Gals Get Their Chance In Human Race Today

The women get their chance today as member of the "weaker" sex in some 44,000 different celebrations all over the world to run wild in their annual Sadie Hawkins day. The local campus is no exception, and preliminary reports from SH day chairmen Mike Loftus and Chuck Hilty indicate the wimmenfolks will outdo themselves in correcting the long-complained-of 7-1 ratio. To wit: "Menfolks, beware!"

Features of the day include opening festivities in the Y court, at 1 o'clock, the P.U.-F.U. football game at 3, and the Sadie Hawkins day grand barn dance to top off the affair this evening. A half-dozen campus organizations, under the supervision of Graham Memorial, are cooperating in presenting the day-long celebration honoring the homely ex-spinster of Al Capp's nationally famous comic strip, Li'l Abner.

Fate Decided
The fate of several hundred hapless males has already been decided. A fish-bowl drawing, was held yesterday by campus coeds to divide up the "cron" of men who signed the CICA roster in the Y lobby this week. These fish bowl drawings will be called for around 8 o'clock this evening by the coeds fortunate enough to draw their names, and they will be escorted to the Woollen gymnasium barn dance.

Lonesome Polecat and Ole Man Mose start the ball rolling in the Y court at 1 o'clock this afternoon as this dapper duet peddles its re-creative wares of Joy Juice and advice to all comers. At the same time well-practiced hillbillies of the Western North Carolina club will present their version of how square dancing should really be done. Formation of the grand parade through town begins at 1:30 in front of the YMCA. Composed of "floats" (anything from tri-cycles through buses and automobiles) and led by the Deans, Fortescue-Phoebound band, the parade will proceed around to Franklin street through the business section, and down to Fetzter field.

Judges Named

Short Skirts Asked For SH Barn Dance

Yaller shoes, SHORT skirts, and polka dot ties and blouses will be the "rough" order of the night for the final event of the world's most unique celebration of a reversal of the sexes, Sadie Hawkins' day.

The wearing of any sort of Dogpatch - mountaineer costume will be required for admission to the evening's grand barn dance, which begins at 8:30 in Woollen gymnasium, and the Western North Carolina club, dance sponsors, urged students to "let their imaginations run wild" in dreaming up costumes for the affair.

An hour-long show of a dozen-odd surprise acts, directed by Andy Griffith, promises to be one of the top attractions of the night. Numerous campus personalities, "known better for their accomplishments in fields other than entertainment" according to close-mouthed program directors, was to participate in the comic mountaineer extravaganza. Participants permitting, the show will begin at 9:30.

To the wearers of the most authentic costumes and the longest beards will go distinctive prizes. The authentic costume-judging list includes Li'l Abner, Mammy and Pappy Yokum, Hairless Joe, Lonesome Polecat, Daisy Mae, Marryin' Sam, and Ole Man Mose. However, equal awards will also be made to those sporting the best and most unique outfits of any characters out of the Li'l Abner comic strip.

Though the main part of the evening will be devoted to square dancing, to be led by the Western N. C. club, sweet and swing music for round dancing will be played also.

Art Majors Decorate Four Store Windows

Eight art majors, working under the direction of student chairman Joseph Fidler and faculty advisor John Rembert, have decorated four windows in downtown stores depicting student conditions abroad, in connection with the World Student Service fund drive.

James Moon, a special student at the university who has spent several years at Cooper Art Institute, set up a display in the window of Marion's Five and Ten Cent store using principles of modern art to depict foreign students' lack of food.

Mary Neely, Marilyn Blackwell, Mary Moulton and Betty Pierson have depicted in the University Service plant window the bridge of supplies.

University Asks Conference For Guinea Pig Privileges

By Herb Nachman

The University has been offered for experimental purposes to the Southern Association of Colleges and Universities and will be one of the first institutions inspected if the proposal for accrediting southern graduate schools is passed by the association next month.

Dean of the Graduate School, William Pierson, has made the announcement following his return from the annual Conference of Deans of southern graduate schools held in New Orleans for two days last week.

Dean Pierson explained that a proposal for accrediting southern graduate schools was passed by the Conference of Deans and the conference is now awaiting decision of the Southern Association before beginning inspections.

Accrediting will be of a different sort under the proposal than that used presently in the various undergraduate divisions. Schools under application for accreditation will undergo an inspection to determine their relative standards on such matters as faculty, library facilities, laboratory, examinations, student achievements and admission policies.

The schools will be graded, Pierson said, according to departments. "Measurement of institutions will be qualitative rather than quantitative," he said. "Accrediting will be determined by the department system."

Dean Pierson went on to say that if the proposal goes into effect it will have a far reaching effect toward improvement in general graduate work of this region.

Standards of the proposal have been under preparation by the deans for nearly 15 years. Pierson said, and approval of the Commission of Higher Education has already been obtained.

"It only remains now for the Southern Association to approve the standards at their annual meeting next month," he added. The Conference of Deans, is not the accrediting body," he further explained, "they may determine the minimum standards but the final decision must come through the Association."

Ned Reap, Gardiner Orchestras Slated For Battle of Bands

Ned Reap and his Dream Serenaders and Scott Gardiner and his orchestra will provide music for the World Student Service fund's Battle of Bands dance tomorrow night from 8 to 12 in Woollen gym.

Miss Payoff of 1947, selected by student votes from among 20 entrants sponsored by campus organizations, will be crowned during intermission by Wayne Brenneman, chairman of the dance organization committee who is acting as co-chairman for Saturday's dance.

Cup For Decorations
Chuck Voigt, president of the University club, will make the awards for the best Homecoming decorations—a cup for the best sorority or fraternity and one for the best dormitory decorations during intermission. The decorations will be judged at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

Invitations to State college students who will be here for the game to remain for the dance have been extended through the State college Technician.

Ten Cents A Vote
Votes for Miss Payoff may still be registered in the Y lobby today and tomorrow, at ten cents per vote, and at the dance itself until 10 o'clock. All proceeds from the dance and the contest will go to the WSSF drive for relief of foreign students.

To Show Conditions Abroad
Decorations for the dance will consist of lighted posters showing students' conditions abroad. Made by a committee headed by Emily Ogburn they show, the student service center at Kunming, China; ruins of the University of Warsaw campus; coeds pinch-hitting as farmers; and students doing their own laundering and hair cutting.

Emily's committee included Gwen Finley, Mary McGougen, Barbara Dalton, Betty Long, and Ruth McCann.

Di Senate Approves Federal World Group

The Dialectic Senate in its meeting Wednesday night passed a hotly contested bill to resolve the present United Nations General Assembly into a committee to initiate a more powerful World Federal Government.

By an 18 to 6 vote of the Senate members and a 22 to 14 vote of all present including visitors, the measure endorsing a more forceful expedient of world-wide agreement was passed only after actively voiced dissent. After its first reading by Randy McLeod, the bill brought forth considerable debate from the floor.

Edith Knight and Lincoln Kahn, Senators and campus members of the Collegiate Council for United Nations, spoke negatively against such a proposal while Al Lowenstein, Russell Baldwin, and Bill Harding led debate affirmatively.

Most of the speakers thought that the present United Nations was inadequate, but the issue made on the floor was whether the UN should be nursed along from its infancy with any possible improvements or whether another stronger board of World Federation should be established with a more inclusive basic constitution to ward off the impending danger of an atomic bomb war. The final vote came to settle the argument came only at 11:15 o'clock.

Gran Childress, chairman of the Di membership committee, expressed regret that the length of the discussion on the bill necessitated the postponement of ten applications for membership. However, Childress asked that all prospective Senate members be on hand at 9 o'clock next Wednesday evening in the Di hall on the second floor of New East when their applications for admittance will definitely be considered.

Radio Station Plans Set for Chapel Hill

Application for the building of a radio station in Chapel Hill was filed last week with the Federal Communications commission, Collier Cobb, Jr., one of the three applicants, said yesterday.

Cobb said that he, Grady Pritchard, and J. B. Johns, all businessmen of the community, placed an application to construct a standard broadcasting station, to operate on a frequency of 1340 kilocycles, a power of 250 watts, with unlimited broadcasting time. As yet there are no definite construction plans or agreed network affiliations. The station may be an independent, Cobb added.

"The permission request must be granted by the Washington commission before any definite plans can be laid," he said. "Federal action on the request should be completed in a few months, if no complications arise over the desired frequency."

University Services Recognized by Navy

A bronze plaque, honoring the University's war-time services, will be presented to the school by the Navy Department in Kenan stadium tomorrow, Chancellor Robert B. House said today.

The formal presentation will be made before the kickoff of the State-Carolina game by Capt. D. W. Loomis, professor of Naval Science at the NROTC here, and will be accepted by the University by Chancellor House.

Departmental Award
The bronze tablet is a departmental award made with Congressional authorization, and is signed by former Secretary of Navy James Forrestal. The raised inscription reads that "this mark of commendation is awarded to the University of North Carolina for its effective cooperation in training naval personnel during World War II."

Then follows the list of naval training units attached to the University during the war, for which this award is being made: The Naval Reserve Officer's Training Corps, the Naval V-12 Unit, the V-12 Medical Unit, the U.S.N. Pre-flight school, and the Preflight school for the Free French Forces.

A proposed exchange of university cheer leaders with those of State college for the pep rallies to be held at the two schools tonight failed to materialize late yesterday as head cheerleader Myrt Sherard conferred with State cheerleaders in Raleigh.

The intended swap, which was proposed at a conference of University and State college leaders Tuesday night, was the latest effort to foster good will between the two institutions.

Both State and University representatives pledged full support at the Tuesday night meeting to a program designed to prevent vandalism on the campuses of the two colleges.

State Difficulty
Members of the state delegation pointed out that it will be quite difficult for them to inform the complete student body and warn all students against property destruction and practices which create ill feeling between the two schools, at such a late date. They stated that they would be greatly handicapped because their campus publication does not come out until Friday night, virtually too late to combat any possible vandalism.

Punitive Measures
Jennings Teal, president of the State student government, promised that he would endeavor to get the student government court to expel any student from State who was guilty of an act of vandalism. He said that although their constitution does not specifically deal with vandalistic practices, they are able to prosecute a student in any manner the court sees fit for "ungentlemanly" behavior.

University delegates to this good-will gathering included Tom Eller, student body president, Bob Broughton, chairman of the Student Council, and Barron Mills, Daily Tar Heel editor. Faculty representatives were Dean of Men Fred Weaver and Claude Teague, business manager of the University.

Phillips Russell To Speak Tonight

"What Henry Wallace has to offer to North Carolina" will be the topic for discussion when the Wallace Democrats club meets tonight at 7 o'clock in the Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial.

Presenting his viewpoint on the subject Phillips Russell, University professor of journalism, will lead off the discussion before the floor is opened to the audience for a general discussion.

"We are now completely organized and ready to go to work on the important job of bringing Wallace's views before the people of the state. We will welcome the presence of everyone who is interested tonight," said chairman Martin Kneilton.

Freshmen Hall, Lineberger, Stamey, Yates Awarded Braswell Scholarships Worth $200

The four Braswell scholarships for freshmen have been awarded this year to Charles Winston Hall of Sanford; Adrian Smith Lineberger, Jr., Chapel Hill; Claude Richard Stamey, Canton; and Herbert Seawell Yates, Rockingham.

Valued at $200 each, these scholarships are given annually to four entering freshmen on the basis of scholastic ability, financial need, well-rounded personality, and promise of future distinction. The scholarships are provided by a fund of $21,000 set up in 1938 by an anonymous donor as an endowment in memory of Dr. Frank R. Braswell of Rocky Mount, class of 1888.

The winners this year were all prominent graduates of State high schools last June.

Graduating from the Deep River high school of Sanford, Charles Winston Hall ranked first in his class of 12, edited the school paper, served as secretary of the senior class, and was a member of the Beta club. Hall made all A's on his high school work as did Claude Richard Stamey in the Bethel high school in Waynesville. Stamey, who now lives in Canton was also active on the basketball and boxing teams, in debating and publications, and as president of the Beta club, graduating first in a class of 46.

Local Boy
Valedictorian in a class of 49 here in the Chapel Hill high school, Adrian Smith Lineberger, Jr., lists among his honors duty on the football, basketball, and baseball teams; in school plays and the University band; as sports editor of Hilllife and president of both the Hi-Y and the student council; and at Boys State. Yates in the Rockingham high school participated in debating, music, student government, the Beta club, and business management of the school paper.

Alternates for these scholarships were Carl Rudolph Spell, Roseboro; Billy Raymond Hale, Thomasville; Larry Dew Hooks, Fremont; and Jere Leonard Morton, Raleigh. Last year's winners were Wilson M. Lee, Benson; Charles Alva Pryce, Rockingham; Hubert Donald Robertson, Asheville; and Richard Isley Walker, Winston-Salem.
