CAROLINA FOOTBALL, INC., having been closed for inventory and vacations since January 1, will reopen and begin winter drills February 10. That's the official word sounded yesterday by King Carl Snavelly, the man who directs "operation football" and builds Tar Heel grid teams.

"We will begin work with all new men, jayvees and regulars who expect to participate in spring varsity sports a week from Monday," said Snavelly as he completed his plans for mid-winter practice sessions. All other regulars will be excused from these early weeks of work, according to Snavelly, and a list of such excused men will be posted some time next week.

"Winter practice is going to be mainly for the new and less experienced candidates," continued Snavelly, "although there are several regulars and lettermen we want out there taking part in the drills." Falling into this category are quite a few lettermen who have returned to Carolina since the close of the season and who expect to be playing next fall. "We will stress fundamentals and size up the men on hand. In fact, we will just start practically at the bottom and work up," the white-haired gridiron professor concluded.

The Sugar Bowl encounter with Georgia was much more beneficial than several weeks of plain winter practice, and because of it, quite a bit of work that otherwise would have had to be done can be dispensed with. However, regular spring practice will be started immediately with the opening of the next quarter, meaning about the first week in April. At this time all the regulars and recruits alike will be out together, and work will begin in earnest for the coming fall season—a season which will greet the Tar Heels with one of the toughest schedules in history.

Gather 'round me everybody. . . The topic will be. . .

There's nothing worse than a sermon in a sports column, so don't take this as such, please. More, it is just a word of reminder to students and sports fans in general about several matters that have arisen and caused considerable comment during the past few weeks.

No matter whether you have a winning team or a losing one, there is always one thing that makes a school get favorable recognition—and that is good sportsmanship and fair consideration in competition. And at recent basketball games, and one boxing match in particular, there has been a little laxness on the part of Carolina students—not all of them, but a small part of them who have a tendency to forget once in a while.

For instance, there is the incessant "booming" of the officials—and opponents when they are shooting foul shots. Granted, there are some bad decisions now and then on the part of the officials, and Carolina students are particularly mindful of it what with the recent bungling of Cousin Gabe and gang in the Sugar Bowl. Nevertheless, it is being carried to an extreme, and we should take stock of ourselves and try to improve, both on the matter of riding the officials and the opponents. Another thing, done at the game last Tuesday night, is the tearing up of small bits of paper on various occasions. It is all well and good to be jubilant over good plays and such, but it is virtually impossible to clean up under the stands after a mass scattering operation as mentioned. The athletic department appeals to you, the students, to refrain from making an already hard task even more difficult by scattering paper under the bleachers.

"We know it is hard to restrain oneself inside at an exciting sports event," said Coach Bob Fetzer yesterday, "but our job of keeping the

Ticket Demand Causes Change

Cameron, Von Glahn Engineer Transfer

(Special to Daily Tar Heel)
Durham Jan. 23.—The Southern conference basketball tournament, held for the past several years in Raleigh's Memorial auditorium, was switched to Duke's indoor stadium for 1947 in a move made here today by Eddie Cameron, chairman of the conference basketball committee, and John Von Glahn, business manager of the tourney organization.

The transplanting of the tournament was made because of an unusually high demand for tickets coupled with the fact that Duke can take care of approximately twice as many spectators as Raleigh. However, it was announced simultaneously that there were no more tickets for the games available due to the fact that there were already enough requests in the office of the tournament committee in Raleigh to fill the indoor stands.

There will be no change in the sponsorship of the annual SC classic of the hardwood, the Raleigh Junior and Senior chambers of commerce remaining in that capacity. The only part Duke will take is to stage the game in their gym, which can seat some 9,000 onlookers.

Transfer of the tourney was greeted with accord from all points in the conference according to reports, and all concerned generally agreed that it was a wise move in view of the fact that the Raleigh auditorium seats barely 4,500.

gymnasium clean and in order is made almost impossible by such performances."

The final thing brought to our attention this week was the "booming" of Mr. Mann—the referee of the boxing matches last weekend. Mann, when introduced as from Duke university, was given a welcome befitting a man who had just committed a horrible crime—and just because of the word Duke. That, again, is carrying things a little too far.

That's the story, gang. What say we try to improve, okay? Let's keep the spirit—which incidentally has been fine—but drop the displays of rather poor sportsmanship and messy outbursts. Your cooperation will be appreciated more than you know by Carolina athletic authorities, as well as the visitors who have always found a pleasant and sportsmanlike reception in Woollen gym. Thanks again!

Completing the sports picture for today, we find:

Line Coach Jim Gill, who did such a commendable job last fall both in coaching and scouting, returned yesterday from a vacation at his home in Richmond, Mo. The bird hunting down there was good, says the magnanimous Gill. "I missed the Christmas hunting," he said, but I sure made up for it later." . . . Coach Dale Ranson is riding around in his new 'suburban wagon.' What a car for trips! . . . The White Phantoms try for their second conference win of the season tonight and tomorrow meet Navy and their old coach, Ben Carnevale.

Scottmen Seek Repeat Victory

Locals Battle Navy In Saturday Clash

(Special to Daily Tar Heel)
College Park, Md., Jan. 23.—North Carolina's touring cagers seek their second Southern conference victory of the campaign here tonight when they face Maryland in a return encounter between the two quintets.

Already holding a 58-42 triumph over the Old Liners, the White Phantoms will try for a repeat performance in the first of two tussles on the current jaunt. The cagers continue on to Annapolis Saturday morning and meet Navy's high-powered quint that afternoon, their last away-from-home tilt until February 17.

Same Starters

The same starting five that has opened the last nine games is expected to be the crew that Coach Tom Scott will field this evening. This puts Bob Paxton and Jim Hamilton in the forward berths, Johnny Dillon in the pivot spot at center, and Norm Kohler and Jim White at the guards. For substitutes Coach Scott has available Taylor Thorne, Dick Hartley, Sherman Nearman, Jim Hayworth, Roger Scholbe, Freddy Ryan and King Cole.

Probable starters for the Terrapins are Mont and Shumate at forward, Edwards at center and Brown and Schuerholz at the guard positions.

The clash will be the 11th of the season for the Phantoms who will be after their eighth win.

Frosh Courtmen Encounter Needham Broughton Tonight

By Gil McLeod

Coach Frank Murray's freshman quint will meet the Needham Broughton High School five in a return engagement tonight at 6:30 o'clock in Woollen gym.

The Tar Babies won the first encounter, 45-43, last Saturday in Raleigh.

Starting the game for the freshmen will be either Pete Peters or Bill Childress at one forward post, and Charlie Nichols or Junius Idol at the other. At center will be Sandy Hoft, with Bill Harrington and Bill Walker starting as guards.

Also ready to see action will be Gordon Sauls, Kenny Curtis, and Johnny Reagan.

As a preliminary to the South Carolina-North Carolina game next Wednesday night, the Tar Babies will play a return game with Danville's George Washington High School, starting at 6:30 o'clock.

The Danville five handed the freshmen their only loss this year, 34-31, on January 14. Coach Murray said that George Washington has "one of the best high school teams in Virginia."
