Monroe Band Signed By Grail To Feature Duke Week Program

By Raney Stanford

Vaughan Monroe and his orchestra will furnish the music for the Grail dances during the Duke-Carolina weekend, officers of Order announced yesterday. Tickets for the two night dances and the afternoon concert will go on sale Tuesday morning.

Monroe's weekly radio show, the Camel Caravan, will be presented from the floor of Woollen Gym during the Saturday night affair, Grail heads said. The entire cast of the show, including the daffy Colonel Stoopnagle, will be on hand to put on a broadcast that will be carried on nation-wide hook-up.

New Sales System
Grail members will sell the bids for these affairs by a newly-developed system, which is hoped will insure ample opportunity for the general student body to obtain ducats.

Each member of the society will receive 15 sets of tickets to be individually disposed, and the remainder will be dispensed to the student body during three selling periods in the Y building: Tuesday from 8 to 10 in the morning, 1 to 3 in the afternoon, and on Wednesday from 10 to 1 o'clock.

The total tickets to be disposed at these sales will be divided evenly into three lots. There will be a maximum house of 2,000 couples for each dance, and 1800 tickets will be printed for the afternoon concert.

Individual Bids
The types of bids are obtainable for the evening dances, singles, or a bid to cover both affairs.

The admission charge will be $3 per couple for a single, and $6 for both nights.

Ducats for the concert, which will be held Friday afternoon, from 4:30 to 6 in Memorial hall, will sell for

Battle of Bands To Star Award Of Payoff Title

Awards to Miss Payoff of 1947 and to the fraternity and dormitory exhibiting the best Homecoming decorations will be made during intermission at tonight's Battle of Bands dance, sponsored by the campus World Student Service fund drive.

Ned Reap and Scott Gardiner will provide music for the informal dance from 8 to 12 in Woollen gym, and proceeds will go to the WSSF drive for relief of foreign students, which closes with tonight's dance.

Wayne Brennegan, chairman of the Dance Organization committee and co-chairman of tonight's dance, will crown Miss Payoff, selected by student vote from among 20 entrants sponsored by campus organizations. Camilla Ray is co-chairman of the dance with Brennegan.

Balloting for Miss Payoff will continue today in the Y lobby until after the football game, and at the dance until 10 o'clock. Each vote costs ten cents, with all proceeds going to the YSSF drive.

Awards for the best Homecoming displays will be made by Chuck Voigt, president of the University club, on the basis of the judging to be done at 10 o'clock this morning.

The club is presenting a new cup this year for dormitory displays. The cup was purchased with the dollar entrance fee required of all participating organizations.

Tickets for the dance may be secured at the door. Price is one dollar, which will buy ten votes for any of the Miss Payoff candidates.

REGISTRATION

The appointment books for pre-registration have been moved from Memorial hall to the information desk in South building and will be open there through Saturday noon.

Homecoming Sees UNC-State Renewal

UNC-Backed State Student Legislature Seen

By BILL SEXTON

A state student legislature under Carolina sponsorship moved nearer reality yesterday with the announcement that Secretary of State Thad Eure was "sympathetic" to its revival.

Al Lowenstein, chairman of the UNC delegation at last year's legislature, said yesterday that he had conferred with the Secretary of State and found him in favor of a revival "under responsible sponsorship."

Asks Faculty Part

Lowenstein said Eure, a prominent figure at the previous sessions of the student legislature, had recommended that "adequate faculty representation" be included in any plans for reorganization. He said the Secretary of State indicated that under "responsible sponsorship" he could see no reason why there should not be a student legislature this year.

It was learned last night that the capitol building in Raleigh apparently has not been reserved for any of several week-ends over which the legislature might meet before Christmas.

The chairman of the 1946 UNC delegation said he had been notified of support at Women's college in case Chapel Hill undertakes to revive the legislature, which was dissolved only last week by State college's legislative council. He indicated that "it seems possible the move may find support during the week even at State college itself."

Debate Council Meets

Meanwhile, the Debate council was scheduled to meet last night to discuss the possibility of assuming responsibility for the revived legislature. Maurice Braswell, council president, has already indicated his desire to push reorganization of the legislature, which has met annually since 1936 under sponsorship of State college.

As a result "mostly" of the admission of Negro delegates to last year's session, the State Student Legislative council, sponsoring group at State, dissolved itself and cancelled the 1947 session, scheduled to meet in Raleigh, November 28-29.

The charge that an "organization in New York" had inspired the resolution inviting representatives from the colored colleges was reported as one of the reasons behind the dissolution. Lowenstein said, yesterday he knew of "no one in Raleigh who seriously thought that any 'New York organization' had anything to do with the resolution, unless it be an imaginative or news-hungry reporter."

Unpaid Tickets May Be Costly

Students failing to pay parking ticket fees may find themselves in court at considerable expense in time and money, Chief of Police W. T. Sloan warned yesterday.

Sloan said that city police are now checking unpaid tickets against state and university auto registration lists, and that warrants would be issued shortly for delinquent parkers.

Court costs for parking cases tried before Recorder H. A. Whitfield total $8.30, and an additional fine may be imposed. Only $1 is charged for first offenders who appear promptly at the city traffic bureau in Town Hall.

In cases where warrants are issued for parking violations, $25 bond will be required pending trial in the Tuesday sessions of Chapel Hill Recorder's court, Sloan warned.

THE PLANE THAT HUGHES BUZZ continued to dominate the Capitol scene yesterday as the Washington hearing reopened with testimony by Major General Bennett Myers. The Army Air Force material chief reported that the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt and his top adviser, Harry Hopkins, helped Hughes get a photo plane contract which had been turned down by many Army air officers. Small Rally Shows Best Spirit As Yet

In a short-manned but very spirited pep rally last night in Memorial hall, students heard last year's grid co-captain Ralph Strayhorn urge no retaliation on State college for the sign-painting spree several members of that student body apparently went on early this week when the red letters "NCS" appeared on several buildings on this campus.

The pep rally followed a torchlight parade through the downtown district and ended up in Memorial hall.

Head cheerleader Myrt Sherard said after last night's rally, "There weren't many people there, I must admit, but the ones that were present had the best spirit that I've heard at Carolina in a long time."

Steering Committee Appointed To Help Unify Class of 1948

By JANE MEARS

As a step toward unifying the Senior class, a steering committee representing dormitories, fraternities, and sororities has been organized under direction of the class officers, Senior President Benson McCutcheon announced yesterday.

McCutcheon, Vice-President Bill Tate, Secretary Annie Ben Beale, and Treasurer Bill Blythe met with the committee Thursday for discussion of Senior Week and general class objectives. Another meeting has been called for November 13 to study the financial status of the class of '48.

Promotion of inter-class spirit and activities planning will be main purposes of the 40-member group, McCutcheon declared. He said he hopes veterans who have already completed undergraduate work would give their wholehearted allegiance to the present senior group.

At a time in the near future, members of the committee plan to contact each individual senior to discuss ideas for senior social functions.

Leaders Spike Lenoir Sunday Closing Plans

University dining hall authorities announced yesterday there will be no Sunday closing of Lenoir dining hall, and the Carolina Inn cafeteria, which shut last Monday, will not continue the closure.

Plans had been under consideration to close the University eating establishments for one day a week following the football season, dining hall heads admitted. But all suggested schemes containing any complete shut-down were spiked by the University administration.

"So we will be open at all times," L. B. Rogerson University supervisor of the dining halls, said. "The amount of service provided may be cut down to fit the lesser number of students who eat on campus over the week-end, but the food lines will be serving seven days a week."

Rogerson explained the closing question had arisen over ways and means to cut down on the operating costs of the eating places. He pointed out the average number of meals served in the Lenoir cafeterias which ranges from 6,500 to 7,000 during the week, drops to 2,000 over Saturday and Sunday. And, as the volume of food sold determines the retail prices, operating expenses rise sharply over intake on the comparatively barren week-ends. So with the cost of food rising almost daily, the dining hall authorities said they were continually seeking methods to cut down on student meal expenses.

World Bank Names Chief Of Research

H. W. Straley, III, of Chapel Hill, a University graduate and former faculty member, has been named to head research in geology, geophysics, and mining for the International Bank of Reconstruction and Development (World Bank).

Since the termination of hostilities, Straley has been in the District of Columbia, practicing his profession as consultant in exploration and valuation of fuels and minerals, specializing in Appalachian, coastal plain, and Caribbean areas.

Tar Heels Favored Over Raleigh Club In Conference Tilt

By Dick Jenrette

Carolina's Tar Heels and N. C. State's Wolfpack resume their old football rivalry in Kenan stadium at 2 o'clock this afternoon in a Big Four and Southern conference headliner that is expected to attract a Homecoming day crowd of nearly 40,000.

The meeting between the two brother institutions in Raleigh and Chapel Hill will be the first since the series was discontinued in 1943 by officials of the greater University of North Carolina. The Tar Heels won that game by a 27-13 score over a civilian-manned State club that had to compete against the Navy V-12 powered Tar Heel outfit.

The fact that the war had stripped the Raleigh school of its football talent in addition to a very heated rivalry between the two student bodies brought about the discontinuation of the series.

When the Tar Heels marched through a successful season to the Sugar Bowl last year and State earned a bid to the Gator Bowl, North Carolina's sports fans figured they deserved to see the two teams battle in the home state, and the University officials complied with the popular demand.

Tar Heels Favored

For the 1947 game, Carolina has been installed as the favorite by a margin of two touchdowns, but long time Tar Heel supporters recall that in the past, State has always been able to turn in a creditable and determined game against Carolina no matter what the records of the two teams were prior to the game.

State and Carolina have met but one mutual opponent. Both played Florida, with Carolina winning by 35-7 and State losing a 7-6 upset to the Gators. This game is the main basis on which the Tar Heels rate as the favored team today.

Coach Beattie Feathers' Wolfpack has a 3-2 won-lost mark to date, with a rugged defense being chiefly responsible for wins over Davidson, Clemson, and Chattanooga. All the Raleigh boys' victories came on shutouts. Besides the loss to Florida, the

Lawn Displays Will Be Judged By Faculty Board

Bob Plumb, head of the University club homecoming display program, announced yesterday that all dormitory, fraternity, and sorority lawn displays celebrating homecoming weekend will be judged between approximately 10 and 11 o'clock this morning.

The judges of the displays will be Dr. J. Carlyle Sitterben, former head of the Economics department of the University; Col. F. Carlyle Shepard, of the Veterans administration; and Dean M. A. Hill, in the General college.

Chuck Voigt, president of the University club, will award two cups tonight at the WSSF ball when the winners of the display contest are announced.

One cup will be given to the best dormitory display shown on campus and the other cup will go to the fraternity or sorority which creates the homecoming attraction judged best.

WSSF to Make Final Effort to Achieve $2,500 Collection for Student Relief

By SALLY WOODHULL

With more than $2,500 already collected in cash and pledges, World Student Service fund today begins its final effort to collect money for relief of students abroad.

Goal of American colleges and universities for WSSF this year is $1,000,000, as endorsed by the National Student Association convention in Madison, Wisconsin this summer.

Because American students are almost the least hit by war devastation, they are being called upon to make the largest contribution to this world-wide project for relief. Students and professors of 18 other countries also contribute to World Student Relief, of which WSSF is the American division.

Paige Harris and Pat Caruthers, co-chairman of solicitors for the campus drive, have urged that all dormitory and fraternity or sorority solicitors turn in complete reports by this morning at 11 o'clock. The WSSF office in the Y building will be open from 10 to 11 to receive reports.

Students may either contribute the whole amount of their donation now, or they may spread their pledge out over a four month period until February according to Mrs. Betty Rose Dowden, YWCA secretary. This arrangement was made in an effort to bring home to students that this is a long range plan for relief, and that needs of foreign students will increase during the winter Mrs. Dowden said.

Pledge Collecting

The statistical committee of which Tag Montague and Emily Von Borries are co-chairmen, will be in charge of collecting pledges on December 7, January 7, and February 7. They have also been in charge of all money collected this week, both through personal solicitation and through the Miss Payoff votes.

Members of the committee are Nancy Walker, Scotty Venable, Gray Simpson, Marshall Spears, Rachel Woodley, and Doris Beasley.

Margaret Jean Taylor, Sue Everett, Herman Baker and Johnny Clappitt are in charge of soliciting organizations. Pledges have so far been made by Coed Senate for $300; Wesley foundation, $250, and the Episcopal students, $200.

Wednesday's "Take a Foreign Student to Dinner," sponsored by the Baptist Student union's social actions committee, netted more than $300 for the fund. Don Broad was in charge.

Sam Magill and Mimi Massey, co-chairmen of the drive, have urged students to "bring Carolina through with flying colors in this test of our awareness of our responsibilities as alert, intelligent students."
