Speed Violators Are to Receive Little Sympathy

As a result of the fatal accident Sunday evening, speed limit violators near Chapel Hill will receive little sympathy if apprehended, State Highway Patrolman Robert R. Thomas said yesterday.

"There was no evidence of drunken driving or mechanical trouble in Sunday night's wreck," Thomas said. "The sole cause, apparently, was speeding."

In an effort to end the violation of state speed limits the consideration usually extended student lawbreakers will be dropped, Thomas said. He pointed out that on the hilly roads approaching Chapel Hill even the allowed speeds can be dangerous.

The limit on Pittsboro road and Highway 54 toward Greensboro and toward Raleigh is 50 m.p.h. The limit on the Durham road is 40 m.p.h.

Phi Will Discuss Heavy Enrollment At Meet Tonight

The Phi assembly will discuss problems presented by the heavy enrollment at the University this evening at 7 o'clock, Phi hall, fourth floor, New East.

Several guest speakers have been invited to present their views on the advisability to increase enrollment figures to 7200 in fall as estimated by the University admissions office. The number of students in school now shows a slight drop from 5927 men and 1082 women, who attended during Winter term, to 5847 men and 994 women in school during this quarter. It is expected that about 700 students will leave school via graduation in June while about 1200 will be admitted in September.

Visitors are cordially invited to take part in the discussion.
