favor of a larger humor magazine featuring more original material. He added that he wants to put out a magazine with a professional make-up but with more student appeal.

A cartoonist and writer, the candidate entered the University in the summer of 1946 and plans to major in English, journalism, and education. Several of his illustrations will appear in the next issue of Tarnation.

The new candidate has had four years of publications experience as editor and managing editor of high school newspapers and magazines. Burgess has also published an amateur fiction magazine, "Scarab," for the past three years. Specializing in science-fiction, he illustrates his own stories.

Burgess stated that he favors the use of more original material in Tarnation with less reprints from other college humor mags. "There is plenty of original talent on this campus," he said. "Of the thing original to contribute to a campus humor magazine. And I believe that I can get it out of them," he added.

Asked about the present standards of Tarnation, Burgess praised the staff and stated that if elected he would atempt to maintain the present standards of the humor mag while enlarging it. He said that he was definitely in favor of including more illustrations, drawings, and photographs. Burgess also said that he was interested in the type of humor portrayed by the "Post-Scripts" of the Saturday Evening
