SALUTATORY.
The growing demands of the University have shown the need of a weekly paper. The University Athletic Association regarding itself as the means by which such a need could be supplied, at a stated meeting elected a board of editors (chief and five sub-) and a business manager.
With this apology only, the first issue of the first volume of THE TAR HEEL makes its appearance.
This new venture is necessarily entered upon by the present board with no little trepidation, nevertheless with a determination, to make a success which can only be done through the indulgence and assistance of our faculty and fellow-students. Therefore we invite honest criticism and aid in the advancement of this new project will be gratefully appreciated.

THE LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE VISIT THE UNIVERSITY.
The following members of the legislature composing the visitation committee arrived at the University on a special train Friday morning, February 21st.
Messrs. Battle, chairman; Check, Aycock, James, Pate, of the senate; and Messrs. Holt (chairman) Baise, Parker, Starnes, Walker, Ward, of the house.
After breakfasting, the regular chapel exercises were attended, then visits were made to the reading room, libraries and various lecture rooms where classes were assembled. The numerous laboratories were inspected as well as some of the students' rooms. In the afternoon meetings of both the societies were held and the gentlemen who were not alumni were made honorary members. Just after prayers the boys called repeatedly for speeches from our visitors, a majority of whom responded most felicitously and gave words of encouragement for the future outlook of the university, from a legislative appropriation standpoint. All saw the need of a sufficient appropriation to fully equip this most useful as well as important of all the State projects, and gave to a university of this past brilliant record and whose future prospects are such as would make any State in the union proud to be the possessor of such an heritage to hand to posterity, a sufficient appropriation to put the university on a financial basis equal to its rapid expansion and growth. When some of the committee expressed their deep regret at not having had an opportunity of receiving an education in their youth, we could not but feel that it was a duty that was owed to future generations, and which has been due to those that have passed away, that the supreme law making power in the State, ought to make provision at the university for the North Carolinians as is done at the University of Virginia to Virginians and the only way to do this is to appropriate a sufficient amount to keep the university up until resources from outside States and the technical courses shall make itself sustaining, and, too, we could not but think what a shame and loss it was to North Carolina, that it had failed to open the doors of the university, in the past to such sterling manhood as represented the legislature on the committee. The body of the students were well pleased with our friends, if they are fair sample of our legislators this year. North Carolina is in good hands. They know the needs of the University.

Lucky Luciano Held in Cuba

American Gangster Awaits Deportation

Havana, Feb. 22—(UP)—Cuban authorities have arrested American gangster Charles "Lucky" Luciano. They say he will be deported, as he was deported from the United States to his native Italy last year.

Officials of the federal narcotics bureau say they're very pleased at the news that Luciano will be run out of Cuba. The bureau had banned all American drug shipments to Cuba as long as the notorious dope-smuggler remained there.

Sinatra Is Angry

Crooner Frank Sinatra says he's angry and surprised. Some of the reports about Luciano's gay social whirl in Havana said that the gangster had been seen "fraternizing" with various movie stars, including Sinatra. Sinatra calls that "a vicious lie."

He says that someone brought Lucky to his table in a Havana night club and introduced him. Sinatra shook hands, which he says is hardly fraternizing. "I was brought up," he said angrily, "to shake a man's hand when I'm introduced without first investigating his past."

WEATHER TODAY
Clear to partly cloudy with little temperature change.

Fifty-four years ago today Volume I Number I of the Tar Heel hit the campus. Quite a contrast with the present Daily Tar Heel, the first issues were printed completely by hand set type in a bright blue ink. One of the main features of the first issues were the accounts of sports events—only 20 days late.

The lead article of the first edition, topped by a grammatically incorrect headline, told of the visit of the University legislative committee visiting the campus. The article states that the members were greatly impressed with the University's needs for more appropriations. A picture of the seven editors of the first publication is shown on page two.

Carried Flashes of Sport Events—Only 20 Days Late . . .

Daily Tar Heel Got Its Start 54 Years Ago With Publication of Campus Sports Events

By Barron Mills

Fifty-four years of continuous publication of the Daily Tar Heel have seen the publication's slogan change from the "Only College Daily in the South" to the "Oldest College Daily in the South" and then to its present slogan, "The Only College Daily in the Southeast."

Celebrating its 54th anniversary today, the Tar Heel, as the news sheet was first called, has not once missed a deadline during the academic years.

The Athletic association takes all the credit for the first issues of the publication since it was originally printed to give an account of the athletic events on campus. It was nothing unusual in the diaper days of the paper to wait a full two weeks to read the much-talked-about Carolina-Trinity college games. Walter "Pete" Murphy and Charles Baskerville were the first editors of the sports sheet—which was printed with handset type in bright blue ink—Baskerville served as editor-in-chief and Murphy, managing editor.

Many of the names that once stood out in the masthead of the publication have been transplanted into mastheads of metropolitan dailies as well as in "Who's Who in America." Frank P. Graham, president of the University; Thomas Wolfe, famous author of "Look Homeward Angel," and Jonathan Daniels, prominent North Carolina author-lecturer and former editor of the News and Observer are among its former staff members.

One of the Tar Heel's main crusades during the years has been the paving of the muddy walks on campus. In February 1893 the publication blasted forth with its first editorial advocating the paving of the campus walks. From time to time during the years the matter has spotlighted the edit pages of the Tar Heel, but it was not until the past fall that the Board of Trustees consented to do away with the muddy walk tradition. It took the publication 54 years to realize this goal, but the Tar Heel is generally credited with the victory.

From Rags to Riches
Considerable progress has been made from its feeble beginning in a delapidated storeroom next to the old Methodist church, until now the publication covers five fairly large rooms besides maintaining its night offices in the Orange printshop.

The original ten-man staff of the Tar Heel has been increased nearly six times its number. The office is equipped with a full-time United Press wire service—one of the few collegiate newspapers to have a teletype. The little news sheet advanced from its sports sheet weekly to a full-fledged semi-weekly in 1920. In 1928 the Tar Heel slipped "Daily" before its name and got into competition with the other dailies in the state.

The war years played havoc with the staff of the DTH as well as to the student body of the University. Due to the reduction in staff members and the shortage of newsprint the daily

Renowned Poet Frost, Pulitzer Prize Winner, Coming Here Tuesday

Robert Frost, world-renowned poet-trayer of New England life in verse, who speaks in Memorial hall Tuesday evening at 8:30, said on his last visit here in 1943, that Chapel Hill holds a great interest for him. It is a place of poetical drama, Frost said, because of the number of writers and creative artists who have lived here and have been influenced by the atmosphere.

Winning the Pulitzer prize in poetry in the years 1924, 1931 and 1937, the noted poet was also awarded the Loines prize in 1931, the Mark Twain medal in 1937, the American Academy of Arts and Letters medal in 1938, and the Poetry Society of America prize in 1941.

Frost uses an indirect approach in the great majority of his work, using character sketches, anecdotes and incidents to imply and suggest his underlying themes.

Her appearance here is being sponsored by the Woman's Pan Hellenic and the Carolina Independent Coed association, headed by Sallie Robertson of Washington and Betsy Ann Barbee of Chapel Hill, respectively.

A native of Louisville, Ky., she attended Vassar college and took her A.B. at Goucher college in 1933. She received her master's degree from George Washington university and her Ph.D. from the University of London in 1940.

In 1941 Dr. Lucas was appointed associate professor of philosophy and religion at the University of Richmond and Dean of Students at Westhampton college. Three years later she went to Radcliffe college as associate dean.

Dr. Lucas was awarded an honorary LL.D. by Goucher college and another LL.D. from Alabama College in 1946.
