

Men's Honor Council Decision Revoked By Faculty Appeal Board

Decision Overrules Verdict of Guilty By Student Group

By Chuck Hauser
For the first time in the memory of South building officials and student government leaders, a decision handed down by the Men's Honor Council has been reversed by a faculty board of appeal.

Student Dismissed
According to information released yesterday afternoon by Tom Eller, Student Body president, the case of a student who was charged with cheating in a laboratory came before the Men's Council during the second summer session. The student was found guilty and dismissed from the University.

He immediately appealed his case, which ordinarily would have gone next to the Student Council, to a faculty board of appeals, a quorum not being present in the Student Council ranks to review the action of the Men's Council.

Reinstatement
The faculty board, composed of one member chosen by the administration, one chosen by the president of the student body, and one chosen by the student in question, reinstated the accused man in the University.

Although the student has since withdrawn from school, the Men's Council has presented his case to administration officials for reconsideration of the faculty board decision.

Offices Open
In addition to the Honor Council case, Tom Eller also released other pertinent information for students, including the fact that the student government offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial are now open, but will not run on regularly scheduled hours immediately. The office is staffed by Eller, student body vice-president Jack Folger, and the clerk of the Student Legislature.

Other important points stressed by Eller during the interview included:
1. The constitutional committee, headed by Jim Volger, will very shortly distribute copies of the student constitution to all major campus organizations and to the library.

Vandalism Prevention
2. Extensive work will begin after this weekend to prevent vandalism during the periods immediately before the State and Duke football games.

3. Student government has been successful in having the problem of the reinstatement of intercollegiate boxing at Carolina placed on the agenda of the first meeting of the Athletic Council on October 2.

4. Appreciation is expressed for the initiative and hard work by Bill Shuford and Jess Dedmond in setting up the Student Activities Center in Graham Memorial, one of the original purposes for which GM was established.

Andrews, Ayers Get Kyser Scholarships

HAROLD L. ANDREWS

WILLIAM R. AYERS

Awards Established in 1941 Give Tuition, Fees, Books, and Board

Harold Lee Andrews of Durham, sophomore, and William Rufus Ayers of Roanoke, Va., senior, have been awarded the Kay Kyser scholarships in music and dramatic art, respectively for the coming year at the University.

These two scholarships, established in 1941 by Kay Kyser, famous band leader and radio personality, furnish the winners with tuition, fees, room, board, and books for one year at Chapel Hill. Basis of selection is character, scholastic rank, leadership, achievements, and promise of future distinction in dramatic art or music.

Andrews, winner of the music award, graduated from the Durham high school in June, 1946, as valedictorian of his class, holding honors in the high school band and student government. He received a scholarship to the music school at Interlochen, Mich., for last summer, and returned to enter the University here last fall. He holds a four-year International Civitan scholarship and a University scholarship here. During the past year he participated in activities of the University band and orchestra and was an honor student.

Ayers, winner of the drama award, attended V.P.I. to study chemistry before 1944 when he entered the Navy V-12 program here at the University and became interested in the Carolina Playmakers. After a year of active duty with the Navy he returned to the University in 1946 where he has been an honor student ever since. During the past year he has worked in a technical capacity with "The Lost Colony" at Manteo.

Playmakers Book 'Saint Joan' As First of Five Productions

Five major productions will be featured during the 30th season of the Carolina Playmakers. It was announced last night, and tryouts for the first play, "Saint Joan" by George Bernard Shaw, will be held in the Playmakers Theatre at 4:00 and 7:30 P. M. on Wednesday, October 1.

This season is the 30th consecutive year of activity by the Playmakers, a community theatre serving as a laboratory or organization of the department of dramatic art. A full schedule of eighteen experimental plays, arranged in six bills, is planned in addition to the five major productions of full length plays.

Hans Rothe, guest lecturer, recently from Madrid, Spain, who will direct "Saint Joan," urges all students and townspeople who are interested in taking part in any phase of the production to attend tryouts. Scripts of the play are available now in the reserve room of the library to anyone who wishes to study them before tryouts. "Saint Joan" is to be presented on October 29, 30, 31 and November 1.

Tells Story
"Saint Joan" tells the story of Joan of Arc, burnt at the stake for heresy, witchcraft, and sorcery in 1431, but who was canonized in 1920. It is the story of a girl in her teens, a country girl, who became the most notable warrior saint in the Christian calendar.

University Will Be Host For Conference On UN

Leading Diplomats Plan Meeting Here Opening October 1

A three-day conference on the United Nations, with leading diplomats from several countries in attendance, is scheduled for the University from Wednesday, Oct. 1, through Friday, Oct. 3, Lincoln S. H. Kan, North Carolina Director of the Collegiate Council on United Nations, announced today.

Kan said four diplomats had agreed to attend the session, but that they would not be named until a later date.

The purpose of this first annual inter-collegiate conference on the United Nations, according to Kan, is to provide special opportunity for the study of the United Nations through the media of speakers, class lectures with visiting professors and United States State department personnel. "The chief emphasis," he said, "will be on how the students of North Carolina can participate in making the United Nations strong."

Faculty Advisers

Dr. Frank Graham, permanent adviser of the North Carolina CCUN, will act as adviser for the special conference along with Dr. C. B. Robson, who heads a faculty advisory board.

Special committees announced today for the October conference: Registration, John Van Hecke; Faculty and Forum, Randall McLeod; Foreign Students, Benita Santes and Martha Manning; Reception, Charlie McCrae; Dance, Bob McCune and Harold Kastner; and Publicity, Harry Snowden and Art Milton.

The conference will have extensive radio coverage.

Set Deadline On Registering

The deadline for registering for this fall quarter and for dropping and adding courses has been set by South building officials as 5 o'clock, next Tuesday, September 30. All students who have yet to register must pay the customary fine for late registration to the University cashier and consult their advisers and deans before that time.

Course alterations must also be completed by Tuesday. After that, no subjects can be added or replaced if the student concerned expects degree credit for them. Necessary changes will be made not for failure of the prerequisite course, commuting from a distance, mistakes in the original registration such as conflicts of hours, verified conflicts with self-help work necessary to the student, and last chance at specific requirements for graduation.

However, students will not be permitted to change courses at one hour for the same courses at another hour in an attempt to dodge either professors or hours because of the inevitable chaos of records and class rolls such a procedure would create with 4,200 students preregistered for the fall quarter and approximately 2,800 others accepted since September 22.

DTH Meeting

Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock all persons interested in working on the news staff of the Daily Tar Heel will meet in the DTH office at Graham Memorial with Managing Editor Earl Heffner.

Applicants for staff membership, both new and old, must attend if interested in working on the newspaper.

Campus Club Is "Bigger, Better"

Candlelight Room of Graham Memorial Set To Open Tonight Under Name of Rendezvous

It's all new! Everything about it has changed, bigger, and better. Graham Memorial's new campus club, formerly the Candlelight room, will open this evening.

"We've whitewashed the place clean and turned it upside down," said Don English, erstwhile student manager of the recreation and social center. "The whole room is now in the traditional Carolina color and atmosphere. We want to make the Rendezvous the meeting place for everyone in their spare time."

Music by Gardner

Feature of tomorrow evening's grand opening will be Scotty Gardner's six-piece combo which will play regularly in the Rendezvous. Besides playing for the Y court dances this summer, Gardner and his group have been well-known in Chapel Hill for the past two years at the Terrace View, and with Johnny Satterfield's orchestra.

Opening at 6 o'clock every evening, the Rendezvous will feature recorded music on a juke box, and Gardner's orchestra on special occasions. Depending on student response to the present setup, English announced, the club may open during the afternoons later.

Student Talent

On the entertainment side, student talent will be utilized to the fullest. Specialties and smaller entertainments will be presented regularly by Sound and Fury, the campus musical comedy group.

At the refreshment counter an elaborate selection of sandwiches, pastries, cookies, soft drinks, ice cream, milk shakes, candy, coffee, and hot chocolate may be purchased. Student waiters will give table service to couples.

Participating for the first time in a nationwide network program, the new Communications Center will originate portions of "Our Town Speaks" over WDUK and the American Broadcasting system Saturday afternoon at 1:30.

A regular Saturday ABC feature, the program comes to Durham as a part of the weekend Tobacco Festival. It includes on-the-spot reports from Duke and Carolina and a Durham tobacco warehouse, and speeches by Durham civic leaders.

The Communications center here will originate two portions of the program, an interview with coaches Carl Snavely and Wally Butts before the Carolina-Georgia game, and an authors' round table featuring Betty Smith, Noel Houston, James Street, and Paul Green of the Chapel Hill community.

Civic leaders Frank Pierson of the Durham Chamber of Commerce, Supervisor Luther Check of the Tobacco Market, and W. W. Couch of the Durham Hosiery Mills will represent the area's industry. The 100-voice Duke choir will sing directly from Duke chapel.

Eminent Politicians Invited Here by CPU

Several outstanding political and diplomatic figures have been invited by the Carolina Political Union to speak on the campus this fall. Bill Kemp, CPU chairman announced yesterday.

Josef Winiewicz, Polish ambassador, is expected to speak sometime this fall in conjunction with the International Relations club. Sen. Robert A. Taft, Ohio's presidential candidate, a previous visitor to Chapel Hill, has shown much interest in coming here again this year. The union has contacted other notables, but their appearances are too indefinite to announce as yet.

The union's regular weekly meeting, held every Sunday night in the Grail Room of Graham Memorial at 8 P.M., are open to the public, and topics to be discussed are announced in advance. At present there are several membership vacancies in the union, Kemp announced, urging anyone interested in joining to apply for membership.

A number of polls and forums have been planned for the year to stimulate interest in the major problems of the day.

Officials Explain Naming Procedure Of New Buildings

For the information of freshmen and other new students who have been puzzled by names of buildings on their class tickets such as "Hill X" and "Phillips Y," registration officials have requested that the following explanation be brought to light.

New students have undoubtedly noticed the "new" white frame buildings which dot the campus in the shadows of others which have been standing in some cases for more than a century. The structures are war surplus property brought piece by piece from Camp Forrest, Tennessee, a few months ago, and set up here as temporary relief from crowded classroom conditions.

Since they are not permanent, they were merely named after the campus building close to which they stand. For example, the three frame structures which were erected beside Venable hall are called Venable X, Venable Y, and Venable Z.

R. H. Sherrill, UNC Professor, Dies at Durham

Robert Howard Sherrill, 44, professor in the University School of Commerce since 1929, died in Watts hospital in Durham at 8 o'clock last night following an illness of three months.

He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Elizabeth Frye of Statesville, and a daughter, Patsy, 14. He was the son of the late Rev. and Mrs. R. D. Sherrill.

Following cremation, graveside services will be held at the Chapel Hill cemetery at 10 o'clock today with Rev. E. C. Cooper of the Lutheran Church officiating.

A native of Morganton, Dr. Sherrill attended the University of North Carolina and received his B.S. degree in commerce in 1925. He taught here one year and then went to Columbia University where he received his M.A. degree in 1927. A certified public accountant in this state, he returned to North Carolina and became associated with the firm of Hashen and Sells in Charlotte until 1929 when he came to the University to teach accounting.
