Contempt Case Goes Into Supreme Court

Washington, Dec. 5—(UP)—John L. Lewis and the United Mine Workers have filed papers to appeal their conviction and heavy fines for contempt of a court order against the coal strike. The case is expected to reach the Supreme Court early next week.

Some 40 members of a local union went back to work in six mines in the Durango area of Colorado. A spokesman for the group says: "If it's a case of John L. Lewis or the government, we are for the government."

Student Legislature Votes Four New Polling Places

Dorsett Issues Statement On Buying of Bowl Tickets

Dewey Dorsett, student body president last night issued the following statement concerning sale of Sugar Bowl tickets:

The student government committee which has been asked to determine the fairest method of distributing tickets has one idea in mind: to see to it that every student definitely planning to see the game gets a ticket.

In order to accomplish this aim we ask your wholehearted cooperation in observing the following principles:

1. Do not buy a ticket unless you are definitely going to New Orleans to see the game.
2. Under no circumstances are tickets to be resold. If you purchase a ticket and later find that it is impossible for you to make the trip, turn it back in to the athletic office and it will be sold to another student. Reselling is not only a violation of the law, but it deprives some student of his right to see the game.

Sessions to Open in State Capitol Today; Seventeen Students from UNC Will Attend

Don Shropshire, president of the Dialectic Senate, was last night unanimously elected chairman of the Carolina delegation to the State Student Legislature which will hold its first session this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the State capitol in Raleigh.

"We hope to pass legislation asking to repeal the Umstead Act, backing Dr. Frank Graham's request for appropriations for the greater University, and establishing a Safety Council for traffic regulation."

Al Lowenstein is in charge of putting the Carolina bills in their proper place on the legislative agenda.

Chairman Shropshire last night stressed the fact that all Carolina students, whether official delegates or not, are invited to attend sessions of the State Student Legislature. A caucus of UNC delegates will be held at 12 noon today in the capitol building.

Eller, Chesnutt Miller Are Named To Go to Chicago

By Bookie Jabine

By the narrow margin of one vote, the Student Legislature last night stumbled its way through a labyrinth of parliamentary regulation to amend the current elections statutes to provide for the creation of four new polling places in Ruffin, McIver, Aycock and the Deke house.

Previous to the debate on the elections bill, the body selected three delegates to attend the American Conference of College students in Chicago, December 28-30. Bill Miller, Jim Chesnutt, and Tom Eller were named.

Extended Debate on Bill

Dissolving itself into a committee of the whole to consider Bob Collins' election amendment, the legislature weighed the proposal pro and con in extended debate. Walt Stuart and Don Shropshire, head of the legislature elections committee urged passage of the measure pointing out that additional polling places were needed due to the increase in enrollment here.

The original bill as introduced by Collins provided for balloting to be conducted in Aycock, Ruffin and McIver to service the dormitories in those areas. Earl Woodard presented an amendment to also place a box in the Deke house.

John Surratt speaking for the defeat of the measure said that the last election was carried out "efficiently," and "that the addition of new polling places would add to the confusion."

After the coming out of the committee of the whole, the legislature then voted on the act, passing it by 14-13. Amid cries of "revote" from the defeated faction, the body moved on to further business.

A motion by Alex Davis, and supported by Bookie Hodgson of the Publications Board, to re-allocate funds from student entertainment to publications was tabled.

Boak Takes First Prize In AVC Contest Finals

Andrews, Greene Get Second, Third Awards; Winner Advocates Creation of World Army

By Burke Shipley

At the final stage of the AVC World Peace contest "on practicable means of achieving peace," held Wednesday evening, the judges after listening to the speeches of the five contestants, selected David Boak, Summit, N. J., winner of the $100 first prize, David Andrews, Chapel Hill, as winner of the $50 second prize, and J. C. Greene, Thomasville, as third prize winner, receiving $5.

Prior to the delivery of the speeches, Winston Broadfoot, contest moderator, announced that the $150 for first and second prizes were donated by St. Anthony Hall for the purpose of stimulating campus interest in the vital international problem of peace. The third place prize was given by the local AVC chapter that conducted the contest.

Agree on Some Points

While all five contestants agreed that the several nations must cooperate through a universal surrender of some aspects of their sovereignty, Boak said "it is essential that an International Police force be set up, empowered to control atomic weapons and to curb any nation that stalemates negotiations through refusal to accept the decision of the majority," to be under the control of a United Nations board.

Suggests International Education

To solve geographical and ideological differences, Boak suggested a system of international education be established under the leadership of UN and that world economy operate under a no-tariff, free trade plan.

Andrews' essay that will appear in the December issue of the Carolina Magazine was selected prior to the final contest and represents only a student's view on world peace.

The idea for the contest was originated in October by AVC, with the view of stimulating campus interest in "winning the peace."

Veterans Club Opening Termed Success

By Earl Heffner

Buoyed by a magic carpet sporting a South American accent—a melodious mixture of samba, conga, and rumba rhythm—the new clubhouse of the University Veterans Association made its debut Wednesday night with the glory of a lovely senorita at her first fiesta.

Formal opening of the club featured entertainment ranging from the esthetic to the humorous with Vocalist Riqui Katzin and Magic Maker Johnny Miles, drawing bouquets of applause from an overflowing and appreciative audience.

Miles' repartee flowed with the finesse of an expert to the delight of spectators while Katzin's renditions of Barrachita, Linda Mujer, Guadalupe, and Salud, dinero, y Amor tickled romantic symphonies along the spines of those present.

Gift to Chesnutt

For the veterans, the moment of importance was the presentation of a gift to former President Jim Chesnutt as a token of gratitude for the zeal and excellence of his administration. The presentation was made by present President Roy Moose.

Dance music was furnished by Ned Reap and a six-piece combo. Decorations were in traditional blue and white giving a Sugar Bowl atmosphere to sport diehards in attendance.

During the formal ceremonies President Moose introduced Comptroller W. D. Carmichael, Jr., and Dean of Women Katherine Carmichael.

Moose announced that the clubhouse will be open this week-end for refreshments during and after the dances.

Moose also announced that the clubhouse will be open for studies during the afternoon and informal dancing during the evenings. An open house will be held each Wednesday. Each month the UVA plans to hold a dance program similar to the opening affair.
