Beirne Blasts Federal Action

Says Phone Union Will Resist Bans

Washington, April 4—(UP)—President Joseph Beirne of the National Federation of Telephone Workers has attacked proposed federal and state action against the scheduled country-wide phone strike.

First, he charged that Attorney General Clark had "stretched the law to the breaking point" in deciding that President Truman has power to seize the telephone industry to prevent the walkout.

Second, he said the union will, "resist the action of states that deny us rights guaranteed under federal law." Beirne apparently referred to reports that some states plan action to ban the strike.

Management-labor conferences will be held this weekend in a last minute attempt to avert the walkout. The strike is scheduled to begin at 6 o'clock Monday morning.

McChord Field, Wash., April 4—(UP)—An Army weather reconnaissance B-29, presumably carrying a crew of 10 men, has radioed that two of its four engines are "out of control" some one thousand miles northwest of Seattle. The giant plane is en route from Anchorage, Alaska, to Fairfield, Cal., but was last reported limping toward Seattle for an emergency landing. An air rescue service B-17, carrying drop packets and rubber life rafts, has taken off to escort the crippled B-29 to a landing spot or to search for it if it has gone down.

Over 200 View Art Exhibit

The open-house and formal opening of the exhibit in Person hall, "Modern Art in Advertising," was enjoyed by more than 200 guests last Sunday afternoon some of whom are shown above, browsing around. Also present at this opening were three representatives of the Container Corporation of America, under whose auspices the show appears here.

The exhibit has been set up in the large gallery at Person hall following specific display plans sent us by the Container Corporation of America. A network of partitions have been constructed in the gallery in order to present the exhibit to its best advantage. It is a very unusual plan and quite unique.

This show has already attracted the attention of more than 500 visitors, including many students of marketing and advertising as well as art aspirants.

The exhibit will run until April 27. It is the opinion of the art department that everyone will enjoy and benefit from this exhibit which is so extraordinary both in content and display.

First Buying Club Meeting To Be Held Monday Evening

Group to Convene at 7:45 in Bingham Hall; Main Business to Be Co-op Grocery Orders

Co-op Chairman Tom McDade announced yesterday that the Chapel Hill Buying club will sponsor its first spring quarter buying meeting on Monday evening, at 7:45 in 103 Bingham hall. Main object of Monday's meeting will be to accept grocery orders from co-op members for group purchases. Old members have been notified that they may order by mail, but those persons who have not participated in a previous order will have to attend the meeting.

To Pay Dividend

In addition McDade announced that the co-op is planning to pay its first patronage dividend to stockholders. Based on purchases made since January of this year the exact amount of the dividend will be unknown until all stockholders have submitted their claims.

John Campbell, co-op stock sales manager, will be present at Monday's meeting to sell co-op stock to those persons who are interested in becoming members.

"All that is required of an individual in order to place a co-op order is the purchase of one share of stock at one dollar per share. This stock entitles a member to place orders and also pays dividends up to five per cent per year," explained Campbell.

To Make Purchases

Following consolidation of orders taken Monday, purchases will be made at wholesale prices and it is expected that distribution will take place through neighborhood chairmen on Saturday, April 12.

With Tom McDade as chairman and Dr. Frank Kottke as treasurer the co-op was organized last November by a group of veterans alarmed by the problem of "making ends meet" in the face of high living costs. The organization has progressed rapidly to the point where it is today fully incorporated as the Chapel Hill Mutual Distributors. Recently the University Board of Trustees authorized a co-operative store at Victory Village but until this is established the organization continues to operate as a buying club.

Open to All

Like all co-ops the organization is open to all who purchase stock and no distinction is made between veteran and non-veteran.

"We welcome all who have found the cost of living an increased problem and sincerely hope that many new people will be on hand Monday night to help us and at the same time to help themselves," said McDade.

SUNRISE SERVICE

The annual Easter sunrise service will be held tomorrow morning at 7 o'clock in the Forest theatre. The service, jointly sponsored by the YWCA and the YMCA will be conducted by Rev. William Potent and Alice Summers. In case of bad weather the service will not be held. Miss Summers, coed at the University, will lead the congregation in the singing of traditional Easter hymns.

Exchange Chevrons for Sweaters. . .

Nearly One Hundred Former Service Women Matriculating at University this Quarter

By Darley Lochner

They were Army nurses, Navy nurses, WAVES, WACS, SPARS, and WRS, but they are Carolina coeds now. Almost a hundred former service women have exchanged Uncle Sam's uniform for his $65 a month and are now students.

Carolina's female veterans look very much like the usual coed but they have been places and done things that make them different from the girls who did not join the services. Many women, especially Army and Navy nurses, served overseas. Wanda Reeves of Sparta was an Army nurse in England, France, and Germany for 22 months. Mabel Hall of Murphy served with the Army nurses in France, Switzerland, Belgium and Germany, as did Thelma Hoffman of Snow Hill in England.

All Over Globe

Wave Alice Logan of Chapel Hill saw V-J Day in Honolulu. Also in Hawaii were Navy nurse Ada Boyd of Muskegoe, Okla., and Army Nurse Dorothy Lunsford of Petersburg, Va. In New Hebrides and New Zealand was Sally Gray, navy nurse from Roanoke, Va., June Watson of Kings-ton, N. Y., and Clyde Hogsd of Cornelia, Ga., who are roommates here, were also together for five years as Army nurses in Hawaii and Guam.

Assembly Defeats Hayes Amendment To Exclude AVC

The proposal to exempt the American Veteran committee from a bill that would allow deductions of gifts to veteran organizations from state income taxes, failed to pass the General Assembly and the bill became a law yesterday without exempting the AVC.

Representative James M. Hayes of Forsyth county previously presented an amendment to exclude the AVC from the bill—describing the group as a "Red-tainted outfit." The charges were vigorously denied by Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., who is presently a member of the National Planning committee and in charge of veterans housing, and Walter Spearman, journalism professor at the University.

Both Roosevelt and Spearman denied the acclamations by Hayes in telegrams which were read to members of the Legislature yesterday.

The complete itinerary of the annual summer cruise of sophomores of the University NROTC unit has been announced by Capt. D. W. Loomis, professor of Naval Science. After gunnery practice here they will proceed to Bermuda, spending August 2-5 in Hamilton, August 8-13 in New York city, and returning to Hampton Roads, Va., on the 15th.

The University Naval students will participate in these maneuvers with contingents from 34 other units located at eastern colleges. Lt. R. E. Patton, instructor in the NROTC department here, will also make the cruise.

Chaplain, CMH Winner, Coming Here April 13

Father Joseph T. O'Callahan, S.J., will speak at 8 o'clock Sunday evening, April 13, in Hill hall under sponsorship of the Aquinas club. Father O'Callahan is the only armed forces chaplain in American history to receive the Congressional Medal of Honor, which he won through heroism aboard the aircraft carrier Franklin in the Pacific. Father O'Callahan's talk will be on post-war problems and his visit to the campus is sponsored jointly by the Aquinas club, the Duke Catholic club, and the Chapel Hill Rosary guild.

Construction Nearly Finished On Seven New Class Buildings

By Ed Joyner

An old grad revisiting the scene of his school days at the University would no doubt be surprised and shocked by what appears to be an Army camp mushrooming among the hallowed edifices of the campus. But he would be even more surprised a few months from now when the twenty-nine retired Army buildings now being converted into civilian classrooms are more nearly completed.

At present work is almost finished on seven of the buildings and construction is proceeding rapidly on most of the others, with at least the foundations laid for all but five of the 29 units. Work on two others will begin Monday.

Nearest Completion

Buildings nearest completion are two on the west side of the library, three near the University power house, and two public health school units near the medical school.

Three buildings intended for additions to the main library should be finished within thirty days, J. S. Bennett, Supervisor of Operations, said yesterday. Two of these will be turned over to the library immediately to relieve the congestion of books in the main building. The other unit will be used as a tool room by the J. A. Jones Construction company, contractors for the building project.

Only difficulty being encountered on the job now, Bennett said, is that the dismantled buildings are arriving from Camp Forrest, Tenn., faster than they can be handled by workers here. Work was received yesterday that seven truckloads of the building parts are on their way here now and will arrive Monday.

Although not intended for regular class use before next fall, several of the buildings will be ready during the summer session if needed. Heating will be installed in all units during the summer and the buildings will be ready for a full time class schedule in September.

They were selected at intermission by a secret committee and were presented with a carton of Philip Morris cigarettes and their pictures were sent to the New York Advertising agency of the firm.
