The proud old battlewagon "New Mexico" passes under a railroad bridge in Newark Bay on her way to be scrapped, as one of the city's fireboats which had been expected to contest the huge ship's docking does a turnabout and hails the "Mighty Queen." Newark's Mayor Vincent Murphy and Commissioner John Keenan are waving greetings as the ship slowly passes by. (International) where they will be used for Saturday's Carolina-Virginia game, is taking place.

These seats, property of the University Athletic association, were used at Duke stadium last week and helped accommodate the recordbreaking crowd of 56,500.

R. L. Hutchins, Athletic association foreman, supervised the work of transferring the bleachers to and from Duke stadium, and has been highly commended for the efficient way in which the job has been done.

Indications point to a crowd of 35,000 or more attending the Carolina-Virginia game, which means that most of the portable grandstands will be in use at the 2 o'clock kickoff. Kenan stadium normally seats only about 24,000.

Molotov Ties Up Opening Session Of Big Four Meet

London, Nov. 25-(UP)-The opening session of the Big Four conference here has been tied up by a dispute over Austria, Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov having flatly turned down a proposal that the Austrian peace treaty be considered before the German question.

Secretary of State George Marshall led the fight to get the Austrian treaty first on the agenda and he was fully supported by the foreign ministers of France and Brit-

Marshall pleaded that Austria was the first country to fall to the Nazis and should receive justice. He warned Molotov that the conference must reach an agreement on something quickly, as he put it, "to reassure the people of the world."

Molotov insisted that the German question is more important than Austria and should come first. If Molotov gets his way, it means that if there is no agreement on Germany-and none is expected-the Austrian question will hang in the air for a long time to come
