Student Party Nominates Gene Blake For Editorship Of Yack

New Projects Planned To Increase Cheering Spirit

Committee Will Work To Have Card Stunts Used At Spring Game

The initials UNC may soon be added to the list now headed by UCLA of colleges and universities in the country renowned for placard-cheerleading stunts, according to a special rally committee now working to promote such plans here.

The Monogram club has backed the project to the extent of $50, voted on Monday night for the purpose of purchasing cards and other cheerleading equipment, and the support of Director of Athletics Bob Fetzer has been shown behind the proposed plans.

Possible Spring Use
The committee discussed the possibility last weekend of having the card stunts ready for use during the spring Blue-and-White football game, if the equipment can be purchased soon enough.

The card seating section, according to committee blueprints, will run between the 35 and 45-yard lines, and will seat 2,185 students. Aisle 17 will, according to plans, be done away with and permanent seats installed to form a double-size section for the placard stunts.

The success of the card displays, the committee believes, will depend on their simplicity. They say the plans will take many hours of preparation and the cooperation of the entire student body.

Five Subcommittees
The committee as a whole has been broken down into five subcommittees to operate more efficiently. The heads of these groups are: Band—Dr. Earl Stocum of the Music department. Art—Bill Harrison. Public relations—DTH Sports Editor Bob Goldwater. Cheering—the incumbent head cheerleader at the time the plans go into effect, and Card instruction—Joe Wratten.

Acting chairman of the committee is Norm Sper, and other persons working with the group are Student Body President Tom Eller, Vice-President Jack Folger, CAA Assistant Jack Fitch, former University club President Mike Morrow, Monogram club President Bill Pritchard, Dick Fuller, Tenn Mason, and Ed Washington.

CITY GIVES TOWING SERVICE
FORT WAYNE, Ind. (UP)—Motorists who get stuck on muddy streets can get towed at the city expense. Mayor Henry E. Branning, Jr., ordered the City Street Department to provide the service.

Dr. Frank Settles Down To University Work

"I wish to express deep appreciation to Comptroller Carmichael, Chancellor House, Chancellor Harrelson, and Chancellor Jackson for carrying on in such a cooperative way, the administration of the University on all three of its fronts," said Dr. Frank Graham, as he settled down to his second full day as the University's president since leaving it on his United Nations mission to Indonesia.

His U. N. business is not quite finished, as he catches a plane to New York this afternoon in order to get him to Lake Success for the final debates on Indonesia tomorrow. Then he explained he thought he could devote practically all his time to his scholastic duties, as he estimated the special advisership to Secretary Marshall and the State Department, given him by President Truman, should occupy only a

Student Group Plans 'Carolina Quarterly' Picks Committeemen

The nucleus of an organization to promote the campus literary quarterly which will contain work of students, faculty and outside writers broke into the publications circle last night, selected the name of "The Carolina Quarterly", elected officers and committee heads and established a framework for operations.

A group of some 50 interested students elected Jonathon Marshall, graduate student in City and Regional planning and former editor of the literary mag at the University of Colorado, as chairman of the Executive committee.

Marshall Recommendations

The meeting, called by Carolina Mag Editor Fred Jacobson with the expressed purpose of "unifying the effort toward getting a literary magazine" acted for the most part on the recommendations of Marshall with slight alterations. One of the strongest measures adopted by the group was to remove the selection of the editorial board from the political limelight.

Without any opposition, the group voted that the editorial staff and business manager of the proposed Quarterly should be selected by a committee composed of: (1) the Publications Board, (2) the incumbent editor and business manager of the Quarterly, (3) two professors from the English department, (4) one professor from each of the Journalism and Commerce departments, and (5) one member at large.

The group voted that the Quarterly should be financed as nearly as possible from sales, advertising and donations. They favored asking the Student Legislature to underwrite the magazine for $2,000 for the first year as working capital.

With almost unanimous consent it was decided that a minimum of 50 percent of the contents of the Quarterly must be student written. The magazine will publish creative writing, critical articles, articles of related fields and subjects of current interest.

Because of lack of time and the absence of "interested individuals" the group did not elect the members of the seven-man Executive committee as proposed. (See QUARTERLY, page 4)

Public Rally
A public rally, scheduled for 8 o'clock Saturday night, will be addressed by Rabbi James W. Wise who served as campaign manager for the Wallace-backed American Labor Party candidate, Isaacson, recently elected to Congress from New York's 10th Congressional district. Another speaker, as yet unannounced, will also address the Wallace rally.

Officers for the Tar Heel Student movement will be elected Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Alumni building. An interfaith religious service at 11 o'clock Sunday morning and a folk song concert, featuring balladeer Pete Seeger, at 4 o'clock will also be featured on Sunday's program.

Blake was endorsed at the 9 o'clock party session held in Roland Parker lounges Monday night.

Although the new candidate has not yet made public his policy, he will announce his plans later. According to Fred Thompson, SP publicity chairman, Blake will emphasize careful spending of student yearbook funds and is interested in seeing more students participate in the work of the Yackety-Yack, thereby enlarging the publication's staff.

The present editor of the senior class section of the annual, Blake is interested in the publications field, evidenced by the fact that he is preparing himself for an A. B. degree in journalism. According to a member of the present Yack board of editors, "Blake should be commended for the work that he has done in completing the senior class section, the largest of its kind in Yack history."

Army Veteran
Blake is an Army veteran, having served overseas in North Africa and Italy. The nominee is a member of the junior class and is a brother of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity.

Announcement of Blake's candidacy brings to two the number of candidates for this major campus publications office. Bill Duncan, present picture coordinator of the yearbook, was endorsed for editorship by the University party on February 12.

Di Will Discuss Elections Rules

A special bill suggesting additions to existing University election regulations will head the agenda tonight when the Dialectic Senate meets at 9 o'clock in the Di hall, third floor, New West.

The issue of candidates and their prerequisite qualifications and the validity of elections was to be debated at last week's Senate session but was tabled for more thorough discussion at this time.

Its first proposal is that no person shall be a candidate for executive positions in student government or for the editorship of student publications without having first served two quarters in student government or on the publication concerned.

Election Rules
Its second proposal includes rules by which an election should be declared void or null. Elections to pick either student government executives or campus editors shall be invalid, according to the bill, unless one half of the eligible voters go to the polls. In the case of inadequate voting on the original ballots, subsequent elections and, if necessary, appointment by the Dean of Students are provided.

John Zucker, speaker pro tempore of the Di, will preside over the meeting tonight in the absence of Speaker Charles O. Long, who is representing the University in debate tournaments to be held in New Orleans the latter part of this week.
