

Late Passing Attack Gives Carolina 14-7 Win Over Georgia

Lincoln Kan Announces Complete CCUN Schedule

Lincoln Kan, director of the Collegiate Council for the United Nations today released the complete schedule of events for the three day salute to the United Nations due to open here on Wednesday, Oct. 1.

The conference will open with registration of the delegates Wednesday afternoon, in Gerrard Hall and conclude with a dance Friday night in the Women's gym which will be open to all.

Highlighting the three days will be speeches by invited foreign diplomats, and other outstanding personalities.

On Wednesday evening, after a dinner at the Carolina Inn, Chancellor House will deliver the opening address in Memorial hall, followed by a speech by Alfred Stirling, Australian minister to the U.S.

Thursday morning various classes will be addressed by Dr. Sidney Smith of Cambridge University, England; Mr. Harding Bancroft of the U.S. State department; Counsellor John Reed, and Mrs. Reed of the New Zealand legation in Washington. Counsellor Reed formerly

United States Ready For Push-Button War

Any push-button war of the future will find the U.S. well grounded in the latest scientific methods of warfare.

President Truman's Scientific Research board in a report issued tonight declared that the government is spending more than 600 million dollars on research. Preparation for war of three dimensions—of the atmosphere, supersonic speed, and of arctic cold is described.

The board reported that vast sums are being spent in the development of guided missiles, jet and rocket aircraft, atomic weapons, agents of poison and bacteriological warfare, and a host of electronic devices.

Tonight's report, which covers civil as well as military research, lists a total of half a million dollars being spent on military projects alone.

Hannegan Resigns

Washington, Sept. 27—(UP)—Robert E. Hannegan resigned today as chairman of the Democratic National committee because of ill health. Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island was chosen to succeed him. Hannegan probably will retain his post as postmaster general.

Price Hike Is Seen

Washington, Sept. 27—(UP)—The President's committee on foreign aid says the administration must decide quickly whether to hold prices down or see that Europe gets enough food. Help for Europe, the committee says, inevitably will mean higher prices at home.

Coeds Must Attend Gerrard Hall Meet

There will be a meeting of all new girls interested in joining one of the five sororities this afternoon at 2 o'clock in Gerrard hall. Those girls interested, but cannot be there are asked to contact Margaret Jean Taylor at F-3071 by Monday morning.

The five sororities are: Alpha Gamma Delta, Alpha Delta Pi, Delta Delta Delta, Pi Beta Phi, and Chi Omega. Members of the Pan-Hellenic council will be there to explain rushing and the organi-

Playmakers to Meet In Theatre Tonight; Selden Will Speak

Samuel Selden, director of the Carolina Playmakers, will give an illustrated talk, "Adventures in Playmaking," outlining the history of this nationally-known play producing organization at an informal meeting tonight at 8:00 in the Playmaker theatre. Students and townspeople who are interested in working with the Playmakers during their 30th season are cordially invited to attend.

The meeting will be an informal get-together of old and new Playmakers, and emphasis will be placed on the fact that the Carolina Playmakers is not a closed organization and that it is a community theatre which also serves as a laboratory for the department of dramatic art. Persons interested in theatre work are eligible in plays produced by the groups, either as actors or technicians.

Recorded Concert Will Be Given Tonight

A concert of classical recordings, "Music by Candlelight," will be presented this evening in the main lounge of Graham Memorial from 8:30-10:30. The first in a series of classical programs, "Music by Candlelight" will feature records from the collection of over 2,000 recordings and transcriptions owned by the student union.

The following six selections will be played in order as listed: Handel, Water Music Suite; Mozart, Symphony No. 10; Weber, Overture to Der Freischütz; Tschaiowsky, Piano Concerto No. One; Ibert, Escales (Port's of Call); Wagner, Overture to Die Meistersinger.

Carolina Political Union Holds Meet Tonight

The Carolina Political Union will hold its first meeting of the year tonight at 8 o'clock in the Grail room of Graham Memorial. The meeting will be strictly a business session and will not be open to the general public. All CPU members are urged to attend because of the important matters to be discussed.

Swings Into High Gear Student Activities Center Ready to Open Final Drive

The Student Activities center will swing into high gear tomorrow afternoon in a final drive to round up all new students who have not yet gone through the new extra-curricular orientation center. Fifteen campus organizations have recruiting and information tables in the center, which will be open from 2-5 o'clock every afternoon this week.

"Response this far has been pretty good," said SA director Jess Dedmond. "We intend to continue open as long as interest indicates we should, but we want to concentrate on this week."

A count yesterday showed that over 250 new students had been steered into campus organizations through the work of representatives in the center. For the 1600-odd new students, however, its facilities are open to all.

Excellent results have been reported by World Federalists, Sound and Fury, and Yackety Yack, three prominent organizations with tables set up in the lounge. Most important feature of the Center is the permanent file of interest indicator cards, now being compiled by the Graham Memorial staff. These cards, which were filled out by each student going through the fall

Carolina Magazine Feature, Fiction Staffs Plan Meet

Meetings of the feature and fiction writing staff of the Carolina Magazine will be held tomorrow, Monday, in the Magazine office on the second floor of Graham Memorial.

John McDowell, literary editor, invites those interested in short story and poetry writing to meet at three o'clock. If possible authors are asked to bring their latest efforts.

Feature Editor Bookie Jabine will hold a conference for feature writers at four o'clock. Writers are urgently needed for special projects.

It was made known that there are many openings left in the various departments of the Magazine. Office hours for the Carolina Magazine last from two to five o'clock any weekday afternoon.

Revive Interest

Formation of the Center came through the necessity for a revitalization of student interest in all extra-curricular activities. "We believe there is a great need for developing a stronger interest in student activities on the campus," stated union director Bill Shuford, in a recent letter to campus activities leaders. "We estimate that only 250 to 300 students out of the entire student body of 7,000 have, in

Cox and Weiner Register On Long Aerials by Pupa

Its powerful ground attack stifled for the major portion of three quarters, a fighting band of Carolina gridders took to the air in the final 16 minutes to register two touchdowns and thus gain a thrilling 14-7 triumph over the Bulldogs of Georgia before an opening day, Kenan stadium throng of close to 44,000.

Behind 7-0 with less than a minute remaining in the third quarter, the Tar Heels suddenly caught fire when Walt Pupa tossed a 35-yard aerial to Bob Cox, who made a nifty catch on the Georgia 20 and galloped the remaining distance to paydirt. Cox converted to tie the score.

Then, one quarter later with less than three minutes remaining, Pupa pitched another perfect pass, this time a 25-yard heave to big Art Weiner, who grabbed the pigskin on the Georgia two and proceeded across the goal line with the winning points. Cox again converted and there it was—the Tar Heels had gained revenge for the 20-10 setback suffered in the Sugar Bowl last New Year's Day.

Originally billed as a clash featuring Carolina running power, topped by Charlie Justice, against Georgia air strength, headed by Johnny Rauch, the game's statistics show that the opposite was true. The Bulldogs' hard-charging eight-man line kept the Tar Heel ground gains to a scant net of 39 yards, with Carolina's candidate for All-American honors being throttled throughout most of the tilt. But Charlie also proved his worth in the late surge, slicing off yardage on the ground and through the air, and deceiving the Bulldog defenders on several occasions.

Nevertheless, it was Pupa in the backfield and the entire forward wall that walked off with the lion's share of the honors. Special credit goes to tackle Haywood Fowle, the only player on either team to stay in the entire 60 minutes; tackle Ted Hazelwood, who blocked one of Rauch's punts; guard Sid Varney, who recovered two loose fumbles; and the three pass-snaring flankmen, Cox, Weiner, and Powell. Although it took nearly 20 minutes of play for the Kenan crowd to witness its first touchdown of the season, the Tar Heels came close to providing See GROUND ATTACK, page 3.

Roy Cole with his band of 14 Carolinians will make their fall debut this afternoon in a free concert sponsored by Graham Memorial. Though scheduled to begin in the main lounge at 3 o'clock, the concert will be held outside, weather permitting. Organized 18 months ago on the campus, the group is composed almost entirely of students.

Scalpers Turn Franklin Street Into Jammed Open Black Market

Yesterday was sucker-day for a mass of ticket scalpers who turned Chapel Hill's main business section into a black market rivaling the busiest in Europe.

Evidence of a well-organized syndicate of Carolina students plus an invasion by professional scalpers were ample evidence that big city-style racketeering had moved—at least for a day—into little Chapel Hill.

Local law enforcement officers were taken by surprise as the Franklin street sidewalk became a curb exchange involving hundreds of transactions yesterday morning. When the large-scale public scalping became evident, Police Chief W. T. Sloan ordered his officers to keep the crowds moving and discourage scalping wherever possible. But local officers were more than busy with traffic control, and scalping continued up to game time unmolested. No arrests were made.

Two Orange county sheriff's deputies in plain clothes reported that the busiest scalpers held federal licenses for ticket brokerage.

There were practically as many Georgia red-and-black buttons worn by student scalpers as Carolina, and one Wake Forest student boasted clearing $40 in a single hour.

The Carolina scalpers appeared well-organized, with a supervisor dealing out tickets and change to his salesmen. The scalpers hawked literally fistfuls of seats in all sections as though they were newspapers.

The professional operators—his reporter observed one group of three in continuous operation from early yesterday morning until the starting gun of the game—shouted the offers to buy, sell, or exchange ducats. One member of the group concentrated on buying the others dispersed the wares

DTH Meeting

All persons interested in working on the news staff of the Daily Tar Heel should meet in the DTH office on the second floor of Graham Memorial at 3 o'clock. Applicants for staff membership, both new and old, must send if interested in working on the newspaper this year.
