

Communist Leader Will Participate In Meeting Tonight

By Charlie Craven

Junius Scales, chairman of the Communist party of Chapel Hill, will represent his party tonight at 8 o'clock on the first floor of Phillips hall when the Collegiate Council for the United Nations will hold a mock UN Security Council session, officials of the CCUN announced yesterday.

Beside the Communist party, eleven campus organizations will represent the various nations having delegates on the Security Council of the UN.

It has been reliably established that Scales refused to be quoted as saying he will represent Russia. He stated, however, that he will take the part of Communism.

The organizations participating in tonight's meeting spent last week preparing arguments based on policies held by different nations concerning the present plight of Czechoslovakia.

Tonight's meeting of the CCUN is sponsored by the state headquarters of the organization. This afternoon at 4:30 the local chapter will have a meeting in Gerard hall. All student and faculty advisors are requested to be present at the afternoon meeting when a progress report will be read by the state director.

Other than Scales and the Communist party, the following organizations will be represented on the mock Security Council: Di, Merle Stevens; Phi, Herman Sieber; IRC, John Bristow; CPU, Dick Simpson; YWCA, Jean McKeithan, Ann Wells, Patsy McNutt; FFC, Bill Kraft, John Burwell, John Brockman; CCC, Charlie Kaufman; WF, Jake Wicker; Graff, representative to be announced.

At this afternoon's meeting of the CCUN, new student advisors will be installed to fill places vacated by several advisors who plan to graduate in June. Also scheduled is a discussion of the state policy, a discussion of the final conference to be held in May, and a discussion of the evening meeting in Phillips hall.

Negro Leader Says UNC Is Best Place For Colored Students to Be Admitted

Durham, April 19 —(UP)— A Negro leader has been quoted as saying today that if there is any place in the South where Negroes should be admitted as day students in a college, the University of North Carolina is the best place to start.

C. C. Spaulding of Durham, president of the world's largest Negro insurance firm, says that the Negro students who have applied for admission to the University of North Carolina are not trying to cause trouble. He also pointed out that when they finish their courses at the schools they are now attending, they will be unable to practice.

Two of the applicants are law students at North Carolina college at Durham, Negro college which has a law school but which is not recognized by the American Bar association.

An official in Chancellor Robert B. House's office reported today that Board of Trustees will meet in Raleigh on May 17 to review the applications. It was also reported that the only action which the Board could take would be to make a recommendation to the Legislature or to the governor.

Graduates of North Carolina college Law School may take the state bar exams but are not admitted to the American Bar association.

Spaulding says that race relations have improved, but not as much in the South as they should have. In his words, "If there is a place in the South where Negro students should be admitted as day students," and he emphasizes day students, "the University of North Carolina is the best place to start."

He says his motto is, "Keep on keeping at it." He brought out that very few people know the improvements that have been made in North Carolina, but he added, "We are still a long way from the shore."

The Negro insurance man also says he does not think the regional school plan under which several Southern states would band together to set up a school for Negroes will be successful.

ROME POLICE ARE SHOWN holding back a portion of the vast throngs that waited for hours for a chance to cast their votes in an election which will decide whether or not the "Iron Curtain" is likely to drop on Italy. A check of those shown above showed that virtually all of them were eager for the opportunity to cast out the Communist threat. Some 350,000 government troops and police handled the crowds which, in Rome, was largely orderly and good natured.

First Vote Count From Italian Polls Favors Anti-Reds

Rome, April 19 —(UP)— The anti-Communist parties seem to have taken a strong lead in Italy's fateful parliamentary election although it still is too early to predict victory for either side with returns in only from 3,400 of the country's 4,000 precincts.

On this early count, the parties backing Premier De Gasperi are running ahead better than three to two. The count for the Christian Democrats and other anti-Communist groups now totals some 1,092,000 while the Communist front has about 642,000 votes.

These returns are for the 237 Senate seats which are at stake. The Italians also voted on 574 delegates to the national assembly.

However, the Assembly returns are just beginning to be tabulated. They, too, give a big lead to the parties which want to keep Italy on the side of the western Democracies.

'Sweep It Clean' Opens Here As Satire on Campus Politics

"Sweep It Clean," a new musical-comedy being given for the Koch Memorial fund, opens tonight at 8:30 in Memorial hall.

Combining Playmaker and music department talent in a colorful show, the musical is based on the pertinent theme of election time. Sparked with a wide variety of new songs and a chorus of twenty, the electioneering is conducted before moving scenery that includes two office buildings and an entire amusement park.

The political plot revolves about the campaigning of a city boss and an honest garbage collector running on the clean city platform. National politics are brought into the script through the disreputable Senator Dodder. Seven election songs keep the program musical while the comedy and romantic love sequences provide ballads and laughs.

"Sweep It Clean" is being presented by an entirely new musical-comedy group comprised of students who have previously appeared in the "Mikado" and other Playmaker productions. Attempting to give a show Broadway calibre, "Sweep It Clean" follows a desire to show that the Carolina campus can produce musicals of an equal standard with those of other universities.

Proceeds of the show will go toward the construction of the Koch Memorial theater and the improvement of existing theatrical facilities.

Tickets for "Sweep It Clean" are on sale at the YMCA and Ledbetter-Pickards, and will be sold at Memorial hall tonight and tomorrow night.
