Physician Describes Procedures Needed For Sight Restoring

Emphasizing the success with which eye surgery can be used to restore sight, Dr. Frederick W. Stocker, one of the country's foremost eye specialists now practicing at McPherson Hospital in Durham, spoke to group of interested students and faculty last Thursday night in the medical school auditorium.

His talk, sponsored by the Beta Iota chapter of the University professional medical fraternity, Alpha Kappa Kappa, under the auspices of the national Eye Bank for Sight Restoration, was on his own surgical specialty, the corneal transplant.

Operation Described

Many persons who have superficial injuries to the front of the eye cannot see because of resulting scar tissue, Dr. Stocker explained. This scarred material can be removed and replaced by similar material taken from another human eye. This operation is called a "corneal transplant" and is the method sponsored and aided by the Eye Bank organization.

Dr. Stocker described this procedure and illustrated it with a motion picture showing in detail its delicacy and resulting success. By progress slides following the picture, the eminent physician demonstrated how successful the technique has been in restoring sight to many of the blind. He emphasized that thousands would benefit from this operation if enough human eyes were available to provide material for transplantations.

University Group Programs

Nelson O'Quinn, president of the University chapter of the AKK, said in connection with the need for the encouraging people to donate their eyes upon death to this work, said his fraternity has adopted this program as a permanent objective of the group.

APPLICATIONS FOR DEGREE

All candidates for the A. B.-L.L.B. degree or the B. S. in Medicine degree who will have successfully completed their first year of Law school or Medical School by this June, should file an application-for-degree card this week in 203 South Building, College of Arts and Sciences.

The feature stunt will be a black and white head of Coach Carl Snavely. The card stunt will show Snavely with a crown on his head and the words "King Carl" in letters shown in the background.

Invisible Pen

Another attraction will be a white "U. N. C." which will appear diagonally across the card section with a blue background. There will also be a blue-white combination with the upper half in white and the lower in blue so that the word "blue" will appear to be written across the upper half of the combination as if by an invisible pen. This stunt will be in honor of the Blue-White squads. When the word "blue" is completed, the word "white" will appear on the blue background in the lower half of the section.

Since the game is scheduled during the Tex Beneke weekend the committee has planned a stunt to greet Beneke and his orchestra.

"Welcome Tex"

The word "welcome" with "Tex" written in the upper right hand corner and a picture of a saxophone in the lower left hand corner will appear diagonally across the card section.

Also during the game, the card section will produce a caricature sketch of a Ramones and a plug for the air show which will take place the following day. Last stunt of the game will be a large "Beat Duke" which will be flashed across the section.

The committee announced that before each home game, on Friday a drawing of stunts will be placed on display in the "Y".

State Mason Speaks To University Lodge

Grand Master Luther T. Hartsell, Jr., of the Grand Lodge of North Carolina addressed a special meeting of the Brazen Pillows Thursday night in Phi hall.

Speaking informally on certain phases of Free Masonry the grand master pointed out that in this age of "isms" masonry is one of the few institutions in the world that recognized individuality.

Following Mr. Hartsell's address Dr. W. E. Caldwell, J.G.W., representing the University lodge, presented the grand master with an honorary membership in the University lodge at Chapel Hill.

The Brazen Pillows will have its first social function since its organization last quarter when the student-masons play host to 50 orphans from Oxford Orphanage on April 24 at the Carolina-State baseball game.

Big Concert Series Slated Next Year

The Student Entertainment committee and the North Carolina Symphony society has announced plans for a big-name five-concert series for next year. Plans call for the series to be climaxed by a North Carolina program featuring a native North Carolina artist.

This artist's performance will give him or her an opportunity to appear in public and to perhaps be launched on a career. The person will be chosen by competitive auditions given by the Symphony society. The several winners in the auditions will appear in various places throughout the state, and the one chosen best of these will give the fifth concert here at the University.

The Student Legislature has given to the Student Entertainment committee $6,000 for the concert series. The committee, with Scotty Venable as chairman, has met twice with Mr. Al Pikutis and Mr. William Erwin, representatives for the Symphony. Plans have been made for securing four famous artists for the performances, their names will be announced later. The series will be without charge to and exclusively for students.

British Set Curfew On Palestine Roads

Palestine, April 9 — (UP) — A dusk-to-dawn curfew has been ordered for all roads in Palestine in an effort to stop Arab and Jewish military movements.

The British imposed the curfew to check violence in the Holy Land following the fierce battle of Kastel in which Arabs and Jews fought for six days for the control of the strategic village. The Arabs fought their way into Kastel yesterday — and the Jews recaptured it today.

A spokesman for Jewish forces claims two-hundred Arabs were killed when the Jewish underground captured another Arab village just outside of Jerusalem.

Marshall Escapes Unharm'd From South American Riot

Washington, April 9 — (UP) — The State Department reports that Secretary of State Marshall escaped injury in an outbreak of violence in Bogota, Colombia. A mob attacked the presidential palace where the Pan-American conference is being held after a Colombian political leader was shot. However, Marshall is safe.

Three Nations Ask Russians to Agree To Return Trieste

Trieste, April 9 — (UP) — The United States, Britain, and France have again asked the Kremlin to join them in giving Trieste back to Italy.

Since this is the second time the question has been brought up, the joint maneuver obviously is aimed at making Russia show her hand before the critical Italian elections April 18.

The question is a sore spot for Russia. If the Soviet agree to revise the Italian peace treaty, it will be a blow to Marshall Tito's Communist government in Yugoslavia. If the Russians say "no," there will be strong anti-Communist feelings on the eve of the elections.

Thus far, the Soviet Union has ignored an original proposal to make Trieste, now a free territory, Italian. The latest proposal made in similar notices was delivered to the Soviet embassies in Washington, London and Paris.

In Trieste itself, Allied intelligence agents say Yugoslavia is expected to seal off its zone on all but one main highway in two weeks. It is believed the Yugoslavs will claim they are acting to clamp down on Italian underground activities and to prevent refugees from fleeing into the American and British zone.

Amendment Started To Oust Communists

Washington, April 9 — (UP) — The House Committee on Un-American Activities in a sweeping new law to crack down on American Communists has called for a constitutional amendment to make it illegal to advocate overthrow of the United States government by any means — violent or peaceful.

As the law now reads, it is only illegal to seek overthrow of the government by force or violence. Republican Representative Nixon of California says the proposed change would make the Communist party as it now stands illegal.

The rebel-controlled radio says that a new government has been set up, although this has not yet been confirmed.

THE "FLAG of Liberation," which was flying over the U. S. Capitol when the Japs attacked Pearl Harbor, is presented to Congressmen in Army Day ceremonies in Washington. Former Candidate Expresses Thanks, Urges Large Vote

By Herb Nachman

The Student party yesterday voted to back Charlie Long for Student body president and Charlie Gibson for Tarnation editor in next Tuesday's runoff.

Later in the afternoon, Mike Rubish, SP presidential candidate who was knocked out of the race in the general election, announced that he would also back Long.

Long, an independent candidate, will be opposed by Jess Dedmond, CP-UP, in the runoff.

In the runoff for the Tarnation editorship will be Gibson, the Campus party nominee, and Bob Smith and Tom Wharton, University party candidates for co-editorship of the humor magazine.

Rubish, in announcing he would back Long, expressed his thanks to his supporters in the general election, and congratulated both Dedmond and Long on their being in the runoff.

He mentioned that the coming year will be a definite test of strength for student government. "It will be this year that student government leaders must be men who have principles, integrity and character; they must be men who will work for the student body and not for themselves or their political parties," Rubish said.

His statement of endorsement for Long urged students to go to the polls and vote in the runoff Tuesday.

"I cannot urge you enough to go to the polls Tuesday and elect the man who has retained his principles and integrity even when they were contributing to his defeat; the man who realized that victory is not all that matters when principles are involved; the man who knows his own mind and sticks to it; who sees at once what, in given circumstances, is to be done and does it. Charles Long is the only hope that you have of retaining and improving student government."

Truman Advisors Warn Consumers To Use Economy

Washington, April 9 — (UP) — President Truman's top economic experts said tonight that the nation must tighten its belt to prevent more inflation under the new defense program.

The warning that this country must adopt "spartan" measures to keep on an even keel comes from the latest report of the President's council of economic advisors. It is the first time the surveys have been made public. Mr. Truman evidently released this data to emphasize the need for economic self-discipline in view of the stepped up defense and foreign aid programs.

The council calls for reduced government spending and for price, wage, and ration controls in certain critical industries. The economic experts also say that the new tax law increases the pressure of inflation. They call for increased taxes if future military expenses are not offset by reduced government costs in other fields.

PAPER DRIVE

Residents of Victory Village are urged to leave all available waste paper in front of their homes at 2 o'clock on Sunday afternoon in co-operation with a drive to raise money for the new Chapel Hill recreation center.

The paper will be collected at that time by students of the Chapel Hill high school who are anxious to finance recreational facilities soon to be installed in the old Methodist church.

Melville Broughton Says He Opposes Advertising of Alcoholic Beverages

Raleigh, April 9 — (UP) — Former Governor J. M. Broughton, a candidate for the United States Senate, has written the Allied Church league that he is opposed to extensive advertising of liquor and will favor any legislation to curb ads designed to tempt young people.

Broughton has written the executive director of the Church league that he does not consider it appropriate for a senatorial candidate to take a stand on the issue of a statewide liquor referendum.

Broughton's letter says, "In the event of my election to the United States Senate, I would favor every reasonable proposal designed to bring about a decrease in the sale and use of intoxicating beverages throughout the United States."

Beyond Proper Limits

The former governor says that he is not sufficiently familiar with the Capper bill to discuss it, but says he feels that advertising of alcoholic beverages has gone beyond all proper and reasonable limits.

"In my opinion," says Broughton, "this constitutes a serious menace to the welfare and morals of the people generally, and I would favor any legislation that would curb such dangerous and evil tendencies."

Broughton adds that he, personally, favors a statewide liquor referendum, but he has written the Allied Church league that he will not appear before any committee of the General Assembly in respect to a referendum. He says he would consider that entirely inappropriate.

He adds that he does not consider the question of a referendum on the sale of alcoholic beverages in North Carolina is an issue involved in the campaign for the senate.

Plans for the campus spring picnic are being completed. The date for the affair will be April 17.

Beer Thirst of Carolina Students Diverted Into Thriving Enterprise for Two Veterans

By Owen Lewis

The thirst for beer among Carolina students that has filled up so much space for DTH columnists has been diverted into a thriving business enterprise by two Winston-Salem veterans, Eddie Katzin and Marvin Miller.

They have founded the K and M beer delivery service in a hole-in-the-wall office at 119-1-2 N. Columbia street, and guarantee to deliver the wholesome malt beverage by the case to any address in town, and fraternity and rooming house residents are thus relieved of the strenuous task of totting up their suds.

Katzin, who was in the navy for two years, and Miller who pulled a like hitch as a dogface, dreamed up their enterprise after worrying for some time about how they could stretch their government allowances to cover all the expenses of a university career. They couldn't stretch the money that far, they decided, but if they converted it into a business, they thought they might multiply their take considerably.

The next logical step was the hops hopping, which has already solved some of the financial difficulties.

Both men are sophomores and plan to major in Commerce. Their partnership gives them ample opportunity to put into practice the economic theories they are exposed to in the classroom. Both are A. E. Pi fraternity members, but they don't spend much time at the house any longer. They keep long hours, 11 a. m. to 11:30 p. m., and have to cram their classes and studies into the quiet hours when Carolina gentlemen have temporarily sated their thirst.

They say that fraternities are their best customers, and look forward to a prolonged session of balmy spring weather, when they expect picnics and other outdoor activities to provide a minor boom in the beer delivery business.
