

NCEA Head Charged Of Misappropriation In Teachers' Payrolls

Lenoir, November 24 (UP)—R. L. Fritz, Jr., of Hudson, president of the North Carolina Education Association, was indicted this afternoon by a grand jury at Lenoir on charges of false pretense in connection with juggling state money and padding teachers' payrolls in the Hudson schools.

The trial date has not been set, but Fritz may be brought to trial before a jury at the end of this term at court. Fritz was indicted after the grand jury had examined only four witnesses. His father, President R. L. Fritz, Sr., of Lenoir-Rhyne college, also testified before the Caldwell county grand jury.

The indictment is the latest development in the stormy case of the Hudson principal. Fritz was elected president of the teachers' organization last year after waging a losing fight for the so-called South Piedmont plan of teacher pay raises.

Then a special audit revealed his unusual bookkeeping methods, and the State Board of Education revoked his teaching license. The county school board fired him as principal of the Hudson school, but he refused to give up his job as president of the North Carolina Education Association.

Meanwhile, leaders of the North Carolina Education Association have decided to wait until the trial is over before taking any action to get a new president. Vice-President Amos C. Dawson of Southern Pines has been declared acting president.

Yugoslavs Hold GI's Along Trieste Border

Trieste, November 24 (UP). Army headquarters in Trieste identify the six American G.I.'s seized by Yugoslavia troops today on the Trieste-Yugoslavia border only as a staff sergeant and men of the 88th Cavalry Reconnaissance troop, in accordance with a new War Department ruling that the names and addresses of such captured men cannot be released for 48 hours.

The Americans were on regular patrol between two United States outposts that face Yugoslavia in the extreme northern corner of Trieste. When the men failed to report to their base, a search party was sent out along the border and was informed that the soldiers had been grabbed by the Yugoslavs. Asking for the return of the six men at once, the Army was told that the case would have to go through higher headquarters.

The program, arranged through the Norwegian Information services in the United States, featured a discussion between three Norwegian students now studying in this country and three American students who attended the University of Oslo last summer. The group discussed education and life in America and Norway.

The special program was a feature of the non-profit, non-commercial World Broadcasting foundation's overall campaign to promote international understanding and friendship through enlightenment.

Jack Kennedy Wins Grid Poll; Cassie Byrnes Places Second

Nine weeks of following the national grid scene showed results last week as the general run of entrants in the Graham Memorial football contest went up to about a .650 average. Winner was Jack Kennedy of 2416 Huron street, Durham, who slipped up only on Harvard's loss to Yale and Kansas' win from Missouri.

Runner-up in the contest, which for a change came out without any tie games, was coed Cassie Byrnes, 211 Spencer, who missed three prognostications. Six sharpies, headed by GI wife Elizabeth Fortune, turned in entries with only four wrong guesses. The others were: Randy MacLeod, J. W. Duke, James M. Gwynn, Jack Stratford, and Fred D. Brammer.

Entry blanks for this week's final contest of the year, were distributed yesterday and must be turned in by Thursday noon. Early deadline has been set this

* The Philanthropic Assembly will discuss Wage and Price Controls tonight at 9 o'clock, debating a bill introduced by John Giles. The bill favors the system of "selective rationing" placed by President Truman before the current special session of Congress.

"This bill," John Giles, Phi speaker announced, "is vital to the American people, as no other methods can safely be counted upon to protect our people from the dangers of excessively high prices and ruinous inflation."

"It should be noted that the proposed ceilings are not contemplated for delicacies or luxurious or plentiful clothing items," Giles continued, "but only for a 'selected group' of items in short supply which basically affect the cost of living or industrial production and, therefore, such a system of rationing, as outlined by President Truman, is essentially a short run insurance policy against the impairment of our prosperity, or future development."

Opposition to the bill, which is expected to initiate heated discussion, will be led by Charlie Britt and John Webb while Ruth Bradley, Bill Duncan, and Wimp Erwin will speak on the affirmative side.

Reserved Seat Ducats For Ibsen Production To Go On Sale Today

The sale of reserved seat tickets for the Carolina Playmaker showings of Henrik Ibsen's play, "An Enemy of the People," will start today, according to John W. Parker, business manager. The tickets will be available at Ledbetter Pickard's on Franklin street, or at the Playmaker business office in Swain hall.

Season ticket holders are urged to make reservations by mail, telephone, or in person as soon as possible so as to insure their choice of seats on the night they desire to see the play. Unclaimed reservations will not be held at the box office later than 8:15 on nights of performance.

"An Enemy of the People," the second major production of the Playmaker season, will be staged on December 3, 4, 5, and 6, with curtain time set at 8:30 in the Playmaker theatre.

"We would like to remind students," Parker said, "that tickets may be reserved in advance and paid for on the night of performance."

This translation is one of eleven Ibsen plays prepared in a modern American staging style by Kai Jurgensen of the drama department, and by Robert Schenckan of the radio department. Several of their Ibsen plays are to be given tests in other university theaters, but this production will be the first of the eleven to be presented to the public. A book of their Ibsen translations is to be published soon by Henry Holt company.

"An Enemy of the People" tells the story of Dr. Stockman, health officer for a small resort town in Norway, in his struggle against corrupt city officials, including his brother, when he tries to expose the danger in the new water system. It is a powerful story probing the dangers of prejudice, propaganda, and mass hysteria.

The production is being directed by Jurgensen, who, in addition to being one of the translators, is an assistant director of the Playmakers.

Laboratory Players Hold Over 'Importance of Being Earnest'

Shakespeare Exhibit Is Placed in Library

An exhibit on Shakespeare, including rare editions of his work and research on it, has been set up in the main lobby of the library by Olan V. Cook, assistant librarian.

Included in the exhibit is an original second folio, a very rare book, valued at more than $1,000. It was presented to the library by UNC alumnus William A. Whitaker of New York city on May 2, 1947.

A copy of "Essays of Shakespeare," by Dr. George Coffin Taylor, Kenan professor of English, and newspaper and magazine publicity on this work is also included, under the title, "Products of Important Research Done at UNC."

Much of the material used is taken from the Childers collection for the study of English literature, including a bust of Shakespeare presented by James Saxon Childers, and several facsimiles of folios and quartos.

* Having hung out the SRO signs for their past two nights, performances, the Laboratory theater presentation of the recent Broadway play "The Importance of Being Earnest" will be held over tonight for a third showing. The three-act comedy by Oscar Wilde will begin at 8:30 in the main lounge of Graham Memorial.

Nearly a hundred were turned away from last night's showing.

"Earnest" opened on Broadway last March and played for three months to packed houses. The show was brought to New York by John Gieguld after a successful run in London. In New York it was directed by Gieguld, who also played the title role of "Earnest." David Samples plays "Earnest" tonight. Margaret Rutherford, who starred in the movie comedy Blythe Spirit took the female lead role of Lady Bracknell in the Broadway playing and Katherine Covington plays that part in the Lab Theatre presentation.

Described by its late author Oscar Wilde as "a trivial comedy for serious people," "The Importance of Being Earnest" is, in a nutshell, a comedy of manners. The action takes place in England around 1895 and is woven around the aristocratic society of that period.

Show director Buddy Westover summed up the plot, explaining it concerns a young gallant who is unable to convince his friends his name is really Earnest—hence the pun within the title. In the end he proves his name to be legitimately Earnest.

"The true comedy in the play comes in the social patter and gossip over teacups," said Westover. "It is in fact a sophisticated and quite stylized comedy."

Westover also expressed his thanks to the Carolina Playmakers staff and the 16 members of the Laboratory Theatre company.

Raleigh Club

The Raleigh-Carolina club will meet at 7:45 tonight in the Pi Kappa Alpha house. At that time important business will be discussed concerning final preparations for the annual Christmas dance to be staged again in the Capital City. New officers will also be elected at this meeting.

(Special To The Daily Tar Heel)
East Lansing, Mich. Nov. 24 — Jack Milne, wearing the light blue of the University of North Carolina, today breezed home in first place over 200 competitors from 33 schools to win the National Collegiate cross country championship.

Milne, who was third in the IC4A run last week, thus became the first Tar Heel to ever win a national championship in any sport. Although there was some six inches of snow on the ground and the weather was close to freezing, the Carolina lad took the lead early and held on to be clocked in 20:40.1.

Horace Ashenfelter of Penn State was second, some five seconds behind. Quentin Brelsford of Ohio Wesleyan, last year's winner was in third place. Jerry Thompson of Texas was fourth, Bob Karnes of Kansas held the fifth spot and Gerry Karver of Penn State was sixth.

Penn State captured the team honors with 60 points and Syracuse placed second with 72. Drake university, last year's winner, was third. Milne, a junior from Toms River, N. J., was Carolina's only representative at the meet. He is expected back in Chapel Hill early Tuesday morning.

The campus drive for contributions to the Friendship Train has netted $361.81, Larry Queen, chairman of the fund-raising drive at the University announced yesterday.

A planned appeal to the audience at the Duke-Carolina game Saturday by Myrt Sherrard fell through, because the public address system at Duke Stadium was in use during half-time exercises.

The committee plans to close the drive today at 3 o'clock.

JACK MILNE

for second place in the Penn Relays last year.

Milne entered the University in 1940 and after an exceptionally fine freshman year in which he sent many yearling records flying, he enlisted in the Army Air Corps where he spent five and a half years. He was discharged in time to compete during the 1946 cross country season.

Housing, prices, and expansion of membership are among the items to be discussed at the meeting of the Chapel Hill chapter of the American Veterans committee, to be held at the Presbyterian church at 7:30 this evening.

Biggest subject on the evening's agenda is the national housing - for - veterans rally scheduled for January in Washington. Veterans' groups from all over the nation will meet in the capitol under the sponsorship of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., to secure passage of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill to provide more adequate housing for veterans. The Chapel Hill AVC chapter is now considering plans for sending delegates.

Also before the group will be a request for advice and support of the Durham AVC chapter, which is commencing a new membership drive. The Durham chapter has sought information from Chapel Hill about how it can best expand the scope of its operation in connection with its current drive.

The Chapel Hill chapter will hear a report on last Thursday's campus price control rally.
