

Campus Bears Scars Of Vandals' Brushes

Despite all precautions, pre-football game vandalism reared its ugly head this weekend as "NCS," apparently denoting North Carolina State college, appeared in big red letters on the porticos and doors of the Monogram club, on the Police school barracks, and in the quonset hut area.

Eller Comments
Commenting on the painting, student body President Tom Eller stated, "Of course we have no way of knowing whether the acts of vandalism committed on our campus were done by State students, but that is incidental for it is our duty to show students of all colleges and universities that we do not conduct our athletics on that level."

"It is my sincere hope that the students will continue to do credit to our behavior by refraining from any such actions and implications."

To Meet at State
This evening Eller, Jack Folger, Barron Mills, Myrt Sherrard, Bill Tate, Dean Weaver, and others of the University will meet at State with student and administration heads to discuss further preventative measures against such occurrences as took place here last weekend.

Painting of the police school barracks was timed after the graduation of the recent class, leaving the buildings empty. Sidelights on the vandalistic acts was the work several members of the quonset hut set put in to wash the red letters from the walls of their living quarters. Johnny Lambros, Al Pruitt, John Coffey, Glenn Mitchell, and Johnny Ogburn of hut 8 were the paint-scrappers.

Arnold Nash Talk Scheduled Tonight

Dr. Arnold Nash, the prominent theologian who recently joined the faculty as head of the Department of Religion, will speak to the married students and graduates of the Methodist Church tonight at 7 o'clock. His topic will be, "The Absurdity of Christianity."

Kickapoo Joy Juice and All the Trimmings To Engulf Campus on Friday's Dogpatch Day

By Roland Giduz
If Carolina gentlemen, gone Dogpatch for the day, don't like Ole Man Mose's Sadie Hawkins day predictions Friday, they can go down their sorrows in some of Lonesome Polcat's Kickapoo Joy Juice. For starting off Friday festivities at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon, these two carefree characters right out of Li'l Abner, will be in the Y court peddling their respective wares.

Dry Fans Mark Tennessee Tilt

Saturday's Carolina-Tennessee football game here was "as dry as I've ever seen one," Police Chief W. T. Sloan said here Sunday.

Sloan was not referring to the game itself but to the condition of fans in the stadium. "I didn't see a single drunk at the game," the chief reported, "although there must have been one somewhere."

Only one arrest was made Saturday afternoon, and that one not at the game. It was a case of public drunkenness on a down-town street.

Direct Contrast
This was in direct contrast to the total of 14 arrests—eight of which involved students—which were made Friday night and early Saturday morning, on charges of public drunkenness, drunken driving, reckless driving, and speeding. Chief Sloan described Friday night as a "merry-go-round" at some periods, with a continuous parade of incoming arrest.

Halloween vandalism Friday night was reported as slight by City Patrolman Ed King, Chapel Hill pranksters for the most part confined themselves to soaping of windows and parading in costume with little or no damages being reported.

'Hey How U' Days Will Begin Today

"Hey, how U?" the traditional campus greeting, has been turned into a better relations campaign sponsored today and tomorrow by the University club to promote renewal of friendly greetings among students.

Tags bearing "Hey, how U" and a space for the wearer's name will be distributed today by University club representatives in all dormitories, fraternities, and sororities, and also will be handed out in the Y court during today and tomorrow morning.

The University club, made up of representatives of all organizations on the campus, regularly sponsors pep rallies, football caravans, and extra school spirit campaigns such as the "Hey, how U" program beginning today.

Eller Asks Inquiry Into Cancellation Of State Assembly

Branding the State college cancellation of the State Student Legislature as "regrettable," student body President Tom Eller stated yesterday that, "It is my hope that the Debate council will investigate the situation thoroughly and will consider the practicality of sponsoring such a meeting itself under the same terms as last year."

"Student government will be happy to aid the Debate council in any possible way to accomplish this objective," continued Eller. "While there is no question but that State college is acting within its responsibility, a great deal of misunderstanding could have been avoided by their contacting other colleges and universities in the state to get a representative viewpoint on the situation."

Shropshire Comments
In Chapel Hill on business Sunday evening, Don Shropshire, speaker of the house of last year's legislature, stated that "We can't let Helms kick us around." He was speaking of Ira Helms of State, president of the legislature and head of the Legislative council which cancelled this year's assembly. Shropshire, not in school this quarter, will return to his academic work in January.

"I accuse someone of negligence," Shropshire declared, "in not disseminating information on rules of the legislature and the council and on plans being made by the council. If only State was represented, how were delegates at Carolina or any other schools supposed to know what was going on."

Negro Question
Latest information received here from Raleigh was to the effect that the University was not entitled to representation on the Legislative council, and that State, as sponsor of the legislature, controlled the council by itself. After the fight by State delegates in 1945 to prohibit the entrance of Negro schools into the organization, all persons commenting on the dissolution of the legislature have stated that the race question was obviously at the bottom of the decision.

Helms himself, commenting on the reasons for dissolution, said, "The race question does have something to do with it." Eller, Shropshire, and Maurice Braswell, however, have said that the races worked together in perfect harmony and that there was no cause for alarm on that score. Braswell, a former delegate to the legislature, is president of the Debate council here.

Dormitory Counselors Aid In Coed Guidance

The first University of Carolina coeds of 50 years ago got a lot of attention from the men, but it is doubtful if they got as much friendly guidance and counsel from their older sisters as the undergraduate coeds of 1947, which finds approximately 1,000 women students, 110 of them veterans, enrolled at Chapel Hill.

The fathers and mothers of the Carolina coeds of today shouldn't worry too much about whether their daughter is getting enough supervision at the University. The positive answer is that she is.

Dr. Katherine Carmichael, Dean of Women, receives enough letters, however, to indicate that many families do not know that each of the regular undergraduate women's dormitories has a hostess and a graduate counselor and that each incoming coed is assigned a carefully selected undergraduate student counselor, who is responsible for the orientation, adjustment and guidance of the new woman student.

In addition to the dormitory hostesses there are four assistant hostesses and 50 student advisers who are chosen from the seniors and graduate students.

The job of the advisors is to provide a guidance program for the new girls, and they ought to be able to do a good job, for no adviser is assigned more than eight girls and some have only three.

These advisers supplement the individual guidance offered by the deans, religious counselors, personal advisers and doctors. Pictured above are the counselors and chairmen of the advisor groups for each of the coed dormitories.

Middle row: Margaret Ward, Birmingham, Ala., Spencer Dormitory; Camilla Ray, Oxford, Archer House; Anne Hamlin, West Palm Beach, Fla., McIver Dormitory; and Josephine Fishel, Vaughan, Alderman Dormitory.
Bottom row: Jo Benton, Danville, Va., chairman of the entire 50 advisers; Jane Rogers, Chapel Hill, chairman of the Town Girls' group; Rachel Woodley, Columbia, Spencer Dormitory; and Carlotta Houck, Sapphire, Smith Dormitory.

Government Checks Prove Choice Morsel For Hungry Veterans in Quonset Area

By John Stump

That starving Europeans have little on checkless UNC veterans was the news over the week-end from all corners of the Carolina campus. Cigarette haze was much less dense over the Quonset hut areas as the end of an expensive week-end and that last smoke before the checks come in arrived together.

Three typical cases were Richard Veasey, Bill Walker, and Bob Walsh who found themselves up against it after a foodless Sunday that would have done the Luckman committee's hearts good. However, about 6:30, they finally succeeded in borrowing $5 from "generous Jim" Kelly, hut area manager and, joined by this hungry reporter, hit for Lenoir hall on the double.

"It's been a rough day" was Walsh's opinion about 10 minutes later as he wolfed down the last bite of his first meal in 24 hours. Evidence was not lacking from various sources that many others had had it just as hard as Walsh and his buddies.

Campus veterans asked to make meagre funds last over five weeks before receiving their first VA assistance of the current school year have been feeling the pinch for several days past. However, relief had arrived last night according to J. R. Webb local superintendent of mails who announced that almost all of the checks had been delivered yesterday. He explained that a combination of the fact that the local postoffice makes no afternoon deliveries on Saturdays and the failure of the checks to arrive in Chapel Hill until 10:30 Saturday morning was responsible for the delay in local distribution. "Ordinarily we deliver them on the first of the month, but we were just not able to do so this time," he said.

Some few allegedly born under a lucky star had received theirs on Saturday, but generally speaking the week-end was spent on borrowed money if not on borrowed time.

MUSIC RECITALS

Studio recitals will replace the weekly student recital Wednesday afternoon in Hill hall, it was announced yesterday. All students taking applied music should consult their teachers as to time and place of their recitals.

General Assembly Agrees in Voting On War Publicity

Lake Success, Nov. 3—(UP)—The United Nations General assembly tossed aside its differences today in a rare demonstration of agreement to vote unanimously for the resolution that condemns all war propaganda and calls on all members to promote publicity for peace.

In another part of the world organization, however, disagreement still reigns between the United States and Russia which threatens to endanger U.N. plans for Palestine. The American-Soviet disagreement hinges on the questions of just how and when the Holy Land should be partitioned.

Russia has proposed that the U.N. council take over Palestine January 1, divide it into Jewish and Arab states, and grant full independence by the end of 1948.

The United States had suggested that the British pull out of the Holy Land July 1 and that the Arab and Jewish states receive independence at the same time. The American proposal also called for a three-man commission of the General assembly to act solely as advisors to the two states.

The Russian plan submitted today to a U.N. subcommittee on Palestine met with immediate United States criticism. An American delegate warned that the idea of the Security council controlling Palestine is so unsatisfactory to the United States that it might lead to the failure of all partition proposals.

The spokesman said that the small nations would object to giving new duties to the Security council where the veto can be used.

Phi Assembly Aims Parking Situation In Meeting Tonight

Mr. Ed Lanier, Director of Central Records office, will address the Phi assembly tonight at 9 o'clock in the Phi hall, fourth floor New East, when the Chapel Hill traffic problem comes before the debaters.

Opposing the establishment of parking meters and the elimination of overnight parking as proposed by the Board of Alderman, the bill to be introduced favors other solutions to the problem. Among these are a 30 minute parking limit in the business district, an additional traffic officer, rigid enforcement of present traffic laws, and elimination of the U turn in front of the Post Office.

Preceding the debate, the Phi will hold a candlelight ceremony for the initiation of new members into the assembly. New initiates are James Marlin Stanley, Pilot Mountain; Ernest House, Marion; Charles Dixon, Belmont; David Sharpe, Chapel Hill; William Duncan, Narbeth, Pa.; Frank Giraffe, Southington, Conn.; Ruth Nelson Bradley, Forest City; James Browne, Wilmington; Mintie Cantrell, Etowah, Tenn.; Emily Baker, Asheville; Herman Sieber, Hendersonville, and Douglas Carter, Winston-Salem.

UVA To Entertain Alderman at Dance

Continuing their policy of holding open house for the various women's dormitories, the University Veteran's Association will entertain Alderman Dorm tonight at 8:30.

Members of the escort committee, and those desiring to serve on the committee have been asked to meet at the club at 8:15 before leaving for Alderman. The association announced that all veterans, whether members or not are invited to attend.

Atom Scientists Set Program Thursday

A group of nationally prominent atomic scientists from the Oak Ridge and Manhattan projects will conduct a program on this vital subject Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in Gerrard hall. The meeting is being sponsored by the

WSSF Begins Campus Drive

Following Sunday night's Valkyrie Carnivale, the World Student Service fund activity next on the calendar is the Carolina student's date to take a foreign student to dinner, tomorrow at noon.

Candidates Introduced
Nineteen candidates for the title of Miss Payoff were introduced Sunday night at the Valkyrie Carnivale in Memorial hall. Wayne Thompson acted as master of ceremonies, and Roy Cole's orchestra furnished music.

Progress of the candidates will be displayed, throughout the week on a billboard in the Y court, and votes will be sold in the Y lobby and at the Battle of Bands dance Saturday night in Woollen gym.

In the Race
Candidates introduced were Tenn Mason, sponsored by Alderman; Sara Farlow, Alpha Delta Pi; Beckie Holton, Alpha Gamma Delta; Jean Marie Lester, Alpha Tau Omega; Sally Ann Cordon, Archer house; Elizabeth Thomas, CICA; Joan Lucas, Chi Phi; Babs deWitt, Delta Delta Delta.

PHILOSOPHY CLUB
Philosophy students and all persons interested in the subject are invited to attend an organizational meeting of a philosophy club Thursday night, Warren Ashby, instructor in philosophy, announced yesterday. The meeting will be held at 8 o'clock in the Grail room of Graham Memorial.

'Common Glory' Is Subject Of Green Address Tomorrow

Paul Green, resident playwright and Pulitzer Prize winner, will discuss "The Common Glory," his most recent of American symphonic dramas, at a Bull's Head bookshop tea tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Mrs. N. B. Adams, hostess at the teas, made the announcement yesterday.

Dr. Archibald Henderson, of the University mathematics department and a close friend of the playwright since Green began work with the Carolina Playmakers in 1919, will introduce the dramatist.

"The Common Glory" is the third in a series of symphonic dramas depicting historical events in America's progress. The drama opened at Williamsburg, Va., for its first summer run last July and will open each year hereafter. The production follows "The Highland Call" in the line of historical folk dramas which Green has written and hopes to write about the nation's development.

Association of Carolina Scientists and the Carolina Chapter of the Collegiate Council for the United Nations.

Main speaker of the evening will be Prof. Oscar K. Rice, physical chemist and member of the Association of Oak Ridge Scientists and Engineers. Dr. Rice is an advisory board member of the Federation of American Scientists.

The speech will be followed by an open forum at which scientists and physicists will present their individual views on the social significance of atomic energy control. Discussion of atomic security measures promises to be a major highlight of the program. Among those who will attack all phases of the current atomic energy problem will be Dr. Joseph W. Straley, secretary of the Association of North Carolina Scientists; Dr. Nathan Rosen, associate professor of Physics at UNC, who served during the war with the Navy's Atomic Energy project; Dr. Paul E. Shearman, chairman of the physics dept.; Dr. W. A. Bowers, who worked with the Manhattan project at Los Alamos during 1944-46; and Dr. Fred T. Rogers, former head of Physics research at the U. S. Naval Ordnance Plant at Indianapolis.

The Association of Carolina Scientists is strongly cooperating with CCUN's educational program of presenting topics of current interest to the general public, and the program promises to be of unusual interest.

Election Petitions Close Noon Today

Nomination petitions for freshman and junior class officers must be filed by noon today to qualify candidates for the election, according to latest information received from the Board of Elections.

Petitions must be signed by 25 members of the class from which the nominee comes, and in addition must be signed by the person being nominated.

The election will be held next Tuesday, in compliance with the act passed by last Thursday's Student Legislature meeting.

'Common Glory' Is Subject Of Green Address Tomorrow

PAUL GREEN

Mrs. Adams expressed a wish that students arrive early in order to assure themselves of seats. Green's presence at a Bull's Head tea, said Mrs. Adams, always means a capacity crowd. The tea will be held in the staff room next door to the bookshop, on the ground floor of the University library.
