

Pictured above is the Men's Glee Club which, combined with the Women's Glee Club, will present the annual Christmas concert under the direction of Paul Young tonight and Sunday night at 8:30 in Hill hall. The Club, which has 160 members, received wide acclaim after the Spring concert and concert tours last year.

Combined Glee Club Concert To Offer Bach, Folk Songs

Virginia Johnson, Rufus Norris, and John Brinegar will be soloists for the Bach cantata, "For Us a Child is Born," to be performed as part of the annual Christmas concert by the combined Men's and Women's Glee clubs Friday and Sunday nights at 8:30 in Hill hall.

Mrs. Johnson, who will have the contralto solo in the cantata, is from Chapel Hill and is an instructor in voice. Norris is also an instructor in the vocal department, and will sing the baritone aria for the cantata. He has done professional work in musical comedy in New York city and on tour, and has been with the Gilbert and Sullivan Opera company.

Brinegar, who will sing the tenor aria, is from Thomasville, and is a senior voice major. He is choir leader for the Baptist church of Carrboro.

Barbara Young, a junior in the voice department, will have the soprano solo in "Rouse Good Folks," to be done by the Women's Glee club. She is from Chapel Hill and appeared last year in the operetta, "Gondolier." "This Ol' Hammer" will be done by the Men's Glee club with Ed Easter as soloist. Active in radio and musical production work in Chapel Hill, Easter is from Lexington, N.C. He had the tenor lead in the opera, "The Bartered Bride" last year and in "Chimes of Normandy" the year before.

Dick Cox, a voice major from Raleigh, will sing the solo for the Men's club's presentation of "I Wonder as I Wander," an Appalachian carol arranged by John Jacob Niles. Also soloing in that number will be John Bridges, graduate student in the dramatics art department from Asheville, who had the lead in "Chimes of Normandy."

All ticket holders must exchange their tickets for reserved seats for either Friday's or Sunday's performance.

Federal Employees Receive Warning Against Groups

Washington, Dec. 4—(UP)—The Justice department issued a blanket warning tonight to federal employees against 78 organizations in the United States.

The department branded the groups as "subversive" and told men and women on government payrolls to beware of joining them.

The list, which includes the Communist party and the Ku Klux Klan, was prepared by Attorney General Tom Clark. It was released by the Civil Service commission in connection with the loyalty investigation of federal workers ordered by President Truman.

Some of the organizations had been included on a previous "subversive" list compiled in 1943. Scores of new names have been added to the list on the basis of recent FBI investigations.

The Attorney General stressed that the Justice department does not consider membership in any of the listed organizations as proof in itself that a government employe is disloyal to the United States, but that membership in such groups would count against any federal employe suspected of disloyalty.

Some of the organizations on the new list are the Civil Rights congress, the Columbians, American Youth for Democracy, the Photo league, and the Nature Friends of America.

Long, Zucker Picked To Fill 1948 Offices Of Dialectic Senate

The Dialectic Senate, Meeting Wednesday in closed executive session until midnight, picked its slate of officers for the next term—a slate re-electing Charles O. Long and John Zucker as Di president and president pro-tempore, respectively.

Long and Zucker have already served in the Senate's two highest positions this past quarter. Their re-election came with a commendation for the work that has been done on renovating the Di hall in New West, reorganizing its reference files, procuring more adequate office furniture, and bringing constructive bills to the floor for discussion in the group's weekly Wednesday night forums open to the public.

John Gaskin was also re-chosen treasurer of the Senate and lauded for his recent clarification of the Senate fiscal records as well as plans he has formulated for future bookkeeping.

New officers elected to other posts of responsibility were as follows: critic, Gran Childress; clerk, Joanne "Mickey" McNutt; sergeant of arms, Noah Edwards; Randy McLeod; and chaplain, debate council representative, Anne Wells.

In earlier business, Charles Brockman was initiated as a new Di Senator. After the Senate voted prior to the elections to send delegates to the forthcoming Institute of International Relations, President Long appointed Edie Knight, Dortch Warriner, and Noah Edwards to represent the Di at the discussion conference to be held on campus this week-end.

WF Will Hold State Parley This Weekend

Students from colleges and high schools all over the State will arrive in Chapel Hill tomorrow to attend the first convention of the Student division of United World Federalists of North Carolina. The Convention will be held in the Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial. Registration will begin at 1 o'clock in the afternoon and the convention will get under way at 2 o'clock.

Albright to Speak
R. Mayne Albright, former executive director of United World Federalists of North Carolina and 1948 candidate for Governor of North Carolina, will be the principal speaker. His topic has not been announced but it will deal with the need for world government and what role the citizens of North Carolina can play in establishing a world government. Mr. Albright will deliver the closing address of the convention at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening. All students and townspeople are invited to hear Mr. Albright.

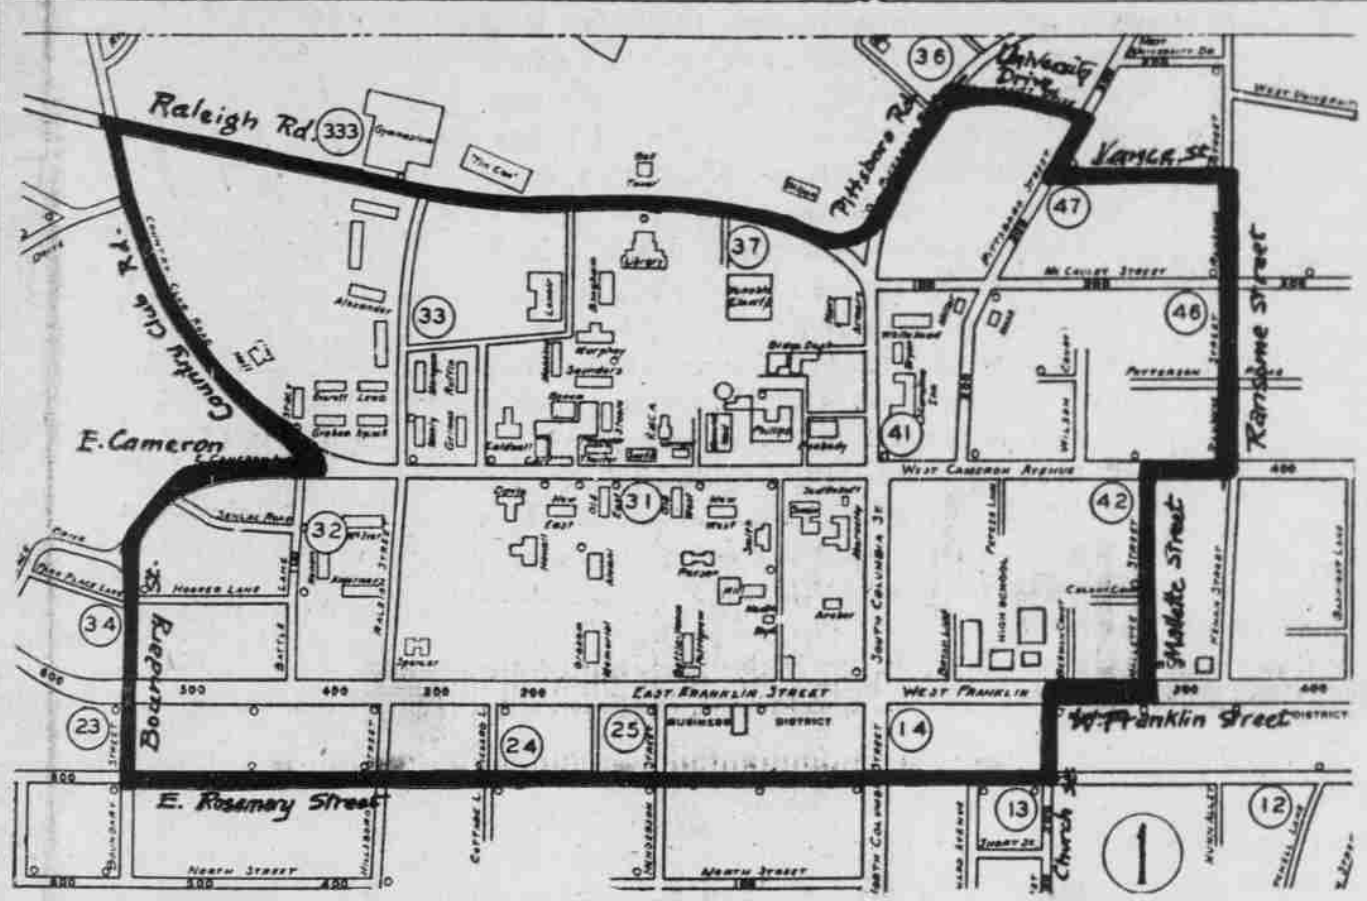

The main purpose of the convention is to adopt by-laws and organize the students of the state in the universal movement for world government. Plans will be formulated for organizing World Federalists chapters in every college and high school in North Carolina in the hope of creating a general awareness among the citizens of North Carolina of the need for strengthening the United Nations into a world government adequate to prevent war.

The schedule of events will be as follows: 1 p.m.—registration will begin; 2 p.m.—by-laws will be adopted and plan of organization will be discussed; 5 p.m.—election of the executive council; 6 p.m.—supper hour; 7 p.m.—closing address by R. Mayne Albright. Russell G. Baldwin, pre-law student at the University, and Ralph Fleming, pre-ministerial student at Duke University, will be in charge of the convention.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

The Daily Tar Heel will suspend publication one week from today, on Friday, December 12, for the duration of the examination periods and the Christmas holidays. Regular publication will be resumed on Tuesday morning, January 6, 1948.

Safety Committee Sets 'Walking Zone' In New Plan To Solve Traffic Problem

THE MAP ABOVE shows the new "walking zone" mapped out by the University Safety committee this week to help relieve parking congestion on the campus. The zone is bounded by East Rosemary Street on the North from Boundary Street to Church Street; by Church, Mallette, and Ransome Streets on the West; Vance Street, University Drive, Pittsboro Road, and Raleigh Road on the South; and by Country Club Road and Boundary Street on the Eastern Edge.

By Raney Stanford
A new plan to end the critical traffic problem on the University campus was adopted by the Safety and Traffic committee this week, with the hope that student obedience and cooperation will bring about the long-awaited results.

Ernest House, student chairman of the committee, pointed out that some 1,400 student drivers or more, daily endeavor to squeeze their cars into around 620 available parking spaces on the campus. The constant confusion brought on by the search for space is the crux of the problem that faces this committee of faculty and student representatives.

"Now, for the purposes of our plan, we have 'squared' off the central part of the town and University," House explained. "There are 683 students owning cars in this zone, and we are asking them to leave their cars at their dormitories, fraternities, or trailer residences, and walk to class."

This "walking zone" is defined by chairman House as a rectangular segment of the city bounded on the North by Rosemary street, on the East by Boundary street and Country Club road, on the South by Raleigh road, University drive and Vance street, and on the West by Ransome and Mallette streets.

With 683 cars out of the campus lots this should leave a slim sufficiency of parking spaces for the 590 vehicles driven by students who live outside the inner zone. The committee also asks these 590 drivers, including 165 out-of-town commuters, to leave their cars in one place each day, and not drive them from class to class as many have done in the past.

House expressed the confidence the committee holds in the practicality of this scheme, but warned that the seriousness of the problem calls for some action, and the committee is prepared to take more forceful measures.

"However, if full cooperation from the students is given to the plan, we believe that it will ease the situation considerably and the committee will not have to take any other action," he concluded.

Other work accomplished at this session of the committee included a recommendation to the University that a traffic light be installed at the corner of Raleigh and Cameron streets. House reported the school's business office is now making arrangements to put the light in place.

Christmas Dance Planned By CICA

At the regular Wednesday night meeting, the Carolina Independent Coed association completed plans for the Christmas dance, which will be held tomorrow night from 9 until 1 o'clock in the Women's gymnasium.

The invitation committee, headed by Marty Hinkle, distributed bids among the members. Any member who has not yet obtained her bid can do so in the CICA room upstairs in the Y from 9 until 1 o'clock today.

Ruth Duncan, personnel advisor to women, gave a short talk in which she expressed her hope that the group would have continued success. Miss Duncan is leaving the University in December and will be replaced by Audrey Branch of Asheville, a University alumnae, who at present is occupying the position of junior buyer for B. Altman and Company, New York.

STUDENT PARTY

The Student Party will meet today at 4:30 in Roland Parker Lounge no. 2. Chairman Long stressed the importance of all candidates and party members being present.

Coeds to Entertain Veterans In New UVA Open House Plan

The University Veterans Association has formulated new plans for their weekly open house, president Johnny Clampitt announced yesterday.

Chi Delta Phi, Literary Club, Adds 10 Members

Ten new members were taken into Chi Delta Phi, national literary sorority on campus, at a candle light ceremony recently held in the Grail Room. New members include Sally Woodhull, Priscella Moore, Virginia Forward, Elizabeth Hazlett, Mary Louise Kelly, Shirley Moore, Joyce Peterson, Elizabeth Savage, Anne Wells, and Elinor Woltz.

The sorority, composed of one per cent of the women's student body, bases its choice of new members on interest and ability in the line of creative writing.

Old members of the sorority are Marcella Harter, Julia Ross, Elinor Craig, and Margaret Goodman.

Commencing with the winter quarter informal open houses will be held following the business meetings. The get-togethers will begin about 8:15 on Tuesday nights and will last until co-ed closing time.

New System

A new system of entertainment was also announced by Clampitt. Instead of having all co-eds who desire attend the parties, the association will invite one group, a sorority or dormitory to put on the party for the boys. The club plans to invite the CICA for their opening program the first week of next quarter.

Entertainment will be provided by the girls and planned in advance. However, Clampitt emphasized that the party is still given by the association and music and refreshments will be provided.

Membership Cards

It was also announced yesterday that veterans must pick up their membership tickets when they register on the 15, 16 and 17. The tickets will be on sale at that time.

Announcement of the new board of governors appointments will probably be made before Tuesday's meeting, Clampitt said. Emile Saleeby, president of the inter-dormitory council will sit on the board as an ex-officio member.

Subsistence Action

Correspondence between several colleges has recently been carried on by the association concerning the determination of the minimum G.I. subsistence necessary for a veteran to maintain his standard of living on campus. Letters have been exchanged between the University of Nebraska, Stetson university, Elon college and several others.

President Clampitt requested that any veterans, whether members of the UVA or not, please submit all ideas or suggestions to him at the ATO house in person or by card.

Dr. Rice to Address Jewish Group Tonight

Melvin Sternberg, a student from Montgomery, Alabama, will conduct the Jewish services Friday evening at 7:30 in Roland Parker lounge.

Guest speaker for the evening will be Professor O.K. Rice of the Chemistry department who will speak on "Political Implications of Atomic power."

Thorez Virtually Advocates Civil War to Strikers

Paris, France, Dec. 5—(UP)—Maurice Thorez, head of the French Communist party, announced a virtual declaration of civil war while speaking before 50,000 striking miners in northern France today. He said, "The working classes and the people of France have chosen battle." He went on, saying that the workers' demands had been pushed aside on the orders of American capital, the government was refusing to honor the workers legitimate claims, menacing them and their leaders, and entering into war with the union organizations. Thorez stated further, "The workers realize the gravity of the hour and they are committed to struggle to defend their bread, their union liberties, the right to strike... and to defend the republic."

Meanwhile two strikers were killed at Valence in another clash with police as 2,000 demonstrators fought French authorities for control of the Valence railroad station.

Further Communist-led violence took place in Marseille and Nice but armed guards and tanks are now patrolling the streets to prevent future outbreaks.

'Dan The Dog' Found In Charleston, Needs Ride Home

By Chuck Hauser
A missing Carolina tradition, a lost Chapel Hill landmark and the one-time constant companion of sleepy 3 o'clock classes has been located after a three and one half month absence.

The name is Bowler Boy's Danny, better known to book-laden Tar Heels as "Dan the Dog." Classroom cohort of students for a great many years, Dan was reported missing from his usual Y court session one morning early in this year's first summer session. The next few days still saw no sign of him, and before long the news of Dan's "death" spread over the campus.

Then one bright day in August Dan turned up at his home on West Cameron avenue. He was given a hearty meal and a big welcome home by Mr. and Mrs. Lee Wiley, owners of the big English setter.

Hit the Road
Dan stuck around for about five days and then hit the road again. He hasn't been seen in Chapel Hill since.

The latest indication of the whereabouts of the disappearing dog points south. The following letter came to the home of the Wileys a few days ago:

Mr. Dan Lee Wiley,
Dear Sir,
One of your big bird dog come to my house a few days ago. He seemed to like me. So I give him something to eat. He been with me every since. Your name is on his collar so I'm writing to this address. Please let me know something. If you want this dog.

Thanks.

Walter Arrant
314 Roughier Ave
North Charleston, S. C.

The letter was scrawled in pencil, the letter painfully inscribed. The ten-year-old setter was able to lose himself very successfully, but he still hung on to his leather collar, upon which a brass plate proclaims him to be "Dan." A second line on the plate lists "Lee Wiley" as his master, and a third states that "Chapel Hill" is his home.

Prodigal Problem

And "Chapel Hill" is where the Wileys want Dan to be. The problem now confronting them is how to get the prodigal from Charleston to here. They have sent out a plea asking students and townspeople who know of anyone coming here from Charleston anytime in the immediate future to get in touch with them.

Dan, the favorite subject and beer-drinking companion of former Daily Tar Heel columnist Jud Kinberg, is wanted at home.

The DTH and the Carolina Magazine are not the only publications, however, in which Dan

BOWLER BOY'S DANNY, better known as "Dan the Dog," has turned up in Charleston, South Carolina, after disappearing from Chapel Hill several months ago. It is claimed that Dan has attended more classes at the University than any other ten students put together. The thoroughbred English setter is the mascot of every football, track, and cross-country team Carolina has had in the past eight years. The hand in the picture belongs to Dale Ranson, cross-country coach.

has received publicity. The well-known canine face has appeared in various papers throughout North Carolina, Virginia, and other states, but Dan hit the jackpot back in 1942 when he received a beautiful spread of several pictures in the rotogravure section of a Sunday edition of the New York Daily News.

The photographs show Dan training with the Navy Pre-Flight school which was located here during the war, sleeping on the drill field, and attending classes in naval science and tactics.

Bowler Boy's Danny, the dog with the national publicity and an acute case of the wanderlust, will soon be heading home again. The entire student body wishes Dan Godspeed!

TARNATION NOTICE

All members of Tarnation business staff will meet at 2:30 this afternoon to have their pictures taken for the yearbook. It is requested that everyone be present on time.

All members of both staffs who wish to attend the Tarnation outgoing party on Saturday, whether dated or not, will please leave their names at the office before 2 o'clock this afternoon.
