar Heels" for the years of 1943-44 are now available to any student who desires back copies for this period, in the Daily Tar Heel sports office on second floor, Graham Memorial.

These issues will be kept on hand until Thursday morning, when all left over will be thrown away.

Anyone desiring to get odd back copies of these issues may get them free of charge at this office, either this afternoon or tomorrow afternoon.

No Football Movies To Be Shown Tonight

It was planned to show the Tennessee and William and Mary football pictures tonight, but the Tennessee movies are out of sequence, and rather than show them in a confused fashion, the Daily Tar Heel sports department has decided to postpone the program.

First Photos Entered In Snapshot Contest

The first entry in Graham Memorial's photograph contest and snapshot display of pictures taken on Sadie Hawkins Day was submitted yesterday by Ed Gilreath, who turned in seven photographs.

Martha Rice, GM Director, urged all students who took pictures or snapshots to turn them in at her office. Snapshots will be equally acceptable for the display to be placed in the Horace Williams Lounge as enlarged photographs. Snapshots will be placed in a large glass case loaned by the library for the display.

Regular photographs will be judged on November 30. They should be enlarged to one of the following three sizes: 5x7, 8x10 or 10x12.
