Student Legislature Hears Recreation Shack Proposal

NSO Appropriations Bill in Committee; Ernest House on Graham Memorial Board

Considerable talk begun in party platforms last spring concerning the conversion of the unused Navy wrestling pavilion near Emerson field house into an interdormitory recreation house paid off Thursday night as Charlie Long, speaker pro-tem, put

Knight Foresees Bright Future for South's Education

Dr. Edgar W. Knight of the University education department told a large gathering of Virginia educators at Harrisonburg, Va., Friday night that "the South is potentially the public educational hope of this country."

He called upon the colleges and universities and state departments of education "to join hands in advancing in this region an educational and cultural awakening such as no section of this country has ever seen, by being courageous enough to plan more intelligently the proper education and certification of the teachers and managers if our public schools, and by helping to stop dead in its tracks the present menacing tendency to mechanize and to establish a sort of politico-pedagogical priestcraft in our public educational work."

Speaking at the fourth annual institute of education at Madison college, Dr. Knight said that the most serious need in public education today is for "teachers and superintendents and principals of schools who are men and women of broad and generous education rather than of narrow technical pedagogical training, men and women who can hold their own with the best educated people in the communities in whose schools they work."

Other speakers at the institute included Prof. George Counts, of Columbia University; Dr. Benjamin Fine, education editor of the New York Times; and Prof. W. R. Smithey of the University of Virginia, who presided over the conference.

AVC Hears Report On National Meet

Members of the American Veterans committee heard a report Tuesday evening on the AVC national convention in Milwaukee from chapter delegates Winston Broadfoot and Roland Giduz, who returned to Chapel Hill on Monday evening.

According to Broadfoot, communist and extreme left-wing elements which for some time have been seeking to dominate the organization received a decisive defeat at Milwaukee. Chet Patterson, a conservative sponsored by Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., won a convincing victory over the left-wing candidate to succeed Charles Bolte as national commander. Les Purcell of Atlanta, Ga., was selected to succeed Chapel Hill's Walter Spearman as southern regional director.

Discuss Congressional Action

Recent congressional action to deny the benefits of the GI bill to those veterans deemed "disloyal" by the veterans administration was strongly denounced by the majority of the chapter members. Consensus was that inasmuch as "a man's political beliefs were not questioned at the time of induction it is patently unfair to question them when veteran's benefits are being awarded."

In line with this the chapter voted to register its disapproval with the House veterans affairs committee.

SCHW to Meet Tuesday

The local chapter of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare will meet next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Graham Memorial.

Included on the agenda will be an analysis of the Un-American Activities committee charges against the Southern Conference, and a report on the community center.

before the Student Legislature a bill calling for investigation of the possibility of converting the pavilion for that purpose.

The bill called for the naming of a three-man committee to investigate the situation, for legislative consideration of the committee's report, and for co-operation with the administration toward conversion of the pavilion.

Another bill, calling for the appropriation of $600 to cover expenses for three delegates to the National Service Organization constitutional convention in Madison, Wis., in September, was sent to a committee and will be reported out next week.

In other action, the legislature named Ernest House as temporary (summer) representative from that body to the Board of Directors of Graham Memorial. He replaces Tag Montague, not present this summer.

The interdormitory recreation shack bill, which probably topped the night's business, has since spring been the talking point of political parties as well as of the Men's Interdormitory council.

The council at its meeting Monday night discussed plans for the shack at length and will go further into the question next Monday night at a joint meeting of the Men's council with the Women's Interdormitory council.

The legislature will meet again next Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock in Gerrard hall.

UNC Faculty Member On European Mission

Paul E. Shearin, head of the physics department in the University, will represent the University and the U. S. navy at an international conference at the University of Bristol in England next month.

The conference will be devoted to research reports on the physical properties of metals. Research specialists from England, France, Holland and the United States will participate in the sessions. The representatives from this country, besides Mr. Shearin, will be Dr. Paul Symonds of the navy research laboratory and Ira Kramer, of the U. S. Office of Navy Research.

Mr. Shearin is being sent to the conference by the Navy department in recognition of the work he has done for the navy during the last five years. He will fly to Europe on an army plane and will report to the American embassy in London before going to the conference.

Before returning home he will visit several European universities.

Lost Colony Still Going Strong After 10 Years

By Hoke Norris
Manteo.—It isn't often that a play is still going strong years after it was still presented to the public. But North Carolina has one of its own which on July 4 will be 10 years old.

It is the Lost Colony, which next Tuesday (July 1) will begin a 49-performance season in the Waterside Theatre at Fort Raleigh, three miles north of here. This record is all the more remarkable for the fact that when Paul Green's symphonic drama opened on July 4, 1937, it was intended as a more or less local, one-season commemoration of the events which occurred at Fort Raleigh—the first British attempts to colonize the New World, and the birth of Virginia Dare, the first English child born in America.

Its revival each year through 1941—when the war interrupted its run—was made possible by the enthusiastic response the play received each time it was performed. It was revived last year and witnessed then by more than 52,000 persons, and more thousands will come this season—and in those which will follow—to see history recreated in the spoken word, in pantomime, the dance, and song.

Figures Show Total of 4,445 Students Enrolled in First Summer School Term

Educators, Clergy Attend Human Relations Workshop

By Raney Stanford

The first workshop in human resources and intercultural education in the region of the south is now being conducted in the Alumni building. The workshop, under the joint sponsorship of the National Conference of Christians and Jews and the University, has attracted around 40 educators and religious leaders from six southern states for the six weeks work in human relations.

W. Carson Ryan, head of the department of education here, is serving as director, with John E. Ivey, Jr., as associate director and special consultant on resource-use education. Lester Dix, of the Bureau of Intercultural Education of New York City, is the full-time consultant for the six-weeks period.

This program, as Dix points out, is helping those participating in developing good educational processes, in improving living conditions, and guiding groups in the paths of tolerance.

"We are working with members of various regional minority groups as consultants, to find the best ways to combat intolerance and prejudices," Dix said. "Also among our consultants for this current program are religious leaders, psychiatrists, sociologists, labor and industrial leaders, and artists."

That the interest in the work being done here is greater than regional is shown by the presence of a Peruvian university professor and a Chinese school principal on the rolls of the workshop.

Committee Will Study Constitution Changes

Tom Eller, student body president, has named a five-man constitution committee to investigate difficulties arising from the unorthodox manner in which the constitution was amended in spring elections.

Chairmaned by Jim Vogler, the committee will consider whether current amendments, offered in substitution form rather than by customary addition, should be retained or reworded to comply with the proper addition procedure. The Student Council will be asked to adjudicate the document before provision is made for the printing of official amended copies of the constitution.

The new committee, made up of Vogler, Bill Mackie, Dewey Dorsett, Annie Ben Beal, and Jimmy Wallace, will hold its initial meeting at 8 o'clock Tuesday in the Grail Room at Graham Memorial.

GRADES STILL AVAILABLE

All students who have not picked up their grades for the spring quarter and desire to do so, are informed that the marks are now obtainable at the Information desk on the first floor of South building.

Interdorm Groups Will Meet Monday For Joint Session

The Men's and Women's Interdormitory councils will hold a joint meeting Monday evening at 7 o'clock in the Roland Parker Lounge No. 2, Graham Memorial to start immediate action on the procurement or erection of an interdormitory recreation shack.

At the meeting of the men's group held last Monday evening, it was decided that funds for the building be raised by sponsoring dances, but a resolution was also carried to the effect that each council member should contact other dormitory men before the next meeting for suggestions on other ways of raising money.

A resolution was approved setting up a committee of three, appointed by the chair, to investigate the feasibility of holding a dance in the immediate future, to determine what orchestra will be available and to report on these items at the meeting Monday evening.

Frank Hassell is president of the men's council, and Miriam Evans is president of the women's group.

Last Yack Distribution Set for Next Thursday

This year's Yacks will be distributed for the last time this year next Thursday from 2 to 4 p.m. in the Horace Williams Lounge of Graham Memorial.

A limited number of 1945 and 1946 Yacks will be on sale at this time for $1.50. It is necessary to sell these books at this price since there is no place in which to store them, it was explained.

It is still possible to get a friend's Yack with his ID card.

Carolina Political Union To Discuss Labor Bill

Sunday evening at 8 o'clock the Carolina Political Union will hold its first meeting of the summer in the Grail room on the second floor of Graham Memorial. The topic under discussion will be the Taft-Hartley labor bill, which has been passed by both houses of Congress to override President Truman's veto and become law.

Warren Wicker, vice chairman of the CPU, invites all who are interested to attend and participate in the discussion, and requests all members to be present for a short and important business meeting.

Baptist Group to Meet

The Baptist Student Union will serve coffee and doughnuts at 9:15 tomorrow morning in the basement of the Baptist church. Church school classes, taught by Dr. P. H. Epps and George Neal, will begin immediately afterward at 9:45.

Tomorrow evening at 6:15, there will be a buffet supper followed by a song service and a forum discussion. All students are invited to attend.

UNIVERSITY PARTY MEETING

The steering committee of the University party will hold an important meeting Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Horace Williams lounge in Graham Memorial.

U.S.-Russian Split Is Subject for IRC Open Meeting Monday

Summer school students are invited to participate in the International Relations club's open forum Monday evening at 8 o'clock on the subject "What basic questions divide Russia and the United States?" The IRC will meet in the Graham Memorial Roland Parker lounge.

The informal discussion comes as a follow-up to last Wednesday's faculty forum, which attracted more than 300 students to Graham Memorial. At Monday's open meeting, IRC members and visitors will attempt to clarify some of the arguments introduced by the four faculty speakers, Professors Helmut Kuhn, Carl E. Shedd, W. Carson Ryan and M. S. Heath.

Students interested in joining the IRC may arrange for interviews with membership chairman Ken Cruise at Monday evening's meeting.

Jud Kinberg Selected For Magazine Council

Jud Kinberg, University junior from New York city, has been selected as one of 10 college students throughout the country to become one of Pic magazine's college council representatives.

During his senior year here, beginning in September, Kinberg, who is a former managing editor of the Daily Tar Heel, will write a monthly article for Pic on campus trends and interests.

This week, he, along with the other college council representatives, is attending a national job conference being sponsored by Pic for the purpose of discussing with young writers "the gap between college and a job."

Kinberg, who was a student here early in the war, entered the army during his sophomore year and served overseas. He returned to the University last fall and was managing editor of the Carolina Magazine during the past year. He is a member of the Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity.

Sound and Fury, campus musical comedy organization, has announced that tryouts for skits, heelzapop'n gags, and specialties will be held on Monday afternoon from 2 until 5 o'clock at a meeting tentatively set for Memorial Hall Auditorium.

Following the afternoon session, a meeting at 7 o'clock Monday night is scheduled for all persons wishing to participate in a college show. Billy Carmichael, S&F president, has invited anyone in school to attend and sign-up for work in the organization.
