Di to Sponsor Open Forum At 9 Tonight

A five-man forum on world government, moderated by Jimmy Wallace, is scheduled for a meeting of the Dialectic Literary society in the organization's hall on the third floor of New West tonight at 9 o'clock.

Listed for the forum are Professor Henry Brandis, Jr., and Dr. Frank W. Hanft, both of the Law school; Dr. Joseph W. Straley of the Physics department; Dr. Frang Kottke of the Economics department; and Harold Bock, a special student at the University.

Forum Members

All members of the forum are well-acquainted with the world government movement. Prof. Brandis is president of the town chapter of the United World Federalists; Dr. Hanft has long been interested in the movement; Dr. Straley offers his knowledge of physics and the relation of atomic energy to world government; Dr. Kottke's economic knowledge qualifies him for the forum; and Harold Bock was a leader in the world government movement at Northwestern university.

The forum will be followed by a question and answer period.

Di President Maurice Braswell explains that the society is departing from its traditions as a debating society because world government "is the most vital issue facing the world today."

Interdorm Councils Attempt to Procure Monogram Hall

The members of the Men's and Women's Interdormitory councils have requested that the University administration assign the Monogram club building to dormitory residents for recreational purposes.

At a joint meeting Monday night, the members carried the following resolution:

"Whereas, the dormitory residents do not have adequate recreational facilities, and

"Whereas, the building now used by the Monogram Club is ideally located, and

"Whereas, the construction of another building for recreational purposes would take a long time even if funds were available.

"We now, therefore, request that the University Administration make this building available to the dormitory residents beginning with the Fall Quarter and continuing until other facilities are provided."

Dance Planned

Plans were also formulated at the Monday night meeting for a jointly sponsored dance to be held the second Friday of next summer session on August 1.

Music for the event will be furnished by a local orchestra, and the floor show will be under the direction of Bud Robinson, president of Grimes dormitory.

The purpose of the dance will be to help raise funds for the erection of an interdormitory shack which will be open to all student groups.

Miriam Evans is the president of the women's group and the officials for the men's organization are as follows: Frank Hassell, president; Bill Hight, vice president; Edwin C. Bagby, secretary; Frank A. Holman, treasurer.

Legislature Will Consider Dozen Bills

Nearing the climax of first term business, the Student Legislature will meet at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night in Gerrard hall with a dozen new bills due for the test by vote.

Thursday night's meeting will probably be considerably different from this summer's previous sessions—in its effect as well as in its length. So far this term meetings have been cursory, seldom exceeding half an hour in duration. This has been due to lack of business to hold the lawmakers in Gerrard hall.

This week, however, there will be no shortage of business. At least three controversial bills and a number of by-laws changes are expected to be reported out by committees.

If all these bills are cleared by committees and if the legislature stays in session long enough to vote on the large sheaf, this will probably be the final legislature meeting of the first term for the group. But if some committees have difficulty in agreeing on such bills as the reapportionment proposal, or the bill to require financial reporting by student activities, or the bill to put campus budget construction into a stricter mold, the legislators may then have to return once more before the term ends.

In addition to the new bills, legislators may have to hear a report from Herman Baker's inter-dorm recreation shack committee which was appointed two weeks ago by Speaker Folger to investigate the possibility of re-modeling the wrestling pavillion near Emerson field as a recreation house for those students living in dorms.

Dean Spruill Urges Early Registration

Students in the General College who have not yet registered for the fall quarter should sign appointment sheets at the information desk in South building as soon as possible for consultation with their advisers from July 15 to 18. C. P. Spruill, Jr., dean of the General College, urged promptness in making these appointments so that registration might move smoothly next week.

Veterans to Entertain Coeds of Carr, Aycock

The University Veterans association will honor the coeds of Carr and Aycock dormitories with an open-house and dance tonight in the UVA clubhouse from 8:30 till 11 o'clock.

Coeds in the two dormitories are urged to be ready when the escort committee calls at 8:15.

Veterans wishing to join the UVA may obtain membership cards at the door.

UVA Obtains Aid for Campus Veterans With Subsistence Checks Still Missing

Love interest in the Playmaker production "The Late Christopher Bean" is aptly provided by Bootsie Stevenson (left), as Susan Haggett, and James Waddington as Warren Creamer. The comedy opens at the Playmaker theatre Thursday night at 8:30 o'clock for a two-day run.

Playmakers Comedy to Open Thursday for Two-Day Run

Tickets are now on sale for The Carolina Playmakers' first show this summer, "The Late Christopher Bean," a comedy by Pulitzer prize-winner, Sidney Howard. The play will open tomorrow evening at 8:30 in the Playmakers theatre, and a second performance will be given Friday evening.

All seats in this theatre are reserved. Tickets are available at $1 (including tax) and may be purchased, prior to the opening of the theatre box-office, at Swain hall or at the down-town ticket office in Ledbetter-Pickard's stationery store.

A cast of nine experienced student-actors have been in rehearsal for the past three weeks under the direction of John W. Parker, who recently staged "Macbeth" here in the Forest theatre. Norman Mattis, visiting professor of speech from Amherst, is playing "Dr. Haggett," the role created on the screen by Lionel Barrymore. The famous "Abby" (Marie Dressler in the screen production) is played by Marion Miller of Aberdeen, Maryland. Others in the cast include Bootsie Stevenson, Catherine Covington, Henriette Neal, A. E. Westover, III, William Hardy, Herbert Mork, and James Waddington.

Theatre-goers who are concerned with the hot weather will be interested in knowing that the Playmakers have recently installed three large, high-powered electric fans.

Language Exams Set

Examinations for a reading knowledge of French and Spanish for students in the School of Commerce or those planning to enter the School of Commerce will be held Friday, July 18, at 2 o'clock. French examinations will be given in Murphy 215; Spanish in Murphy 207.

CCUN Meets Tonight In Graham Memorial

An important meeting of the Collegiate Council on the United Nations will be held tonight at 8:30 in the Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial. The purpose of this meeting is to enlist the aid and support of the campus organizations and groups in a campaign to get the whole campus squarely behind the CCUN.

Chairman Lincoln Kan urges all persons interested in actively supporting and aiding in the CCUN drive to be present. The program outlined by the CCUN is enormous in its scope, and willing, capable workers are badly needed to insure its success, according to Kan.

The meeting will be informal in character, and suggestions from all present will be welcomed and considered. Dr. Frank Graham will attend in an advisory capacity. It is hoped that the leaders of as many campus organizations as possible will attend in order to acquaint themselves with the CCUN and its aims, and in turn, to enlist the support of their respective groups in the drive, Kan said.

Through this meeting the CCUN hopes to convince the campus of the vital importance of its projected program, and the responsibility of every student in the work of keeping the U.N. alive, he said.

VESPER SERVICE

Dr. Bertram Yontz, Lutheran minister of Chapel Hill, will be guest speaker on the Vesper program tonight.

Room Deposits, Eating Tickets To Be Advanced

By Bill Lamkin

Steps have been taken by the University Veterans association in cooperation with the University administration to relieve veterans on campus who have not received last month's subsistence checks.

When still no checks showed up in yesterday's mail, UVA President Hugh Wells and Veterans Adviser F. Carlyle Shepard formulated a plan whereby veterans who are short on cash won't have to go hungry, and they also may be assured of a place to room during the next summer session.

Room Reservation

The plan as announced by Wells would dispense with the required room deposit for the second session, in the case of veterans who have failed to receive their subsistence pay. Those veterans may reserve dormitory rooms by reporting to the University Housing office, 207 South building, no later than tomorrow, last scheduled day for reservations. They must bring their C-number in order to take advantage of this plan. The veteran must pay a $10 room deposit when he gets his check.

The UVA was able to secure this arrangement through a conference with J. E. Wadsworth, housing officer, and T. H. Evans, University cashier. If the veteran fails to make his deposit or reserve his room under this plan, his room will be reassigned, the housing office said.

Meal Tickets

Meal tickets have been drawn by the UVA from Lenoir dining hall and are available to veterans as a loan in the office of Mr. Shepard, 208 South building. Wells pointed out that these meal tickets will be issued on a loan basis, and the veteran will be expected to repay the loan as soon as his check arrives.

Extensive inquiries were begun last Friday when subsistence checks failed to show up. Shepard and J. A. Williams, University legal advisor, were unable to obtain a satisfactory explanation of the delay from Veterans administration officials in Winston-Salem or Richmond. However, VA officials were of the opinion that the holdup was due to a deficiency of appropriations by the federal government, possibly caused by the ending of the budget fiscal year on June 30, Shepard said.

Gardner Is Named New S and F Head

Sound and Fury, campus musical comedy club, has elected Douglas Gardner as its new president to speed preparations for the combination minstrel-vaudeville show to be presented July 17 and 18.

Other new officers included Grey Adams, secretary-treasurer; Pete Strader, sets and costume designer; Frank Matthews, music director; Grey Adams, dance supervisor; and Dolly Donaldson, choreographer. The veteran S&F director is Ben Kistler.

"Weep No More"

The forthcoming musical comedy opening the S&F schedule for the summer is to be entitled "Weep No More." It will feature fresh campus talent and songs of the past and present arranged by a fifteen-piece pit orchestra organized especially for this show. Comedy to range from Chaucer to end-men is indicative of a variety show well worth seeing.

This show is being given especially to acquaint students enrolled at the University this term for the first time with S&F's place in campus activities. All interested newcomers with theatrical talent are invited to apply now for S&F membership.

Green's 'Common Glory' Opens Soon

Paul Green has done it again. To be more explicit, the Pulitzer prize-winning author of North Carolina's classic "The Lost Colony" has written another drama dealing with the early days of American colonization—entitled "The Common Glory"—and this time the scene is laid in Virginia.

Set to open July 17 and run through September 14, "The Common Glory" is sponsored by the Jamestown corporation in cooperation with the Virginia Conservation commission. Serving as honorary head of the sponsoring group is Virginia Governor William M. Tuck. Former-Governor Colgate W. Darden, newly-elected president of the University of Virginia, will serve as president of the group.

An amphitheatre to seat 2,600 has been built on Matoka lake, beside the Jamestown road, just a short distance from colonial Williamsburg. Built in a 12-acre wooded area beside the lake, the amphitheatre has a 62-foot wide stage flanked by scenery docks and dressing rooms for the cast.

Author Green's home state is well represented as plans for formal opening are rapidly progressing. Not only is the author a North Carolinian, but also several members of the production staff were trained at the University of North Carolina. Roger Boyle, associate director, received his Master's degree in drama at the University; Robert Dale Martin, narrator, received both his B.A. and M.A. at the University and taught radio production classes there. Martin also served as radio announcer and production man with stations WRAL and WPTF in Raleigh. Organist for the drama is Johnny O'Steen, University student, who was the first to hold the Kay Kyser award in music in 1941.

The Chapel Hill author made the following statement regarding the production: "What 'The Lost Colony' shows as getting started, namely a settlement and a creed of government in the New World, 'The Common Cause' will show as actually coming to fulfillment in democracy. I hope that all who see this Virginia historical drama will be encouraged to believe more and more in the great American drama, which is not the vision of one nation as opposed to another nation or one people precedent over another people, but a vision of the common glory, common to all men—freedom, justice and a righteous society of men as brothers all over the world."
